me Texas Boys.
e Negro's Last Chapter.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 11.

FROM THE platform of this train going through Texas near Del Rio, "Babe" Ruth could knock a baseball across the Rio Grande and several hundred feet on into Mexican territory.

Across the narrow stream, the cattle, and a man with a cape over his shoulders. Heaven only knows why the cape, in this sunshine, are Mexican. On this side, some horses rounded up by a boy whose overalls are printed with reproductions of newspaper comics, are entirely American.

Ten thousand places along this river, far from the railroad, and from everything but sunshine, jack rabbits and lizards, offering opportunity to bootleggers.

With alcoholic liquors sold legally in the United States, and a billion dollar demand for them, bootlegging across the Rio Grande is made profitable by high taxation in this country, may become a dangerous, murderous institution.

Three or four, including one American patrolman, were killed in a Rio Grande whisky fight near El Paso several days ago. One of the Mexicans, captured, seemed bewildered and said:

"We paid the usual fee to the customs inspectors on the Mexican side before starting across with the whisky."

To say that was dangerous. The next morning he was found hanged in his cell, strangled to death by his own belt. He left a note saying:

"I'm doing this because I don't want to be a prisoner any more. . . . I don't want to be bothered any more and don't want to bother you. . . . Tell my woman. 'Goodbye Blackie.'"

The Mexican government is endeavoring in good faith to prevent smuggling of whisky from Mexico to the United States, but this country knows, without asking Mexico, how hard it is to control whisky and bribes.

SMUGGLING ACROSS the Rio Grande, however, could be discouraged, adequately, by airplane patrol. Airplanes flying low and slowly, not far above the river, each with a floodlight lighting the river and both banks at night and cruising along our border by day, using machine guns after a warning, would be effective.

The three hundred Army planes, trained pilots and the young cadet fliers under Gen. Danforth's command at San Antonio's Randolph flying field, could do that work with little extra cost to government.

YOU MEET friends, traveling through this part of the country, W. A. Zabriskie, of the Southern Pacific, who has been railroading for thirty-five years, says:

"I get two newspapers to read your articles, the El Paso Times when I am in El Paso in the morning, and the Tucson Citizen when I am in Tucson. That Tucson paper belongs to Frank Hitchcock, you know, the former postmaster general. All the boys along the road read your articles.

"I am as old as you are."

He is mistaken about the age, he is younger.

Frank Hitchcock, who meets you at the Tucson station, stands as straight as he did thirty years ago, owns and edits the Tucson News, and likes that better than kicking out postmasters in politics.

AT LORDSBURG, New Mexico, destined to be one of the world's great health resorts, Commissioner Willard E. Holt, on behalf of the city, presents two canes, thick, but weighing only a couple of ounces, made from the stem of the yucoa flower that grows on the desert. A ferocious rattlesnake is carved around that.

The other, heavier, is made of ocotillo cactus, both carved by Albert Johnson, ex-service man of Lordsburg.

Don Marquis, father of Archie and Mehitabel, calls Lordsburg "the greatest little big city in the world."

WITH MR. HOLT comes a giant whose voice would make the bull of Bashan sound like a small mouse, and a handshake with results that reminds you of arthritis and inflammatory rheumatism.

For sixteen years foreman of the Southern Pacific roundhouse at Lordsburg, he "sees the engines when they come and sees to it that they go out right."

His greeting is:

"I'm sure glad to see you, for you gave me what education I have got. You made me read Buckle's 'History of Civilization,' and that's a whole education all by itself.

"Every day of my life I read what you write in the El Paso Times.

"See that hotel across the street? It's the best hotel between San Antonio and Los Angeles, 65 rooms, 65 baths. What do you think of that?"

The Lordsburg Liberal, first-class newspaper, published on the "Broadway of America, gateway to the scenic West," announces that President Roosevelt's plan has put 130 men to work on CWA projects in Hidalgo County.

The same thing repeated all over the United States will help you to understand why criticizing President Roosevelt is not popular.

Hidalgo County is named for Gen. Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla, formerly a Mexican priest who became the first leader in the

WEIR BREAKS WITH NRA BOARD

Steel Head to Ignore Labor Unit Rules In Election

The Weirton Steel Company today turned its back on the National Labor Board and informed the board the company would ignore its rules in conducting an election of the company employes' representatives in collective bargaining.

Mincing no words, E. T. Weir, chairman of the Weirton Steel Board, in a letter to Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the Labor Board, said:

"We must consider any arrangements with you terminated and the election will proceed in accordance with the rules adopted by the employes' organization."

The letter, made public here, was regarded as a flat defi to the board created to mediate in labor disputes under the NRA. Supervision of the election of miners' representatives at captive mines in this district was entirely in its hands.

Weir charged the board had

Roosevelt Acts in Rum Tax Revolt

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt planned to meet late today with the leaders of Congress to consider the liquor tax program coming up for consideration in joint hearings on Capitol Hill this week.

Speaker Rainey and Chairmen Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, and Representative Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, were invited to the White House to study the extent to which the government will tax liquor.

There were indications that the Chief Executive might suggest a lowering of the $2.60 a gallon tax suggested by his special committee. The present tax is $1.10 and objections to the sharp increase also have reverberated on Capitol Hill.

WARNED BY EXPERT

Congress was warned today by its tax expert, L. H. Parker, that in seeking a liquor tax level that will drive bootleggers out of business, it must take into consideration that at least 40 or 50 million gallons of illegal liquor are on hand.

The illegal liquor will seek a market in competition with lawful beverages, Parker reminded the Legislators at the hearing.

The congressional expert was called to the stand after notice had been served that the Treasury would not be ready until tomorrow with the administration's recommendation for a liquor tax.

Failure of the administration to offer its recommendation today brought a flurry of criticism from Representative Treadway, of

8 ABOVE ZERO PREDICTED HERE

Temperature May Fall To Year's Lowest, Says Forecaster

On the heels of the heaviest snow of the season here, the temperature tumbled rapidly today.

The Weather Bureau predicted the mercury would drop to a new low mark for the season, between 8 and 12 degrees above zero, tonight.

The minimum for the season thus far is 9 on November 16.

Two and a half inches of snow fell here during the night. Traffic was slowed, and streets were dangerously icy today. Three inches of snow were reported at Freeport and four at Mosgrove.

AUTOS MAROONED

Automobiles were forced to stop in hilly sections of the city. Machines were marooned in Schenley Park, Squirrel Hill and on South Hills streets. Road workers today were scattering ashes on streets and highways.

The temperature fell two degrees in half an hour this morning. After reaching a high of 35 degrees during the night, the mercury dropped to 27 at 8 a. m., and at 8:30 had fallen to 25.

The storm swept into the district with a high wind that reached a speed of 60 to 70 miles an hour in some sections of the state. The storm area centered at Winnipeg, where the lowest temperature during the night was 20 degrees below zero. The highest there yesterday was 8 below.

SKIDDING TRUCK WRECKED

Skidding on a steep, snow-covered grade in Cypress street, Whitaker, today, a truck of the Dairymen's Milk Company, North Side, ran down hill and was wrecked in Ravine street, Munhall. William Jahn, the driver, escaped injury, the company reported.

Slipping on the icy pavement, John Mitch, 30, of 2780 Penn avenue, was thrown under a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train near Twenty-eighth street and Penn avenue, shortly before noon today. At West Penn Hospital his condition was reported as not serious.

A. E. Walker, 48, of 607 Sandusky street, North Side, was hurt when his automobile skidded and hit a pole in the 1500 block, East street. He was taken to Allegheny General Hospital, suffering from lacerations of the head.

Work for 2,685 men was provided in clearing highways throughout the state. Snowfalls as deep as six inches were reported in some sections. The State Highway Department reported all roads were open, but slippery conditions prevailed.

He Bailed Out

CAPT. H. G. ANDREWS

Flier Andrews, mail pilot who with a radioed terse "I'm leaving" jumped into the snow of the Allegheny mountains to avoid crashing with his plane.

MAIL PILOTS LEAP TO SAFETY

Fliers Radio Story of Battle With Blizzard Over Alleghenies

Detailing their battles with the elements in crisp, common place words spoken into their radio microphones, two airmail pilots were forced to "bail out" over the Pennsylvania mountains to escape death in a raging snowstorm early today.

One ship was flying east, piloted by Dean Burford, of Columbus, O. The other was headed west, piloted by Harold G. Andrews, of New York. They came down within 20 miles of each other.

Minute by minute as the snow fell more heavily, the wind increased and the ice formed more thickly on their ships, the pilots gave short wave radio listeners-in a closeup of what it is to fly over the "Graveyard of Aviators" in a winter blizzard.

COMPELLED TO JUMP

Finally, laconically:

"Well, it looks like I can't make it. I've got to jump."

There were no passengers. All passenger plane flights were cancelled earlier when the worst storm of the season set in.

Burford left Pittsburgh at 1:35 a. m. for Harrisburg, Philadelphia and New York.

In the region of Portage, he reported visibility was poor and ice was forming on the wings.

The radio communication was particularly clear. From New York to Kansas City, short wave radio picked up the pilot's broadcasts. Burford called his position repeatedly.

LANDS SAFELY ON FARM

Finally, the flier said he was losing altitude at the most dangerout point in his flight. Then, at 2:40 a. m. he radioed that "it looks like I can't make it."

He jumped, and nothing more was heard from him until 20 minutes later when he telephoned from the Portage tower of the Pennsylvania Railroad that he had parachuted to safety on the

WYNEKOOP FREE IN WIFE'S DEATH

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The charge that Earle Wynekoop was an accessory to the murder of his wife, Rheta, was dismissed by the state today.

When the young widower was arraigned in Felony Court on the warrant accusing him of a part in the strange killing of Rheta in his mother's surgical operating room, the state had to admit its investigation had not developed any evidence to substantiate the charge.

The elderly woman is under indictment for murder of her daughter-in-law by gunshot after administering chloroform, and will be tried in January. She is a prisoner in the county jail.

The authorities revealed yesterday that Dr. Wynekoop had requested permission from Dr. C. Theodore, associate jail physician, to lend a hand in the work of caring for other patients in the jail infirmary. Dr. Theodore said she already had helped in giving treatment to two prisoners.

Connollys to Visit Roosevelt Tonight

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. —(INS.)—President Roosevelt will have as his guests at the White House overnight Joseph V. Connolly, president of the Hearst news and feature service, and Mrs. Connolly.

The Hearst executive and Mrs. Connolly will be at the White House for dinner. They will spend the evening with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and will leave for New York tomorrow after a White House breakfast.

Former Pitcher Stops 'Crime Wave'

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Douglas McWeeney, former pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Cincinnati Reds, is still getting them over—but in a different way.

Police credited him with stopping a one-man "crime wave" by beating, disarming and arresting William Dobbins, 18, of Lagrange, accused of two holdups. McWeeney now operates an oil station at Lyons, Ill.

Welfare Workers Turn in $73,895

Workers in the Welfare Fund turned in $73,895 today, bringing the total to $2,096,638. The goal is $2,837,700. Some workers will continue solicitation throughout this week though the campaign officially closed last Friday.

600 Seized in Plot To Kill Jugoslavian, Bulgarian Monarchs

International News Service.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Dec. 11.—Uncovering an alleged Macedonian plot to assassinate the kings of Jugoslavia and Bulgaria in a single bombing, police today arrested more than 600 suspects in a countrywide roundup.

The plot was said to have been laid in connection with the four-day visit here of King Boris and Queen Giovanna of Bulgaria, who are being entertained in great state by King Alexander and Queen Marie of Jugoslavia.

More than 400 of the prisoners were taken in Belgrade, and 200 in the provinces.

The visiting King and Queen arrived yesterday, accompanied by the Bulgarian Premier, Nicolas Muschanoff. Negotiation of a peace treaty was understood to be under way.

Elaborate state plans for the four-day visit were in apparent emphasis on a new period of reconciliation between Jugoslavia and Bulgaria, which have been estranged since the Balkan War of 1912, when, although united in opposing the Turks, they fought between themselves over the spoils.

They battled on opposite sides during the World War, and since then have been in different coalition camps.

A review of a parade of four divisions of the Jugoslavian army was a feature of today's program, with the two kings inspecting the troops together.

Mystery Safe Theft Puzzles Detectives

City detectives today were confronted with a mysterious robbery of the safe in the Price Electric Supply Company offices, at 852 Reedsdale street. The robbery was discovered after George L. W. Price, the president, had opened the safe.

Three boxes were missing. These contained $100 cash and several hundred dollars in checks.

PENSION BILL FIGHT SEEN

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Dec. 11.—The Blumberg old age assistance bill, providing pensions for indigent persons aged 70 or more, is facing a fight in the Senate. As did the old age pension constitutional amendment in the last regular session, the bill passed the House by a huge majority.

But the Senate is not in the humor to give it any such easy passage. Some of the conservative Senators who blocked old age pensions last winter are in the humor to do so again. Others have undergone a change of heart because of public clamor over their action, and are expected to vote for the Blumberg bill.

There is, however, a disposition to amend it, as well as the accompanying appropriation of $8,000,000 from liquor revenue to pay the costs of assistance. One proposal is that the bill not become effective until 1935, instead

Florsheim, Wife Robbed by Bandits

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Irving S. Florsheim, president of the Florsheim Shoe Company, was robbed of $400 and his wife of a $2,000 mink coat early yesterday.

The Florsheims were being driven home by their chauffeur, Florsheim told police, when two men held them up. One robber got into the car with them, he said, and directed them to drive to a quiet neighborhood, where coat and cash were taken, the robbers fled in their own car.

Bray, Steel Leader, Dies in Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 11.—(INS.)—Thomas J. Bray, director of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and former president of the Republic Steel Corporation, died suddenly in his office here today.

REVENUE MEN EYE RUM SALES

A searching investigation of liquor-selling restaurants, hotels and clubs in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania was under way today.

Twenty-five agents of the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue were visiting hundreds of places seeking violations of the new liquor laws.

The investigation was made known by Arthur J. Farber, director of the Department of Revenue, in Harrisburg. Farber revealed:

"Every effort is being made to prevent the sale of bootleg liquor previous to the opening of the state liquor stores January 3. Our agents also will check to determined whether the state tax has been paid on liquor being sold in licensed establishments."

The director did not explain whether the agents would attempt to ferret out speakeasies which are functioning as clubs—usually with the inexpensive $50 license, which is $550 less than the fee paid by legitimate hotels and restaurants.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes was taken to the Naval Hospital today for an X-ray examination after he had slipped on the ice in front of his home here and fallen.

McCormick Blaze Victim Recovering

WINCHESTER, Eng., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. J. H. B. Rodney, seriously injured in the fire which resulted in the death of her husband and the destruction of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leander J. McCormick Saturday at Whitchurch, was said to be in a satisfactory condition today.

The Rodneys were house-guests of the McCormicks at the time of the fire which also claimed the life of the Duke De La Tremoille, French cavalry officer.

CRASH IN SNOW KILLS FOUR

BELLEFONTE, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A train crashed into an automobile in a blinding snowstorm today, killing four persons and injuring three.

Report of Fisher's Death 'Exaggerated'

INDIANA, Pa., Dec. 11.—(INS.)—Reports that former Gov. John S. Fisher had been seriously injured or killed in an automobile accident near Torrance, Pa., were exaggerated, state highway police revealed this afternoon.

Fisher's son, Attorney Robert M. Fisher, of Indiana, was uninjured this morning when the former chief executive's automobile, driven by Elmer White, the family chauffeur, was sideswiped by a skidding truck.

Free Rum Advocate, Mayor of Reno, Dies

RENO, Nev., Dec. 11.—(INS.)—Edwin Ewing Roberts, former Congressman and Mayor of Reno for many years, died here today.

He once attracted widespread attention by the declaration that his cure for the ills of prohibition would be to place a barrel of whisky on each street corner for free consumption.

Church Defies 'Klan' On Scottsboro Fund

ATLANTA, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Hooded men and police were present last night at Holsey Temple, a Negro church, when $15 was raised for the defense of the seven Negroes in the "Scottsboro case." The Rev. J. Raymond Henderson, a Negro preacher, made a brief appeal for money.

Robed men distributed handbills printed in bold type "The Ku Klux Klan Rides Again" and "Communism Will Not Be Tolerated." The distribution was quiet.

Mrs. Dempsey Gains After Operation

SEATTLE, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Hannah Williams Dempsey, wife of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, was recovering satisfactorily, hospital attendants said today, from a tonsil operation performed here Saturday.

Dempsey and his wife have been in the Northwest several weeks, where he has refereed wrestling matches.

Ex-Speaker Farr Dies in Scranton

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—John R. Farr, who served a number of terms in Congress and who was a former speaker of the House in Pennsylvania, died suddenly today.

King George Menaced By Falling Plane

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Buckingham Palace, with the King and Queen in residence, was thrown into an uproar today when a Royal Air Force plane, making a forced landing, narrowly missed crashing into the facade of the building.

The plane, with its engine missing and losing altitude rapidly, terrorized a large crowd before the palace which was watching the daily ritual of the changing of the palace guard.

The pilot, by clever handling of his ship, averted a tragedy by banking which enabled the craft to just clear the palace roof and come to a safe landing a few hundred feet away in Hyde Park.

The crowd outside the palace stampeded to safety and palace officials rushed to the windows as the roaring ship appeared out of the mist, flying low, and its engine backfiring.

Son Sleeps During Fire In Judge Smith's Home

When the wooden base of a log fireplace in the Smith home at 2921 Perrysville avenue caught fire last night, Mrs. Smith grabbed the child from his bed, carried him downstairs and deposited him on a divan.

"Sonny" refused to be impressed by the flames or the firemen. He slept through everything. Fire-damage was slight.

U. S. PROBES GOLD-SMUGGLING PLOT; TWO ARRESTED

BORDER PATROL CO-OPERATES IN DRIVE

Americans Seized in Canada With Bar of Precious Metal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A telegraphic report disclosed today that the United States apparently suspects an organized effort to export gold in violation of President Roosevelt's monetary policy.

A telegram to the customs bureau said the border patrol had co-operated with Canadian officials in activities to stop gold smuggling which resulted in the arrest in Canada of two Americans with an 100-ounce gold bar.

Customs officials declined to say how large a gold movement might be involved. Reports from Canada indicated a belief that $1,000,000 in gold has been smuggled across the border in the last half year.

REPORT ASKED

The Justice Department's bureau of investigation said it was without evidence of any large smuggling ring. This reply indicated the border patrol was acting on information not known previously to Washington, for customs officials also lacked knowledge of this government's part in the Canadian seizure until they asked border agents for a report.

Under regulations issued by President Roosevelt, only licensed dealers may handle gold legally. All other gold and gold certificates must be turned in to the Treasury.

TREASURY LEAK

The smuggling inquiry coincided with special efforts by Acting Secretary Morgenthau to guard the daily gold price against any possible leaks prior to formal announcement to the press. News agencies had complained that the price was known in London before being received there through customary news channels.

The administration today renamed a price of $34.01 an ounce for domestic gold.

At the same time, Norman Thomas and Louis Waldman, heading the public affairs committee of the Socialist party, said they opposed government inflation as a policy. While some advantage would accrue to groups, notably farmers, they said, there would be "disastrous consequences" to wage and salaried workers, including those whose incomes are fixed by codes, and the individuals having savings accounts and insurance policies.

FARMERS BACK ROOSEVELT

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt told the farmers of America in a message today that "we seem to be on our way" but counseled them to continue co-operating with the administration's program for a "controlled agriculture."

The President's message was read before the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation assembled here to discuss the complex problems of agriculture.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the federation, pledged himself in an address delivered after reading the President's message to stand squarely behind the Roosevelt agricultural program, the NRA and the administration's monetary policy.

President Roosevelt told the farm leaders that the "maladjustment between supply and demand," to which he attributed economic unrest in farming, had been years in the making and could not be cured overnight.

Siam Celebrating Restoration of King

BANGKOK, Siam, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A great five-day fete was in full swing throughout Siam today in celebration of the restoration of King Prajadhipok to the capital and the suppression of the October rebellion.

Clad in the ancient royal costume and seated on the majestic throne under the state umbrella, King Prajadhipok inaugurated Siam's first peoples' assembly yesterday at the "aupicious hour" of 11:02 a. m., selected by astrologers. The country was changed from an absolute to a constitutional monarchy last year.

ALIBI CLAIMED IN VOTE CASE

The defense in the government's fifth vote fraud trial devoted its efforts to establishing an alibi for Constable Harry Kart, one of six defendants, in Federal Court today as the case neared a close.

Three witnesses, one of them Elsie Sacks, a clerk in the office of Alderman Sol Goldstein, Fourteenth Ward, testified that Kart had been in Goldsetin's office throughout election day. Miss Sacks said Kart was there when she left at 6:30 p. m.

James Rosenberg, an election inspector in the Eighteenth District, Fourteenth Ward, testified he had seen Kart around the polls, located in Goldstein's office, shortly after 7 p. m. of election day.

Government witnesses had testified to seeing Kart at the polling place of the Sixth District, Third Ward, as the polls closed after the general election last year.

Defendants, besides Kart, on trial, are Anthony Sibilla, judge; Jack Frankel and Henry Silverstein, inspectors; Davey Slutsky and Harry Kalson, clerks of the board.

TROOPER SEEKS VENUE CHANGE

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—The State Supreme Court today halted all proceedings in the murder trial of John Mehallick, a state trooper, scheduled for December 14 in Indiana County and granted the defendant a rule on the district attorney to show cause why a writ of certiorari removing the record of the case to the Supreme Court for trial in another county should not be granted.

The rule was issued by Justice Alex. B. Simpson, Jr., in a petition presented by Attorney John E. Evans, of counsel for Mehallick.

It was averred in the petition that sentiment in the county was so inflamed against state police that the trooper could not be given a fair trial on a charge of slaying Wilbur O. Vite, last April 21, when he stopped the victim for questioning on a road between Clearfield and Glen Campbell.

HUEY AND FOES DEADLOCKED

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp has renewed her proposal to resign from the Sixth District Congressional seat which is headed for a contest in Washington in January with claimants, but the move merely served to tighten a deadlock between pro and anti-Huey P. Long politicians of the district.

Said Mrs. Kemp in a statement yesterday:

"If this, my last appeal, is not promptly accepted, I shall go to Washington and if there is a contest I shall present my own case to the assembled House or whatever committee may be appointed for the purpose."

The vacancy was caused by the death last June of Representative Kemp, husband of Mrs. Kemp, while in office.

With the backing of Senator Long's political organization, Mrs. Kemp was nominated for the office by the District Democratic Executive Committee and was declared elected last Tuesday without primary in a special election called by Gov. O. K. Allen.

KELLOGG ASKS STABLE MONEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State, returned from Europe today calling for a stable currency. He said:

"What we need more than anything else is a stable currency. Of course, that would give an impetus to business, give public confidence."

Kellogg, now the American judge in the permanent court of international justice, arrived on the Liner S. S. Washington. He would not discuss recognition of Russia, which he passed over when he was an official in the Coolidge cabinet, but he denied that it could have any effect whatsoever upon the famous Kellogg peace pact of which he was the moving spirit. He said:

"It may be a stabilizing influence in the Far East. I don't know."

As to the Far Eastern situation, he said:

"That's water over the dam."

Receives Award For Nobel Winner

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—On behalf of the winner, Dr. Thomas Hunt Morgan, of Pasadena, Cal., who was unable to appear, Laurence A. Steinhardt, United States minister to Sweden, last night received the 1933 Nobel prize in medicine. King Gustav spoke at the exercises.

Dr. Morgan was awarded the prize in recognition of his discoveries concerning the eugenic functions of chromosomes and genes.

COUGHLIN HITS GOLD AS CAUSE OF SLUMP

Cardinal O'Connell Raps 'Hysterical Harangue'

DETROIT, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Assailing what he said was a gold-standard capitalism's grip on industry, the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, in an address yesterday charged that the effort to maintain the gold standard was responsible for the depression that began in 1929.

The industrialists, Father Coughlin asserted, are at the mercy of gold-standard capitalists and added that money had become, "not the medium of exchange, but the medium of control."

PRAISES MANUFACTURERS

The crusading priest only once during his address mentioned the name of J. P. Morgan, reiterating previous charges of financial control reaching into many billions of dollars.

He praised a recent resolution by the National Association of Manufacturers as significant, he said, of the support industrialists, as opposed to gold-standard capitalists, are according President Roosevelt in his monetary program.

He predicted the large number of manufacturers who signed the resolution soon would be joined by Henry Ford and others who have not yet announced unqualified support of the Roosevelt recovery program.

CARDINAL CRITICAL

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—William Cardinal O'Connell said yesterday "hysterical harangue" accomplished nothing but the "usual effect of sounding brass and tinkling cymbals."

Addressing members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society at their communion breakfast, the dean of the Catholic hierarchy in America, who celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday on Friday, declared it was forbidden by the church to "name individuals from the altar" and urged his listeners not to blame everything on the bankers.

Delivering a plea for a return to the four cardinal virtues of prudence, justice, fortitude and temperance, the Cardinal said:

"Do not make sweeping statements about bankers in general because you are doing an injustice to a great many men.

"The great work we have to do is to convince those who deal with money to deal with honesty, as most bankers do.

"The government of the country will see to it without partisanship governing this side or that. It will bring about a proper administration of money that will be of tremendous advantage, but it will not be done by violence, or by talk or by, I should say, hysterical harangue."

Radio Priest Called Modern Savonarola

CLEVELAND, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, crusading priest of Detroit, was characterized as a "modern Savonarola" by Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner in a lecture here yesterday.

Father Coughlin's utterances are needed to give courage to weaker members of the clergy who fear to speak up, Dr. Brickner said.

Yacht Too Costly, Says Rich Princess

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani and her husband, Prince Alex Mdivani, plan to begin a world cruise January 2 on a regulation steamer, although she owns a yacht. The princess, heiress to the Woolworth millions, says it costs too much to travel extensively on her yacht.

WEIR BREAKS WITH NRA BOARD

Steel Head Charges Attempt At Dictation

failed to carry out an agreement with the company and was attempting to extend its right to supervise the procedure of the election to make basic changes in the company's employes' representation plan "which are not in accordance with you nor with the provisions of the National Recovery Act."

Thec ompany proposes to have the employe representatives elected by secret ballot. The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers sought to have them chosen by petitions of the workers. The Amalgamated proposal was backed by the Labor Board.

A company union rules committee today was conducting nominations by secret ballot at the mills in West Virginia and Ohio.

Only adherents of the company union which had called the "primary" election today were expected to take part.

Members of the outside union plan to go to the polls at the election set for Friday and vote for Amalgamated leaders as their representatives in all negotiations with the company.

WEIR'S LETTER

Mr. Weir's letter to Senator Wagner:

"Your letter of December 8 addressed to the Weirton Steel Company, transmitting copies of proposed rules and regulations for the conduct of elections to be held this week, was received on Saturday and has been handed to me for reply.

"In your letter you refer to agreement with our company dated October 23; I presume you mean the agreement of October 16.

"These rules are not in accordance with the agreement which we made with you on October 16. If you will examine the testimony you will note that at the insistence of the company your board agreed that the election to be supervised by your board was the next regular election provided for by the by-laws of the employes' organization of the Weirton Steel Company to be held the second week of December, with nominations on Monday and the election on Friday.

CITES AGREEMENT

"We attach an extract from the notes of testimony on this point. We agreed to recommend amendment of the by-laws to open the eligible representatives to nonemployes to conform to the provisions of the NRA, and various members of your board, as appears by the record, asked that the by-laws be so amended.

"We recommended such an amendment to the rules committee of the employes organization, and it was adopted. No other suggestion was made by any member of the Labor Board as to any other amendment necessary or proper to bring the by-laws into conformity with the act.

"Pursuant to these by-laws, the employes rules committee drafted rules for the election, and posted them about Wednesday of last week, having given a copy to your representative, Mr. Dewey, about a week before that.

EMPLOYES' BY-LAWS

"The rules which we have just received and which you request us to post are not in conformity with the by-laws of our employes organization, which was discussed before your board.

"Your rules propose to increase the number of representatives from 49 to 98.

"The employes' representation plan now in force was adopted by the employes themselves, and we believe they have the right under the law to determine their form of organization and the number of representatives they desire.

"The change which you are proposing is not a matter of procedure or supervision of the election, but is an attempt to impose an entirely new form of organization on our employes. We think that neither the company nor the labor board has any right to change the plan adopted by the men, and this was one of the matters to which you agreed when it was specifically called to your attention at the conclusion of the hearing in Washington before the agreement was signed.

"It is a radical change in substance in the form of plan now in force at Weirton and not of mere procedure, and we have no right to consent to it.

PETITION PLAN

"You rules also provide a method of nominating by petition, which is not in accordance with the by-laws of our employes' organization and is not only a vital change in the substance of their plan but is inherently vicious and unfair. Our employes' organization's by-laws require nominations by secret ballot and this is the only fair method.

"If nominations are by petition, the persons who sign the petition are subjected to criticism, therats, and intimidation, either in obtaining signatures to the petition or by those who oppose the candidate. It is unfair to require employes to sign a petition to place a name in nomination.

"Furthermore, the dual system of nominations which you propose would permit the same employes who had participated in the nominations by ballot to sign petitions later to have other names placed upon the ballot. It is obvious it would be very unfair to enable a name to be placed on the ballot on a petition signed by only 10 people when other employes who had actively competed for a place on the ballot and lost had received a larged number of votes.

"Notwithstanding defeat at the primaries, defeated candidates could have their names placed on the ballot by odtaining only 10 signatures. This would nullify the primary election and completely destroy every element of free choice by secret ballot in nominations, which is one of the fundamentals of the plan adopted by our employes.

EX-EMPLOYES' VOTE

"The rules which you sent us also propose to permit voting by persons who are no longer in the employ of the company. This is a substantial departure from our employes' organization plan and unsound in principle.

"Your rules further permit a designation to be added after the name of a candidate. We assume you intended to permit candidates to designate labor organizations as you did in the coal company elections. There is no such provision in the act, and it is not in accordance with the by-laws of our employes' organization.

"Our agreement with you permits the labor board to supervise both the nominations and elections and, although nominations are being held today in accordance with the by-laws, they are receiving no supervision from your board. We consider, therefore, that you have not only failed to carry our your agreement with us but are attempting to extend your right to supervise the procedure of the election to make basic changes in our employes' representation plan whichh are not in acocrdance with our understanding with you nor with the provisions of the National Recovery Act.

"Our employes strenuously object to this and consequently, we are not going to post the notices which you sent.

"From the time of our agreement on October 16 until late Saturday afternoon, December 9, we had no notice from you as to your proposed supervision of this election. Several days before we received your communication our employes had posted rules in accordance with their by-laws, and the election was ready to proceed beginning at 1 a. m., Monday, December 11.

"Your delay gave us no opportunity to discuss these matters with you and the election is therefore, in progress under rules drafted by our employes in accordance with their by-laws.

"Under the circumstances, we must consider any arrangement with you terminated, and the election will proceed in acocrdance with the rules adopted by the employes' association."

STRIKE SPREAD IN SPANISH REVOLT

Heavy Artillery Routs Foes Barricaded In Barracks

MADRID, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A general strike supported by syndicalists spread over Spain today, as violence subsided following the capture of the Villaneuva Military Barracks in which rebel forces had withstood a terrific bombardment.

Despite the increase of strikes, commerce and industry generally went on as usual, apparently confident the walk-out movement would collapse. Only in a few places did Socialists co-operate with the Communists and Anarchists who fomented the bloody disorders of the past three days.

Government troops, supported by cannon, early today charged the Villaneuva Barracks, where the rebel flag had flown since yesterday, and took over the section.

At least seven of the rebels were slain.

DEATH TOLL MOUNTS

These known dead brought to 85 the number slain in the anarchist revolutionary movement which broke out Friday and which flared with new violences in Central and Northeasteren Spain yesterday.

Swarming over the walls of the improvised fortress, formerly a convent, the soldiers quickly took over the barracks, which had been the most bitterly contested point in the more than three days' scattered fighting.

230 UNDER ARREST

Meanwhile, with the situation in other parts of the revolt-affected region remaining tense, the government considered declaring martial law.

At Barcelona early this morning authorities stationed 14 trucks carrying machine gunners in districts held by extremists to halt the terrorist bombings and incendiarism.

As the authorities in Madrid sought to counteract extremist activities, which included nearly a score of bombings last night and early today, police announced 230 persons had been placed under arrest—15 of them Communists.

VET BONUS BILL TO BE RECALLED

HARRISBURG, Dec. 11.—The solders' bonus bill, passed by the Legislature last week, is to be recalled from the Governor tonight because of the discovery of a discrepancy between the bill's provisions and the limitations of the constitutional amendment authorizing the bonus.

In the bill, which is the enabling act for the amendment, awards are provided fo rthe unremarried widows or the minor children of the eligible veterans who have died since the war.

The amendment itself provided only for bonuses to veterans and made no mention of the widows or heirs.

Original 'Capt. Flagg' Killed by Hit-Run Auto

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Maj. Philip Townsend Case, 44, of the Marine Corps, retired, the original of "Capt. Flagg" in "What Price Glory," was killed last night when struck down by a motor car.

A motorist who witnessed the accident took the number of the car which struck the officer, and several hours later a Negro letter carrier, Melvin Sweeney, was arrested and held for arraignment on a homicide charge.

Maj. Case supplied Laurence Stallings with the basis of facts for the stage character "Captain Flagg" in the play of men at war which Stalling and Maxwell Anderson wrote, but it was another officer who suggested the swaggering characteristics with which Stallings and Anderson fitted their Flagg.

Maj. Case, who was a captain in the regiment in which Stallings, then a lieutenant, fought during the World War, resented references to himself as "Capt. Flagg,"—the Capt. Flagg who, sending a subordinate on a dangerous mission in the war play, said:

"Keep your head down. I'm short of gravediggers."

A friend of Stallings quoted Stallings today as having said:

"Case was the most extraordinary commanding officer I have ever seen. If Case had been in charge of the Army he would have fought right through to Berlin."

Envoy White Returns, Raps Leaky Legation

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Francis White, United States minister to Czechoslavakia, returned on the S. S. Washington today and admitted that he has resigned because of insufficient compensation.

White was appointed by President Roosevelt last August after 19 years of diplomatic service. The retiring minister said:

"The United States government owns in Praha an antiquated house that is absolutely uninhabitable. The roof leaks, the stone window ledges are crumbling. Why, the house is older than America itself.

"We kept a legation officer in the house but my wife and I had to live in a hotel. There were no kitchens in the house, no electric lights. The windows were broken.

"The government sent over an architect to look at the place. He recommended changes that would cost $200,000. So, the government decided to spend $6,000."

White lives in Baltimore.

KILLER SUSPECT SPIRITED OVER STATE BORDER

Guardsmen Mobilized In Oklahoma; Kansas To Block Mob

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Rushed out of Oklahoma to forestall possible mob violence, Jack Wisdom, Kansas cowboy wanted in connection with three killings, was brought to the Kansas State Reformatory here today for safekeeping.

Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, announced at Topeka that he would call out the National Guard if it became necessary to protect Wisdom. The Governor said:

"I intend to maintain law and order in Kansas."

READY TO MOBILIZE

The Governor and Brig. Gen. Milton R. McClean were keeping in close touch with the situation and had National Guardsmen in readiness for immediate mobilization if it became evident mob action was imminent.

National Guard batteries had been mobilized at Enid and Kingfisher, Okla., last night upon orders of Gov. W. H. Murray, of Oklahoma, after reports were circulated that a mob was forming in an effort to seize Wisdom, who was captured yesterday near Jay, Okla.

The Oklahoma Governor had instructed the troops to "shoot to kill" if necessary.

BODY FOUND

Wisdom was captured yesterday shortly before the body of Mrs. Harry Pritchard, of Wichita, Kan., was found under a culvert near Kingfisher.

A man's body, believed to be that of her husband was found today along a graveled highway three miles north and one mile east of El Reno by two officers. The sheriff here was notified.

The Wichita merchant and his wife disappeared November 23 after seeking to collect from Wisdom for a worthless check for $21.40. Wisdom also is charged with the murder of Emery Large, elderly cowboy on a ranch near Meade, Kan.

He Jumped Out

DEAN BURFORD

Pilot Burford, whose radioed "Well, it looks like I can't make it" was last heard from him over the Alleghenies until he 'phoned, said he had parachuted to earth.

2 MAIL PLANES CRASH IN SNOW

Burford farm, between Portage and Ebensburg.

Meanwhile, the City-County Airport here was giving ear to the plight of Andrews, westbound from New York. Andrews apparently heard Burford broadcasting his difficulties, since the plane radios are equipped for receiving as well as broadcasting.

Ice was forming on Andrews' ship, he said. Tersely, he described:

"It's getting heavier all the time and the snow is getting thicker.

"If it gets any heavier, and I lose any more altitude, I'll have to leave."

He continued on, flying blind. Finally:

"I'm leaving."

That was the last heard from him until three hours later, when he notified airport officials he had landed safely at Roaring Springs, south of Altoona. He had to walk to Roaring Springs to report.

Burford's plane was found shortly after 8 a. m., two miles north of Portage. The Transcontinental and Western Air Line, for which both pilots were flying, had not determined the damage.

While Andrews was missing, firemen from Blairsville along the route of the dangerous Allegheny crossing, sped eastward along the William Penn Highway and flashed powerful search lights in an attempt to locate the pilot. They reported that the swirling snow made visibility virtually impossible

One plane, flight No. 3, from Newark, westbound, got through the snow and landed at the airport at 12:05 a. m., the last ship to get safely over the mountains.

Airport attaches said that for the first time on record they had been in touch with a pilot up to the time he quit his ship in the mountains. Andrews is the oldest pilot in point of service employed by TWA. Both ships were single-motored, low-winger monoplanes.

Postal authorities left here at 4:30 a. m., to take charge of the mail. Burford took part of his cargo with him when he "went over the side" and deposited it at the Portage postoffice. Since both fliers shut off the ignition on the ships, the danger of fire was minimized.

3 BANKS REOPEN HERE FREEING $1,600,000

Crafton, Blairsville And Braddock Houses Resume Business

Christmas assumed a brighter hue to many residents of the Pittsburgh district with the reopening today of three banks, making available to depositors more than $1,600,000 tied up since the banking holiday.

The banks reopened were the new Crafton National, replacing the old First National there; the reorganized First National at Braddock, and the First National, Blairsville.

The new Crafton Bank released approximately $400,000 to depositors of the old institution. Sixty per cent is being made available and the rest withheld until slow assets of the bank can be liquidated.

Approximately $1,200,000 was released with the opening of the Braddock Bank, representing 65 per cent of deposits.

Sixty-five per cent of deposits were made available to depositors with the reopening of the Blairsville National Bank, according to H. P. Rhoads, the conservator.

3 DIE IN DANCE GRIND FIRE

HAMPDEN, Me., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The gay and stormy history of Hampden's marathon dancing contest has ended in tragedy.

Fire, breaking out last night while a blizzard howled outside the pavilion and the footsore contestants rested in their cots, cost the lives of at least three and brought injuries to many more.

From the blazing Paradise dance hall, where they had plodded many weary weeks. The thinly clad dancers fled into the bitter gale. They forgot the prizes for which they struggled as they plunged knee-deep in snow drifts piled high by a 30-hour storm.

The victims, all men, were tentatively identified as John Ryan, of New York City; Emile Pelletier, of Waterville, Me., and Gerties Sangia of Dracut, Mass.

Many of the survivors suffered severe frost bites in addition to their burns.

The origin of the blaze was uncertain, but several of the survivors believed the pavilion's chimney had been toppled by the storm. The marathon opened five weeks ago.

FLOODS SWEEP CITIES IN WEST

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A score of Western Washington cities and towns had the highest flood waters in years swirling about and through them today, while authorities sought the bodies of possible victims.

The high waters were described in various districts in these terms: Longview—"Cowlitz highest since flood of 1896;" Auburn—"Worst in 21 years;" Tacoma—"The worst flood in the history of the Puyallup and White River."

Despite hundreds of families being marooned, however, or being forced to evacuate hurriedly or be carried to safety in boats, no verified reports of flood deaths had been obtained. Thousands of acres of land were under water, and virtually all main highways were closed.

BRIDGE CROWN FOR CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Four Cincinnati players became the national open contract team-of-four bridge champions in the wee, small hours of Sunday, by playing a system whose chief injunction they described as:

"Don't bid on 'lousy' hands when sitting third or fourth."

The team, consisting of Charles A. Hall, R. M. Wildberg, Albert and Phil Steiner, in acquiring the title, vanquished quartets led by P. Hal Sims and Oswald Jacoby, which finished second and third, respectively.

Shortly before the tournament conducted by the American Bridge League ended, Sims' team had a chance to take the title by winning the last four games of the session.

But the best Sims' group could do in the final exciting rush was to get four ties, and the tourney ended with a 51 score for the Hall team at the top, while Sims, S. G. Churchill, Waldemar von Sedtwitz, all of New York, and B. J. Becker, of Philadelphia, followed with 49½.

Man End Own Life, Kills 3 Puppies With Gas

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The bodies of Ernest Evans, 51, and his three fox terrier puppies were found in Evans' new automobile behind the closed door of his garage yesterday.

Police said they found a note indicating that Evans, an accountant, was depressed over financial conditions and in taking his own life decided to take those of his dogs, too, fearing they would not be properly cared for after he had gone. Death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Husband Released In Wife's Death

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Pasquale Costanzo, in jail for several weeks while authorities investigated the murder of his wife, Marian, was released today on a writ of habeas corpus. The District Attorney did not oppose granting of the writ.

Much of the investigation has centered in Bradford, Pa., where Costanzo was visiting when the woman's body was found near here Thanksgiving morning. She had been strangled.

TOBACCO SCION, GIRL IN RAID ON PENTHOUSE

Young Halliwell Held On Complaint Of Wife

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—A penthouse raid at 1070 Park avenue resulted yesterday in the arraignment in Harlem Court of Walter S. Halliwell, son of one of the founders of the American Tobacco Company, and Mrs. Helen D. Williams, former "Scandals" beauty.

They were released in $1,000 bail bond each as fugitives from justice. The arrests followed the filing of a statutory charge in Litchfield, Conn., at the instigation of Halliwell's wife, Mrs. Lillian Halliwell. Adjournment of the case until December 18 was granted on request of counsel for Halliwell and Mrs. Williams.

Halliwell and Mrs. Williams were arrested Saturday evening. The warrant containing the Connecticut charge is dated June 18, 1933.

Police Sergt. Rose, of Connecticut, said when he and other police called at the Halliwell penthouse Mrs. Williams' mother, Mrs. Charles Cox, opened the door. Mrs. Cox told them, Rose said, that another daughter, Mrs. Marion Levake, was there.

Rose said Halliwell was found in a locked bedroom and Mrs. Williams on a terrace. Rose said additional police had to be summoned before Halliwell consented to arrest.

The Halliwells left Southern Pines, N. C., about a year ago and went to live at Pinesholm, the former home of Walton Green, author, near Litchfield. Last July, Mrs. Halliwell filed suit for divorce in Litchfield. The case has not yet been heard.

Mrs. Halliwell, who is 45 and has been married before, alleges Halliwell has an income of $120,000 a year. The grounds alleged in the divorce complaint are adultery in the Township of Litchfield and intolerable cruelty.

OPERATION MAY UNLOCK JAWS

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A 17-year-old girl afflicted for more than five years with a bone disease which threatens to lock her jaw permanently, in anticipating a happy Christmas.

She has won the concent of her parents to an operation in an attempt to arrest the disease. Several times in the last five years, she revealed in Juvenile Court last week, her parents have prevented her from accepting treatment by public health workers.

Now Dr. M. N. Federspiel, prominent Milwaukee surgeon, has volunteered to give his services and provide hospital facilities for the operation without charge. He said last night he had not decided definitely on the date, but indicated he would operate as soon as possible, probably before Christmas.

3 Held in Operation Periling Mother, Baby

Two men and a woman were being held today for investigation in connection with an operation which imperiled the life of an 18-year-old mother and her baby, according to police.

Those held at a hearing in Morals Court yesterday were Steve Murphy, 30, of 23 Lodge street; Lawrence Augustynowicz, 40, of 410 Mt. Troy road, and Anna Tully, 35, of 422 Arch street, North Side.

MRS. FRANCES H. MARSALIS

WOMEN FLIERS FORCED DOWN

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Inability to refuel their plane because of high winds today forced down Viola Gentry and Mrs. Frances Harrell Marsailis, who were attempting to set a refueling endurance airplane record here.

They took off at 2:33 p. m. (Pittsburgh time), yesterday and landed at 11:50 a. m. today.

The women plan a new flight to start tomorrow.

LINDYS' ROUTE OVER JUNGLE

MANAOS, Brazil, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh plan to remain here today and tonight, Pan-American Airways announced. They will leave about 5 a. m. (Pittsburgh time) to reach home for Christmas.

Their immediate destination was not known, but intimates said they would go by way of Trinidad and Puerto Rico.

They came down here yesterday at the end of a 932-mile flight from Para, Brazil, a coastal city at the mouth of the Amazon. The hop required seven hours and 37 minutes.

As the Colonel brought the plane down to an easy landing in the harbor, canoes immediately flocked out, paddles flashing, to surround the craft. The reception did not end at the docks. They were greeted by crowds all along the way to the residence of Henrique Pinto, their host while in Manaos.

IRELAND HUNTS O'DUFFY

DUBLIN, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Political tension in Ireland was heightened appreciably today by reports that shots were fired at a touring party carrying William T. Cosgrave and the issuing of a warrant for the arrest of Gen. Eoin O'Duffy.

Cosgrave, former president of the Free State executive council, was endangered at Annagary, County Donegal, last night, when his touring party was fired on. Officers returned the fire. No one was hurt.

Gen. O'Duffy, co-leader of the United Ireland party and organizer of the outlawed "Blue Shirt" movement—an affiliate of Cosgrave's in the fight on the government of President Eamon de Valera—was described as fleeing from arrest, but authorities said his apprehension was expected momentarily.

YOUNG FATHER ADMITS KILLING BABY GIRL

Collected Insurance Of $100 and Bought Second-Hand Auto

DANIELSON, Conn., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Andrew Yuamcioz, 22, of Moosup, today faces a charge of premeditated murder lodged by state police of the Danielson Barracks in connection with the death of his 7-months-old daughter, Mary Katherine.

The baby's body was exhumed today in a cemetery near Moosup. Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, of the Connecticul state police, said that Yuamcioz had confessed killing the baby and collecting a $100 insurance policy on her life.

Urquhart said that Yuamcioz bought a second hand automobile here on a conditional bill of sale on November 17, and almost at the same time disappeared. The company which had sold him the car notified the state police.

In the investigation which followed, Urquhart said, it was revealed that Yuamcioz's baby had died just before he left, under circumstances which had aroused the suspicions of his wife, who is about to have another child, and neighbors to whom she told her story.

Yuamcioz was brought back here from Norfolk, Va., on Friday at the behest of Connecticut state police on a charge of transporting a car on which money was still owing.

The police, who by this time had entered the case, too, quizzed Yuamcoviz yesterday, they said, until he signed a confession that he killed the child by smothering her with his hands.

Held in Child's Death, Father Bargains for Life

DENVER, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—District Attorney A. T. Monson yesterday indicated Donald K. Smith's offer to plead guilty to a second degree murder charge for the death of his 3-year-old son will be rejected.

Smith said:

"I don't want to die for what I did. I didn't premeditate the killing of my baby. It was in sudden anger and through uncontrollable temper that I shook and kicked the baby so hard that he died.

"I am willing to pay for my mistake by taking second degree and life imprisonment."

'Innocent,' Says Man, Held In Wife-Children Slaying

DUNCAN, Okla., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Robert F. Hayter, accused of the "locked house" murders at Lawton of his wife and two children, lost his dejected air last night and predicted confidently that "the whole thing will come out before long."

"I am innocent."

That is what the middle-aged refrigerator salesman said, intimating that his surviving daughter, Virginia, a school teacher, and a Lawton friend were conducting a quiet investigation.

The daughter visited Hayter in the jail here and afterwards the accused man said:

LIPSTICK WINS WIFE DIVORCE

Lipstick, powder puffs, letters and pictures of other women which Mrs. Pauline M. McMunn, of 3024 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport, testified she found in her husband's clothing won her a divorce today from Oliver J. McMunn, of Verona.

The wife told Judge S. H. Gardner that she found articles belonging to her husband's girl friends regularly when she pressed his clothing.

She described him as a "wonderful host to his own friends," but rude to her associates. They were married May 23, 1921. The wife said her husband was an office manager for the Duquesne Light Company.

Mary Lewis Gift Organ Dedicated

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A new $17,500 organ in the Catholic Church of the Holy Cross on West Forty-second street was dedicated last night by the Most Rev. James E. Kearney, bishop of Salt Lake City, at a special musical service.

The organ was a gift from Mary Lewis, former soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and her husband, Robert L. Hague. Miss Lewis participated in the service, singing three solos.

JUDGE ASSERTS MOB'S GUILT

JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Circuit Judge J. V. Gaddy told the grand jury, convened today to investigate the lynching November 28 of Lloyd Warner, Negro youth accused of attacking a white woman, that "every man who was active in that mob is guilty of murder in the first degree and should be indicted."

He said:

"That applies whether he helped break down the jail, grabbed the prisoner, stabbed him, placed the noose around his neck, or set fire to the body."

Henry Krug, chairman of the board of directors of the American National Bank and president of the Public Library Board, was named as foreman of the grand jury, which is composed of leading citizens.

The judge said:

"That lynching was not done by men whose moral standards, you will find, are little higher than those of the man lynched. That lynching was murder, nothing but cowardly, despicable murder, and its motive was, as is every motive for murder, hate."

WIDOW ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Mrs. John Rohrberg, 42, of 72 Transvaal avenue, Ross Township, sat calmly in Criminal Court today while a jury was being selected to try her on a murder charge in connection with the shooting of her husband.

The defendant claims the husband, Joseph, 48, was killed when she seized a pistol after he had threatened to kill her early in the morning of October 7. He had been drinking, she said.

The trial opened before Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County. Assistant District Attorney M. Barney Cohen is the prosecutor and Attorney Thomas M. Marshall, Jr., defense counsel.

5-Story Fall Kills Symphony Violinist

Greenville Leader Dies in Auto Mishap

GREENVILLE, Pa., Dec. 11.—Frank A. McClimans, 68, retired hardware dealer and a Democratic candidate for burgess at the November election, was killed today when struck by an automobile driven by Samuel E. Brandt, Greenville Steel Car official.

Glass Eye Clinches Divorce for Man

Eidinger testified before Judge S. H. Gardner:

"I lost my eye in the war and had to remove my glass eye at night. I told her that before we were married. But after our marriage she would not permit me to remove the artificial eye and the other became inflamed."

The husband also testified his wife wouldn't permit him to bring in his friends and wanted to live with her people rather than in a home with her husband. They were married July 11, 1930, and separated in September, 1932, the husband testified.

Hollywood Stars' Legs Eyed by Ad Censors

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Hollywood "leg art"—as the unesthetic call it—is being subjected to internal censorship.

The legs of Marlene Dietrich, the decollete of Mae West, and the advertising charms of other movie stars of Hollywood, are being passed upon by an advertising council selected by the major producing companies.

Member companies of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., presided over by Will Hays, recently voted for such a higher court of advertising manners.

There are three members on the judging council with J. J. McCarthy, veteran advertising executive of the industry, acting as chairman. The work of the council is aided by a staff of 12.

McCarthy said today that the advertising code of the association had been in existence since June, 1930. The members of the organization voted on last November 20 to enlarge the code and the present council, now functioning, was the result.

HIGH WIND FANS DOWNTOWN BLAZE

A Lawrenceville woman was driven from her home, three downtown buildings were fired and an Oakland drugstore was damaged by flames early today.

A strong, biting wind hampered firemen, but they succeeded in battling the fire, which spread from the basement to the roof of the three-story brick building at 324 Liberty avenue which houses the Railroad Storage Company.

The flames shot up the elevator shaft to the roof and spread to the adjoining buildings of Walter F. Hartman Company, wallpaper firm, and the Esser Brothers costume shop.

But the flames never got beyond the roofs of the adjoining buildings and in the Railroad Storage Company home, which is owned by M. B. Kline. Battalion Chief Frank Jones estimated the damage at not more than $5,000.

TRAFFIC TIED UP

The alarm was sent in by Max Newstein, attendant at a nearby gasoline station.

Street car traffic to the West End was tied up for 45 minutes while firemen fought the flames.

In Lawrenceville, Miss Margaret Fogarty, 59, was led from her two-story brick-frame house at 334 Forty-fifth street by firemen who extinguished the flames which originated in the rear of the house.

Miss Fogarty was awakened by a neighbor, Mrs. Peter Cavanaugh, who was sweeping the snow from her sidewalk when another neighbor, Mrs. Elizabeth McHale, yelled that smoke was issuing from the Fogarty home.

AWAKENED BY NEIGHBOR

Mrs. Cavanaugh pounded on the Fogarty front door with her broom-handle to awaken Miss Fogarty. Then she telephoned the alarm.

The fire spread to a small section of the Cavanaugh home at 336 Forty-fifth street.

Origin of the fire was not determined immediately. Miss Fogarty said her gas had been hut off six months ago. She lives there alone.

of immediately, and that the appropriation be cut in half.

There may be a move in the Senate to reduce the allotment to aged persons to $20 a month.

Another proposal, supported by the Republican organization leaders, is to place half the cost of old age assistance on the counties. This was attempted in the House and was defeated.

A bill by Senator Frank J. Harris, similar to the Blumberg bill, is resting in a Senate committee. If it, or the Blumberg bill, does not come out tonight or tomorrow it is assumed an effort will be made to discharge the committee. A similar effort last year failed.

Other social legislation bills will engage attention of the legislature during the week, among them measures for limited dividend housing corporations. They were introduced by Representative John J. Kane, of Pittsburgh, and are designed to cure slum conditions. A state board of housing would be created to supervise the corporations, which are granted the right of eminent domain or condemnation, now granted only to public authority.

It is the latter phase of the program which is causing the greatest trouble. Because of it the bills were blocked in the last session by Senator William C. Hunsicker, of Philadelphia.

Representative Wilson L. Yeakel, a Grundy follower, and chairman of the Labor Committee, will precipitate a House revolt if he persists in his effort to bury several bills now held in his committee. Last week the House adopted a resolution demanding that Yeakel call his committee together immediately.

BATTLE INDICATED

So far he has not done so, saying he will act only when he sees fit. If he does not "see fit" tonight there is going to be a fight, in which Yeakel and the reactionaries of the Republican organizationa probably will be overturned.

A minimum wage bill by Representative Norbert Fitzgerald, Erie, has passed the House, and is now before the Senate, where its status is in doubt.

Legislation for assistance to needy school districts is imperative, but as yet there is no sign of anything being done. Gov. Pinchot recommends an income tax bill for eventual school revenue, but this would do no good in the present emergency. The Senate has passed a bill transferring $5,000,000 from the motor license funds to schools, but rural members of the House disapprove, and the Governor heretofore has threatened to veto any transfer of highway funds.

Legislation for minimum hours of labor is blockaded, as well as ratification of the federal child labor amendment to the Constitution.

A big drive is to be made for these bills, and may frustrate the desire of the regular Republican leaders to adjourn the Legislature next week with practically nothing done outside of liquor legislation.

Pittsburgh Cleaning Firm Heard by NRA

Philadelphia Case Involves Bomb Tossing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Reports of bombing and terroristic methods to force compliance with the minimum dry cleaning prices established under the trade's fair practice code in Philadelphia today marked the opening of NRA's mass hearing into charges of violations.

Also heard was the case of the Howard Cleaners, operating stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. Arthur G. Brody, Memphis attorney, said the group he represented desired to co-operate and had done its best but would be driven out of business as cash and carry operators if they had to charge the same prices as delivery cleaners.

Asked by officials what differential was asked he said at least 20 per cent. However, he had no technical figures on operating costs to present and principals of the chain were not present.

Brody said the Howard Cleaners operated 16 stores in Pittsburgh and Cincinnati and 30 in St. Louis, employing approximately 200 persons.

The first defendant summoned to explain why he was not abiding by the prices established under the code was Bernard Shatkin, of Philadelphia, operator of the Virginia Snow Cleaners and Dyers, who charged that the Philadelphia Cleaners and Dyers Association had employed gangsters to try to put him out of business.

The booing of Shatkin drew quick censure from Division Administrator Authur W. Whiteside, in charge of the cleaning code.

Shatkin's argument, when advised by officials to discontinue oratory and give facts, was that he could make a profit in his cash and carry cleaning business charging 40 cents a suit instead of the 85 cents minimum for Philadelphia.

40-MILLION AID PLAN OPPOSED

HARRISBURG, Dec. 11.—The Senate considers on final passage tonight the Talbot bill appropriating $40,000,000 for relief, which is double the amount recommended by the Governor.

Although refusing direct comment, Gov. Pinchot today said he had not agreed to "go along" with the Legislature in boosting to $40,000,000 the amount of money allocated to relief.

The Scott bill placing limitations on the use of highways by trucks on week-ends also gets third reading. The upper branch will give second reading to the Sterling bill providing funds for operating state liquor stores.

The House will give final consideration to the McElwee bill prohibiting the establishment of liquor stores or the sale of liquor in districts which voted "dry" at the November election. It also will vote finally on the Lose bill making appropriations for Pennsylvania's blind.

Several election bills are to receive the attention of committees and may get to the floor for a vote before the night session ends.

JOBS IN CENSUS ASSURED HERE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—White-collar jobs for hundreds of unemployed men and women in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County were assured today by the Civil Works Administration in its announcement of an allotment of $5,415,120 to enable the Bureau of Census immediately to inaugurate a series of statistical studies in business and government.

Except for a few technically trained experts who will act as supervisors, the personnel will be selected by the United States Employment Service. Approximately 27,000 persons will be employed in the field outside of Washington. It is stipulated that the field work will be completed by February 15, 1934.

The census projects in the Pittsburgh district will comprise a census of business activities to be carried on with the regular biennial census of manufactures; a real property inventory to the extent of use, extent of vacancy, extent of overcrowding, financial phases and other data; analysis of the real estate taxation problem, and an index of local business concerns.

Based on population ratios, Allegheny County's share of the allotment will be about $60,000. The exact amount will be worked out later.

HARDWARE MEN TO FIGHT CODE

Drastic modification of the retail store code by the NRA will be demanded by the Pennsylvania and Atlantic Seaboard Hardware Association during its annual convention in Pittsburgh next February, officials announced yesterday.

Code regulations applying to individual storekeeping hamper the hardware dealer competing with chain, department and mail order branch stores, it was charged by W. Glenn Pearce, managing director of the organization, which includes a membership of 3,000 retailers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

The convention will be held at the William Penn Hotel February 27 and 28 and March 1 and 2.

PA. INSURANCE QUIZ SPURRED

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 11.—Warren Van Dyke, state Democratic chairman, today took up demands for a thorough investigation of the State Insurance Department and asked that the Republican majority in control of the Legislative inquiry be supplanted by members of his party.

Demands for a continuance of the inquiry by a joint legislative committee were voiced on the floor of the House December 4 by Representative Herbert B. Cohen, York, who charged the department had failed to protect the interests of policy holders in several insurance companies now in the hands of receivers.

Van Dyke today asserted:

"Cohen charged—and his accusations have not been answered—that two mergers of companies in 'shaky condition' were sanctioned by the State Insurance Department."

POTTERS WIN PAY INCREASE

CLEVELAND, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Some 16,000 union pottery workers throughout the country were happy today with a 12½ per cent horizontal wage increase, the largest in the industry's history.

The wage boost, taking effect immediately, was announced here by Charles Goodwin, in joint behalf of the United States Potters' Association and the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

The agreement followed a week of friendly conferences between representatives of the two organizations, including Jams M. Duffy, president of the brotherhood, and Joseph M. Wells, chairman of the association, of which Goodwin is the secretary.

Although the workers had asked a flat increase of 25 per cent, Duffy indicated the compromise was well received.

11 Nuns Trapped In Convent Blaze

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Eleven nuns were trapped by fire on the second story of the St. Blase School and Convent in Summit, Ill., today by flames that swept the basement and first floor.

Four women were carried out by firemen, overcome by the smoke. The rest were assisted to safety. The damage was estimated at $5,000.

Travelers' Group Decides on NRA Code

The Tri-State Commercial Travelers Association at a meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday decided upon an NRA code embracing commercial travelers. The meeting was attended by traveling men from points in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. Officers were elected as follows:

RUSSIA HAILS BULLITT ON ARRIVAL

MOSCOW, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The Star Spangled Banner flew officially over Moscow today for the first time in the history of the Soviet republic, honoring the arrival of United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt.

The first thing that greeted him when he reached the National Hotel was a large, silken Old Glory fluttering on the staff over the hotel entrance.

Bullitt doffed his gray fedora to the flag as he alighted from the automobile which carried him from the station.

MEMBERS OF PARTY

He was accompanied by his 9-year-old daughter, Anne; Joseph Flack, first secretary of the American embassy in Berlin; Keith Merrill, the State Department's embassy construction expert, and George Kennan, Russian-speaking secretary.

America's first Ambassador to the Soviet Union stepped from a private car attached to the regular Moscow train to be greeted by I. A. Davilkovski, of the Russian Foreign Office, who accompanied Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff to the conferences with President Roosevelt at Washington.

Also there to extend greetings were D. T. Flourinsky, chief of the protocal department of the Foreign Office; Alexander Troianovski, Ambassador to the United States; numerous other Foreign Office attaches and a host of minor officials in various government departments.

WELCOMING GROUP

The welcoming group, numbering approximately 50, formed the largest crowd ever assembled to meet an incoming foreign ambassador.

As a score of photographers snapped their cameras and movie apparatus hummed, Divilkovski tendered Bullitt Litvinoff's personal greetings.

Preserving the silence he has maintained since leaving Washington as to the policies governing the new embassy in Moscow, Bullitt went directly to the hotel.

He announced that his first official act will be to present his credentials to President Michael Kalinin at an official visit arranged for December 13.

Then he added that he would remain here only long enough to consider an embassy site, returning to Washington to recruit his staff before taking up his regular duties.

OHIO WORKERS ON STRIKE

DOVER, O., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Picket lines were formed about the plants of the Reeves Manufacturing Company and the Greer Steel Company today shortly after members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers declared strikes effective at once.

Officials of the association announced the strikes were in protest against non-recognition and discrimination. The two companies employ more than 1,000 workers.

Union employes, the labor officials asserted, have been discharged in a retrenchment program.

A. J. Krantz, general manager of the Reeves company, and H. C. Cappel, general manager of the Greer Steel Company, issued statements saying their concerns had signed NRA codes, had recognized the principle of collective bargaining and had discharged employes when conditions necessitated without regard to union affiliations.

NRA WON'T FIX FOOD PRICE

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—NRA will not fix food prices under the new codes ready today for President Roosevelt's signature, but selling goods below cost to attract customers is forbidden expressly.

The codes, covering wholesale, retail and manufacturing grocers with an annual business of $8,000,000,000 in more than 300,000 concerns, specify, however, that all goods must be sold at a minimum price covering cost, plus a percentage for overhead.

NRA has started a grocer survey to determine the percentage to be added to cost to cover overhead. The general retail code calls for 15 per cent. Grocers feel 7½ per cent is ample.

LIQUOR PRICES READY BEFORE STORES OPEN

HARRISBURG, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Robert S. Gawthrop, chairman of the State Liquor Control Board, today said that price lists on state liquor stores probably will be available before the stores open on January 2.

Arthur K. Comly, of Philadelphia, has been retained by the board to make initial liquor purchases to stock the stores, and is investigating markets.

It is probable that the 242 stores will be stocked with a diversified line of whiskies, brandies, wines and cordials.

MORE OPTIONS TAKEN

While money rolled into the state treasury from liquor licenses, the Control Board today took options on 22 additional state store sites where liquor will be sold by the bottle and case after January 1.

To date, $631,520 from liquor licenses has been earmarked for distribution to counties in which restaurants, hotels and clubs have been granted permits. An additional $14,700 is being retained by the state stores fund.

The board has issued 2,160 licenses—1,231 to restaurants, 542 to hotels, 383 to clubs, three to importers and one to a sacramental wine dealer.

STORE SITES LISTED

Among tentative state store sites announced today were:

Washington—Donora, 439 McKean avenue, and McDonald, 123 South McDonald street.

Greene—Waynesburg, southeast corner of High and Richhill streets.

Armstrong—Leechburg (street address not announced).

By working Sunday, a special force in the Department of Public Instruction completed the task of classifying 57,148 applications for state store jobs. Of the total, 22,445 were rejected.

About 2,500 positions, paying from $900 to $5,000 a year, are to be filled.

TESTS ON SATURDAY

Applicants will be examined Saturday at 40 centers throughout the state. They are being notified today and tomorrow where they will take the tests.

The number of centers in Allegheny and Philadelphia counties already has been increased. Allegheny County examinees will report to Schenley, Fifth Avenue, Allderdice, Peabody, South and Oliver High schools.

The examinations will be graded at the University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburgh, Temple University and the Pennsylvania State College. Under the law, the board is to select its employes from this list, taking the individuals with the highest ranking first.

Winners will be certified to the Control Board for jobs.

The board has rejected 50 applications for hotel, restaurant and club licenses, either because specifications of the law were not complied with or because the applicant has been involved in violations of the prohibition laws.

Hearings in 12 cases delayed to permit further investigation will be held tomorrow.

MORE CCC CASH TO BE ASKED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt intends asking Congress for further funds to continue the Civilian Conservation Corps another year.

Working in the nation's forests on a scale never before attempted, the corps represents one of the first steps in his recovery program. In addition, it is putting into practice a long held desire of the Chief Executive to protect forest resources.

More than 300,000 men, recruited mainly from the unemployed, have been established in 1,500 camps in the task of developing 600,000,000 acres of timberland. The first enlistment was for six months, with re-enlistment permitted at the expiration of that period in order that vacancies could be filled.

In entering the winter camps, now in full working force, the corpsmen went under their second enlistment, which will expire next spring. The President is hopeful Congress will provide funds for further work.

Sherry, Cognac Pointers Given By Wine Expert

By A. ALBERT
Maitre D'Hotel, Hotel William Penn.

(This is the sixth of a series that will specify the proper wine to serve on every occasion; deal with question of temperature, etc., and list the proper type serving glass.)

Sherry and cognac are two more interesting wines.

The pure Spanish sherry is both an economically and medicinally beneficial wine. Spain restricts it to the national name of sherry. The vineyards of the south of Spain produce the wine—with the best known being shipped from Jerez de la Frontera.

FERMENTATION PROCESS

Sherry is the only wine that one can sip while smoking. It is made of white grapes and the process of its fermentation and blending is interesting. Sulphate of lime, obtained by burning native earth of Jerez to a dust, is sprinkled on the "mosto," or pulp, as an essential part of the process.

Sherr wines include Amontillado, a higher class of developed wine; Fino, delicate, soft, mellow and pale; Oloroso, full nutty avor and deep colored; and Raya, of inferior development.

Sherry, contrary to t[he] common practice of serving cold, [s]hould be drunk at room temperatu[re]. It is appropriately served in tapered stem glasses, wide at the top. It is appropriately served an aperitif (at times mixed with Vermouth) and only with clear soups. A glass of Sherry with the yolk of a raw egg is invigorating.

COGNAC DISCUSSED

The term "Cognac" is applied to a certain class of brandy. The term brandy is derived from the German word Brantwein meaning burned, distilled wine. The old town of Cognac, north of the river Gironde, France, is the principal market center.

The longer Cognac is kept in special oakwood cooperage, the finer the boquet, the milder the taste and the darker the color. Cognac is aged in the following maturities: One star signifies 5 years; 2 stars, 8 years; 3 stars, 12 years; V. O., very old; V. S. O., very superior old; V. S. O. P., very superior old pale; fine champagne, 50 to 90 years.

While it is served most commonly in a small cordial glass or pony, it is best drunk when very old in large balloon-shaped glasses especially blown in Liege, Belgium. I would say large enough to contain 8 ounces.

Wines of Italy will be discussed tomorrow.

BANS LICENSES FOR N.Y. 'DIVES'

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—While a few speakeasies are receiving liquor-selling licenses, the future of those notorious dives known as "clip joints" appeared extremely dubious today with Edward P. Mulrooney, state liquor czar, doling out the certificates.

Mulrooney, who pounded a beat when the late Theodore Roosevelt was police commissioner, is calling upon the knowledge he gained in more than 35 years as an officer to determine what places can safely be licensed.

Observing some of the licenses were going to tea rooms, the grizzled chairman of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board said:

"When tea rooms get licenses that spells the death knell of the old saloon."

A "clip joint" is a place where any customer who appears to be prosperous is put to sleep with "knockout drops," robbed and then tossed into an alleyway.

WheelingRoad House Destroyed by Fire

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 11.—(AP.) — The Dells, popular road house in Middle Creek Valley near Wheeling, was destroyed by fire yesterday with a loss, estimated by the owner, Jack Buamann, of Wheeling, at $20,000.

Employes and a small group of guests escaped, but all equipment, including a new bar, musical instruments, 500 chairs and tables, and a large stock of beer and ale, was lost.

HINT LOW RUM TAX AIM OF ROOSEVELT

Massachusetts, and other Republicans.

Parker estimated that the consumption of distilled spirits for the coming year would be about 140,000,000 gallons or about the same as in the pre-war years of 1913 to 1916 unless the present $1.10 a gallon levy was retained, which he said probably would result in a consumption of about 200,000,000 gallons.

Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, brought out the question of illegal liquor, asking Parker if it were true that millions of gallons of smuggled whisky were in this country under the conttrol of a few organizations.

Parker replied that the committee had no way to investigate that, but estimated at least 40,000,000 or 50,000,000 gallons were on hand. He said:

"I cannot see any escape from assuming some such figure. Otherwise the sales could not go on. It takes that much to carry on business.

"That is very important in arriving at a determination of what tax to fix. That 40,000,000 or 50,000,000 gallons will seek to find a market. That liquor will be sold at a low price before it is thrown down the gutter."

Parker predicted a greater volume of imported liquor even with the present $5 duty, but said it would be even larger with a lower tariff. He said:

"Whereas we have been importing in the past from three and a half to four million gallons, I expect 25,000,000 to be imported the first year."

He predicted that Canada would furnish the principal supply for blending, estimating that country has on hand from 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 gallons of "American type whisky."

Parker testified that pre-war revenue from liquor at the rate of $1.10 totaled a little more than $150,000,000, but that this increased to a peak of $343,000,000 under the higher tax levels during the war.

Joseph H. Choate, alcohol administrator, and Edward G. Lowry, special assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, were invited to the liquor revenue conference at the White House between the President, the budget director, Lewis Douglas, and Acting Secretary Morgenthau.

PROTEST GROWS AGAINST AUTO RACE TOLL

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—The crowd roars, and young men meet swift and violent death.

Too many of them have spun their wheels off the steeply banked turns of automobile speedways in this state—and a wave of public protest is under way.

Death is the lure which draws the crowds, spectacular smashes provide the thrills—and the turnstile clicks to the profit of the automobile racing promoters.

CIVIC LEADERS RISE

Civic leaders over the state have risen in protest, and a well defined movement is under way to force racing promoters to provide protection for race drivers and their dependents. Protection by remodeling the dangerous speedways with their "death curves"—and protection by posting bond to provide for those left behind if any more young men sacrifice their lives to thrill the crowds.

At the Oakland speedway, within the last year or so, two young men have been crushed to death by their speeding cars and a score more have been maimed, some permanently.

Down in Los Angeles, the dangerous Ascot speedway has accounted for four lives and an imposing list of injured.

San Jose, with its dirt track, has seen any number of young men injured and maimed.

While 100,000 spectators cheered the winner of the Indianapolis "500-mile classic" last May, three drivers, each less than 30 years of age, lay dead.

"LEGALIZED MURDER"

"Legalized murder must stop," civic leaders have averred, and there are those who plan to do something about it.

Assemblyman Eugene W. Roland, who represents the district where the Oakland speedway is situated, today branded automobile racing as a "terrible sacrifice of human life," saying:

"I have noted the mounting list of fatalities and I am firmly convinced there are too many deaths; too many injuries to warrant the continuance of automobile racing."

Gertrude Atherton, noted novelist, declared:

"When human beings die, it is no sport. People must be tragically hard up for thrills, when they go to auto races to see their fellow creatures killed or maimed."

Bishop Edward L. Parsons declared automobile racing is "pretty poor sport in view of the risks involved."

TWO EXAMPLES

Here are the two brutal spectacles which thrilled the crowds at the Oakland speedway with fatal consequences:

James Sharp, of Los Angeles, youthful driver, lost control of his car rounding a turn at a 100-mile clip, May 8, 1932. Sharp's car hit the fence, vaulted 30 feet in the air and crashed into an unrecognizable mass beyond the embankment. Sharp died at the Fairmount Hospital several hours later.

Bryan Saulspaugh, severely injured in a smash-up at the same track on New Year's Day, 1932, lost his life on April 21, 1933, when his speeding car skidded, somersaulted and rolled upon him.

Spectacular crashes at terrific speed accounted for the lives of "Bob" Carey, Tom Forsyth, Babe Stanyer and Frank Seuss at the Ascot speedway, Los Angeles.

Indianapolis saw the violent deaths of Mark Billman, G. L. Jordan and Les Spangler last Memorial Day.

The list of maimed and injured extends on and on—includes most of the racing drivers, in fact, at one time or another.

While crowds will pay to see "legalized murder" drivers will continue to sacrifice their lives. But the people of California have shown the manifest desire to protect them despite themselves.

MORE TOYS FOR POOR SOUGHT

With only a little more than two weeks left before Christmas, the Toy Mission, with headquarters at 100 Wood street, is appealing today for Pittsburghers to hurry their toy gifts. From almost every section of the city, Pittsburgh school teachers are sending the names of thousands of children who live in homes banned to Santa Claus by poverty.

If the Toy Mission doesn't have toys to give, there will be many empty stockings, George L. Bond, founder of the mission reports. He says:

"Other welfare agencies give food, clothing and shelter, which everyone knows are necessities of life. But to achild, a toy is a necessary thing too.

"There are thousands of little girls in this city who have never played with a doll, and thousands of little boys who have never had a toy train or a box of blocks."

Jilted Suitor Shoots Woman, Ends Life

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(INS.)—Mrs. Dorothy Epp, 33, a divorcee, today was in critical condition from bullet wounds inflicted by George Monsen, Jr., 26, who later fired a bullet into his own head, killing himself at her feet.

Mrs. Epp had spurned Monsen's advances and he threatened her recently, Mrs. Epp told police.

THE PARTY OF 22 SUN-TELEGRAPH BOYS WHO SPENT THE WEEK-END AT NIAGARA FALLS

PREACHER HELD IN SLAYING

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The Rev. C. C. Reneau, a former mission worker, was held today on a murder charge for the slaying of W. N. Shaw, 42. Officers quoted him as saying he fired in defense of himself and his home.

Mr. Reneau, 34, told officers he was suspicious of Shaw's attentions to Mrs. Reneau, 28, and the wife corroborated her husband's story of being threatened by Shaw.

She said the two men had quarreled and she knew her husband was jealous of the man in whose home they had lived several weeks, keeping house for him, while both men were employed under the civil works program. There are three Reneau children.

After his alleged ejection from the home Friday by Shaw, Reneau told officers he bought a pistol, returned to the house before dawn Sunday, saw Shaw sitting on a bed and fired at him through a window.

WHITAKER PUPIL BAN DENIED

Samuel Boot, president of Homestead School Board, denied today having said that several children from Whitaker would be barred today from the Schwab Vocational School in Homestead because the Whitaker School Board is $1,100 in arrears on their tuition.

At the office of the Homestead Superintendent of Schools, however, it was said that "eight or nine" Whitaker children have been barred from the school in accordance with a resolution passed by the Homestead Board on November 24.

At the same meeting, it was said at the superintendent's office, the Mifflin Township School Board was ordered to pay $16,000 tuition now in arrears for its 100 pupils in Homestead schools. No date was set in that resolution for suspension of the children.

Hero of Philippine Rebellion Dies at 80

BALTIMORE, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Maj. Victory H. Bridgman, U. S. A., retired, hero of the Philippine Insurrection, died at the Marine Hospital here yesterday. He was 80 years old.

Ten years ago—more than 20 years after his act of bravery in bringing forward his artillery battalion to form a broken line—Maj. Bridgman received the War Department's silver citation.

Slot Machine Raid Follows Death Probe

Investigation of the death of Walter Kulakowski, 25, of 130 South Twenty-first street, who fell down stairs while visiting at 109 South Twenty-first street, resulted in the arrest of four men. Police said they found slot machines in the building.

They arrested Peter Keldusis, 46, of 109 South Twenty-first street, and three others as witnesses. Kulakowski died in South Side Hospital of a fractured skull.

SUN-TELEGRAPH BOYS SEE FALLS

Twenty-two Sun-Telegraph carrier boys returned to Pittsburgh this morning after spending Sunday at Niagara Falls as the guests of this newspaper. They were the happy winners in a "Fall Round-Up" drive for subscriptions in the various Sun-Telegraph branches throughout the Pittsburgh area.

They left the Pennsylvania Station Saturday night on a special car attached to the Buffalo Express, had breakfast in Buffalo yesterday morning, went to church after breakfast, visited the American side of the Falls by bus, crossed the Peace Bridge to the Canadian side for the other view and had dinner at the General Brock Hotel, at Niagara Falls, Canada; then back to Buffalo for another sight-seeing tour, supper and theater party.

The 22 boys sent back 1,000 souvenir postcards to the new subscribers who had helped them win these glorious trips.

All expenses were paid by the Sun-Telegraph, and no expense was spared that would contribute to the enjoyment of the trip. The party was accompanied by Sun-Telegraph representatives.

Testimonial Dinner Slated for Schrader

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.—(INS.)—Maureen O'Sullivan, Irish film star, today had won her fight against an infection following an appendectomy, physicians revealed. She was removed from a hospital yesterday to her home.

CITIZENS FIGHT OFFER OF UTILITY

Demanding a showdown on the $82,500 "gift" offer of the Duquesne Light Company for a five-year street lighting contract and an obsolete power plant in the Coraopolis waterworks, a citizens' committee of the borough plans to oppose the plan at a hearing before the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission here Wednesday.

Attorney John M. Walker former counsel for Gov. Pinchot in his utilities fight, is representing the citizens' group.

THOROUGH STUDY

Walker says he will ask the commission to make a thorough study of the light company's proposal and will attempt to prove it will be more economical and more advantageous to the community of Coraopolis to operate its own power plant for street lighting.

It is significant, Walker declared, that the light company is furnishing house current on a 25-year contract which has only a few more years to run in the borough. By making the $82,500 "gift" offer, Walker holds it is evident that the light company is attempting to purchase a renewal of this contract.

$75,000 BOND ISSUE

$75,000 bond issue has been provided for the purpose of rebuilding the water plant's power installation to take care of the extra load of street lighting.

The present equipment, according to the citizen's committee, is worth only about $5,000. For this equipment, Attorney Walker declares, the Duquesne Light Company is willing to pay $65,000 cash.

An additional $10,000, according to terms of the contract, is to be paid to Peter Loftus, consulting engineer, retained by the borough and the remaining $7,500 is to provide new electrical equipment for the water plant.

A recent mail poll in the borough, according to Walker, showed public sentiment at 3 to 1 in favor of the municipal-owned street lighting plant.

Musicale Planned At Home for Aged

SALMON SOUP RECIPE WINS PRIZE

'Cake for 2 or 3' Should Interest Small Family

Soups have a way of seeming very usual and unchangeable, but in today's list of prize winners Prudence Penny gives you two very distinctly different soups, one of them the winner of the $5 prize, salmon soup, and the other in the $1 list, a recipe for oven-baked soup.

Another unusual recipe is the one for "cake for 2 or 3," which should prove a boon to the very small family for whom an ordinary sized cake is too large.

Every day Prudence Penny is awarding these prizes of $5 and 10 single dollars to the 11 best recipes received. Why not try your luck? All you have to do is mail your recipes in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, using only one side of the paper to write on and putting your name on top of each sheet. No recipes will be returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

E. M. MORGAN,
Parkers Landing.
SALMON SOUP

One can salmon.
Two quarts whole milk.
Two tablespoons butter.
Remove bones and dark part from salmon. Crush with fork and heat. Add hot milk and season to taste. Serves six or eight. Very good on a cold Sunday night.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. H. F. BOCKSTON,
6528 Darlington road.
MINIKIN JELLY ROLLS

Three-fourths cup sifted Swansdown cake flour.
Three-fourths teaspoon baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Four eggs.
Three-fourths cup sifted sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One cup red currant jelly.
Sift flour once and measure. Combine baking powder, salt, and eggs in bowl. Place over smaller bowl of hot water and beat with rotary egg beater, adding sugar gradually until mixture becomes thick and light-colored. Remove bowl from over hot water. Fold in flour and vanilla. Pour into two pans, 15' x15", lined with greased paper, and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 10 minutes. Turn from pans at once onto cloth covered with confectioner's sugar. Remove paper. Quickly cut off crisp edges of cake, cut each cake into six pieces of equal size, spread with jelly, and roll. Wrap in cloth and cool on rack. Before serving, decorate rolls, if desired, with rosettes and borders of sweetened whipped cream forced through pastry tube. Makes 12 rolls.

MRS. S. R. MOUNTSIER,
149 S. Bryant avenue, Belleville.
GLAZED ONIONS.
(To serve at Christmas Dinner.)

Twelve medium sized onions.
Four teaspoons sugar.
One teaspoon Coleman's mustard.
Six tablespoons butter, melted.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon French's paprika.
Peel onions, cook in boiling water to which salt has been added for 15 minutes. Drain, place in a greased baking dish. Combine sugar, salt, mustard and butter and pour over onions. Sprinkle with paprika and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees Fahrenheit for 20 minutes or until a golden brown.

HELEN CALDWELL,
Box 127, Hickory.
SWEET PICKLED DRIED PEACHES

A good substitute for your favorite fresh peach pickles you will find in sweet pickled dried peaches. Soak the dried peaches over night in cold water. Next morning rub off the skin. Fasten together two half peaches of equal size with cloves and bits of cinnamon. Place them in jars, with an occasional blanched almond to suggest peach kernels, and pour over them hot, sweet spiced vinegar. Seal and let stand a week or more before serving.

MRS. W. HARTMAN,
3028 Banksville road.
FASTNACHT CAKES

Two cups sugar.
One cup lard.
One and one-half pints sour milk.
One teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon cream of tartar.
Add enough flour to stiffen so they roll nicely. Mix and bake in hot lard.

ELMO COOPER,
U. S. Veterans Hospital, Aspinwall.
FLANNEL CAKES

Two eggs, beaten well.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon sugar.
One cup sour milk or sour cream.
One cup flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon baking soda, melted in warm water.
2 tablespoons melted butter.
Mix ingredients in order named and fry in a griddle or skillet, using no grease. The melted butter in the batter removes the necessity of using grease to fry in and you will find these cakes more digestible for that reason. The sugar makes them a beautiful brown.

MRS. ALEX BALOGH,
905 Fourth street, Charleroi.
HUNGARIAN NUT-ROLLS

Two cakes yeast.
One-half cup sugar.
One cup milk.
One-half cup butter.
One teaspoon salt.
Three eggs.
Five cups flour.
One and one-half pounds English walnuts.
One cup sugar.
Cream butter and half of the one-half cup sugar. Add the eggs and salt. Take yeast and crumble in separate bowl with remaining half of the one-half cup of sugar. Dissolve with little of the milk which has been scalded and cooled. Add this, with the flour, to the other mixture and mix good. Then set it aside to raise for about two hours. Take nuts and grind in food chopper and mix the one cup of sugar with it. Take the dough and divide in two parts. Roll it thin. Spread softened butter all over it. Sprinkle the nut mixture thickly on the dough. Then roll it like you would a jelly roll. Put in greased pans and set aside to raise for one-half hour or more. Bake in a moderate over for one hour. When done brush it with butter.

MRS. WILLIAM H. THOMAS,
712 Fourth St., Patterson Heights.
FUDGE SQUARES

Three tablespoons shortening.
One cup white sugar.
One egg.
Two ounces melted unsweetened chocolate.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
One-third cup milk.
One cup flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup nut meats chopped, not too fine.
Melt shortening; add sugar and unbeaten egg; mix well; add chocolate, vanilla, milk and flour which has been sifted with baking powder and salt; add nut meats, mix well. Spread one-half inch thick on greased shallow cake pan. Bake in a slow oven 20 to 30 minutes. Cut in two-inch squares before removing from pan.

MRS. JOSEPH KEZELL,
Adamsburg.
OVEN-BAKED SOUP

Outer skin from 1 pork shank (or end of ham
2 stalks of celery (cut fine)
Several sprigs parsley (cut fine)
½ lb. Roman beans
10 or 12 small potatoes
2 quarts water
Salt
Beans should be soaked in cold water night before. Bring beans to a boil and allow to boil 8 or 10 minutes. In meantime prepare the following: Cut skins of shank or ham in 4 or 5-inch squares. Spread celery, parsley over it—season with salt and pepper—Roll up and tie with piece of string. Place rolled up skins and pared potatoes in 2 quarts water, add salt (season to taste) and bring to a boil.
Drain off water from beans. Pour beans in with potatoes and shank. Cover. Place in oven 350 degrees to 400 degrees and bake from 5 to 6 hours. (Cooking in oven gives this soup a very distinct flavor.

MRS. I. H. GOLDSTEIN,
2145 Wightman street.
CAKE FOR 2 OR 3

Four tablespoons butter.
One-half cup sugar.
One egg, well beaten.
One-half cup milk.
One and one-half cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon flavoring, vanilla or almond.
Cream fat, add sugar and egg. Add flour and baking powder alternately with milk. Add flavoring. Pour into greased pan, bake in oven 350 degrees for 20 minutes. When cool, cut in two, put together with icing, consisting of three-fourths cup sugar and orange juice.

Fudge, Jelly Rolls, Pickled Peaches Claim Awards

MRS. ANTHONY KACENSKI,
1406 Twenty-first avenue,
Beaver Falls.
ITALIAN SPINACH

Cook spinach and chop fine. Mix with grated cheese in proportion of four tablespoons to a quart of spinach. Season with salt and paprika and one beaten egg. Make into flat cakes size of an egg, roll in fine crumbs, then in beaten egg, then in crumbs again and brown in deep fat or on a skillet. Lay the cakes on a hot platter and surround with seasoned white sauce. If a more substantial dish is wanted slice hard boiled eggs over white sauce. Children will eat spinach cooked this way as it resembles hamburg.

JUNIOR PATROL

But before we do we want to remind you again about the Toy Mission. Send your toys to 100 Wood street, downtown, and kind people there will see to it that they are given to boys and girls who live in homes that can't afford to have Santa Claus visit them. Please help fill empty stockings this Christmas, fellows. The Toy Mission needs more toys than ever.

Alfred Wade, of 536 Franklin street, East Pittsburgh, writes this dandy letter:

"I like your radio program. I love to be a Junior Patrol member. I like your comic section very much.

"I got a cold and had a hard time to get well. I want to be a strong member. I am watching others crossing streets. I watch crossing the streets myself."

Well, we are mighty glad to hear it, Alfred. A good many of the captains seem to forget that we would like to know what picture shows and books our Junior Patrol members like the best. So thank you especially, Alfred, for telling us so much news in your letter. Do you belong to a patrol? If you don't maybe you could start one of your own. You write a swell letter for a boy only seven years old.

Now here is a beautiful letter from a new captain, Betty Just, of 58 Orphan street, Pittsburgh. Isn't that a funny name for a street?

"Our first meeting was Wednesday. I was elected captain by the 10 members. Please send the buttons and cards. Dahlia Altier was elected secretary and Theresa Russo treasurer. Everyone has signed the pledges and all agreed to obey them. Is it okey to have the one boy in it because he is so excited to join? We promise to have the best Junior Patrol in this neighborhood. We have programs and plays. We are going to have a Christmas party. The dues are two cents a week. I read the Junior Patrol news in the paper and hear the program over the radio and think it is just grand. Please send the armband and buttons as soon as possible."

You bet we will, Betty. Certainly it is all right to have your one boy member if he wants to be one and all your other members are willing to have him for a member. Maybe later on you will like to ask other boys to join your Patrol too. Lots of luck!

Butcher Hangs Self, Ill Health Blamed

Henry Milm, 50, a butcher, hanged himself in his home, 8000 Frankstown avenue, yesterday, according to a Coroner's report. Despondency over ill health was blamed. Relatives found his body hanging from a rafter in the cellar, according to the report.

Folk Treated With Respect When They Demand It

Are husbands still lords of creation?

And are wives divinely ordained to be doormats?

Yes, I know; such notions were supposed to go out with hoopskirts and antimacassars. But—believe it or not—there are gentlemen who still think that way, and wives who don't know what to do about it. Here's one today. Folks, meet "Confused"—who holds the world's stepped-on record!

Dear Elsie:

I hope you can help me. I don't seem to be able to figure out how to help myself.

This is my second marriage. I was 28 years old when I met my present husband. I knew him for two years before I married him, and from the first I idealized him as I never had any man since my father. I adored him, and believed all he said about life generally.

I had certain ideals about the Perfect Marriage—children, a home of our own, savings, friends, fair play. He said they were his ideals, too, and we were to build a future founded on them.

MANY DISAPPOINTMENTS

We have been married nine years. We have two children, the home, the savings, a steadily improved scale of living—but not once, not even the night after we were married, have I been in anything but tears, if not streaming down my face, streaming down my heart.

I was told the night of my marriage that I could carry in my own bag. While I was perfectly able to do this, the lack of consideration hurt me bitterly. He picked up his bag and walked into the apartment. I was so hurt I walked up and down the hall for 30 minutes—and came in to find him sound asleep.

The next morning he didn't refer to the incident at all, and when I told him how he had hurt me he said, "If you're going to be such a blithering fool, I can't help it." And he went out.

He has been like that ever since. I am never able to depend on a promise he makes, and he has no apologies if he doesn't keep one. It is just take it and like it. In his own words, I am "mighty lucky to have what I have, and I can shut up." We fight about everything and nothing. I can't do a thing that meets with his approval.

CLAIMS ALL RIGHTS

For the first years I tried, but it was no use. Now, I try to use my own common sense, but I am still wrong. Yes, he pays the bills, but neither I nor the children seem to exist, if he wants to do something. He argues that he has all the rights, since he is providing for us. Is that all you should expect from a husband?

I have tried for nine years to make this a real marriage but it is hopeless. He goes where he pleases, and explains nothing, but I must explain every move, every telephone call, every check.

He continually says he would be glad if we "busted up," but declares he won't let me take the children—and wouldn't provide for us if I did. He says he would leave the State, so he wouldn't have to pay us a cent. So I have to stay, while he belittles and insults me until I think sometimes I will end it all. What can I do?

CONFUSED.

What can you do?

Turn off the tears, sister, and stop being a doormat. Stop taking his abuse. Stand up for yourself and tell him, as you should have told him on that night nine years ago, that unless he snaps out of it and treats you decently, you're through.

For realize this, lady. He isn't treating you like this just because he has queer notions about women. He's treating you like this because you've proved to him that his notions are right.

He believes that women are spineless worms who must be kept in their place—bullied, bossed and intimidated lest, by their dumbness, they wreck valuable male life.

DEMAND RIGHTS

And as a spineless worm, you've certainly given a 100 per cent demonstration.

So naturally he has seen no reason for changing his mind. And if you want a change now, you'll have to provide a reason. Meaning what? A violent brawl? No. But a dignified, firm, insistence on your rights. No tears, threats or tantrums. No sobbing reminders of the past—which was at least 99 per cent your own fault. Just the crisp statement that unless he snaps into line, you'll snap out.

And suppose you do, will he leave you penniless? If you move fast enough, he can't. The law will see to it that you, your children and your share in the property are protected.

But take a tip, my dear. Don't start anything you can't finish. If you can't control the sniffles—if you're going to break down and beg for forgiveness—stop before you start! For we have only as many "rights" in this world as we can prove our title to.

The mere fact that you're a wife will do little for you with a man of this caliber. But if you can also prove that you're a self-respecting human with a mind of your own, he'll learn to treat you as such.

'Parents, Forgive Them!' Says Fay King of 'Bad' Marriages

By FAY KING

Of all the unnecessary avoidable misery in the world, the longest list comes under the heading of parents who have disowned their children for making marriages of which the parents did not approve. Children have been disinherited, treated as dead, and forbidden the parental door, simply because they married against their parents' wishes.

These same parents would loyally stand by children in sickness or crime. No sacrifice too great—except this forgiveness.

No marriage is more in need of parental tolerance, love and guidance than a so-called "bad marriage."

Let the world think what it may. Let friends sneer and snub. Parents should stand by children in such a marriage, and forgive them.

It may be difficult but how worth the noble effort!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Avoid Colds by Proper Ventilation of Rooms

Everyone is interested in how to prevent colds. Yet few take one simple precaution necessary to guard against this common affliction. I refer to the importance of proper ventilation as a means of protection against colds.

Dr. Copeland

Contrary to the belief held by our forefathers and many persons of this present generation, fresh air, even night air, is not detrimental to health and does not cause disease. In fact, it can be truthfully stated that in winter poor ventilation of homes, public buildings and conveyances, such as trains and street cars, is the most common factor in producing colds and other respiratory diseases.

This is confirmed by the prevalence of the common cold during the winter months. I am sorry to say that windows and doors which are always kept open during the summer months are tightly shut as soon as the weather becomes cold. This increases the danger of exposure to germs that are capable of causing coughs, cold and other disabling infections.

Bear in mind that disease is rarely if ever caused by cold air. It is more frequently the result of lack of fresh air. Fresh air is necessary for good health. It stimulates the appetite, aids digestion, and increases the resistance of the body against disease.

Vitiated air is air that is not fresh. It is produced when a room is overheated and improperly ventilated. It is air that has been breathed over and over again.

When the lungs take in impure air, headache, dizziness, nausea and even collapse may occur. Continued breathing of impure air lowers the resistance of the body against the germs of tuberculosis, pneumonia, grippe and other respiratory diseases.

Proper ventilation is a simple measure of guarding against disease. An elaborate method of ventilation is not necessary to insure fresh air. All that is necessary is to provide a continuous stream of fresh air. This is readily accomplished by window ventilation. Keep the windows open a bit at top and bottom.

Avoid drafts by using screens. Keep the doors closed when the windows are opened. Though I advise that you keep the windows open I do not mean that you should submit to chilling or excessive cold. The temperature of the room should be about 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

Unfortunately, most homes are overheated. In most instances, then, there is excessive dryness of the air. Bear in mind that this irritates the lining of the nose and throat and prepares the way for the common infections. This dryness of the air can be prevented by placing a plan of water on the radiator, heater or stove. When the water evaporates moisture is added to the air and makes it better suited to the human needs.

Answers to Health Queries

L. B. Q.—About four or five years ago I had poison ivy in the palms of the hands and this trouble has reappeared every summer, becoming worse. Even my fingers have peeled. There is no dryness, the hands seem to be always moist. What would you advise?

A.—Have your doctor outline the proper treatment. Poisoning by ivy is apt to recur from year to year, depending upon the susceptibility of the patient. Inoculations are sometimes very helpful in such cases.

A Reader. Q.—What causes noises in the ears and head?

A.—This may be due to nasal catarrh.

Boys Explain How They Frightened Baby Faith

Finally, the two small boys looked at each other, gulped, and then faced Dicky manfully.

"We didn't mean to scare her," Junior said. "We thought we'd make her laugh."

Dicky looked at them sternly.

"You don't need to tell me that", he said. "I know you both pretty well, and I'm banking on that. If I thought either of you was capable of deliberately frightening a helpless little baby, I would first give you a whipping you'd remember all your lives, and then send you to a reform school."

A sigh came from the region of Junior's shoe laces, but he took up the small boy's burden and began his confession.

"Well! You see it was this way," he said, and I pulled Dicky's sleeve warningly, as he made an impatient motion. But I did not need to say anything. He knew that I was asking him to let our small son tell his story in his own way, and he looked around the corner of his eye at me in whimsical reassurance.

"Go on," he said, as Junior hesitated.

JUNIOR DEFENDED

"Why, we weren't touching the crib at all; see?" Junior said earnestly, with so faithful an imitation of Jerry Ticer's rustic mannerisms that I squirmed inwardly. "Aunt Katherine said we were to watch her but not to touch her, see? And she was laughing, and cooing, and kicking her heels, and all at once—Rod—I mean I—" he corrected himself confusedly—"thought it would be—"

"No, you didn't think," Roderick interrupted sturdily. "You wasn't to blame a bit. I thought of it, and I said let's do it. Honest, Uncle Dicky, he wasn't to blame."

My heart swelled with pride and pleasure. When Roderick had first come to us he had been a bit shifty, ready to put the blame for his misdeeds upon any others shoulders than his own. But he had proved unusually amenable to loving discipline, and I was pardonably gratified at this proof of what sharing our family life at the farm had done for Roderick.

"We both did it." Junior took up the saga again. "You see, we both had 'em in our pockets—Marion always likes to hear 'em pop—and we thought maybe Ruby Pearl would like to hear 'em, too."

"Ruby Pearl!" Dicky ejaculated. "What the dickens—"

"Oh! Oh!" Junior's eyes sought mine agonizedly. "We never meant to call her that where anybody could hear us."

"Never mind now," I said soothingly, giving Dicky's sleeve another tug. "You meant to say that you thought Faith might like to hear—what?"

CRUSHED PAPER BAGS

The two small boys looked at each other again, as if by one movement, each right hand went into a trousers pocket and drew forth a crushed, shapeless brown paper bag. Then each thrust a fist inside and displayed a hole in the bag he held.

"We blew 'em up and hit 'em," Junior said slowly; "first one of us, and then the other. Faith didn't cry at the first one, but at the other one she yelled like everything. One of us was just going to run downstairs for Aunt Katherine when she came running in. But are you sure she's all right? Aunt Katherine hasn't brought her out yet."

"She wants to get her quiet," I told them, and Dicky said impatiently, "Yes, yes, she's all right; but you might have frightened her into something very serious. I'm not going to tell you now what we're going to do about this, except that we're not going to whip you. But we must make you remember that thoughtlessness and carelessness sometimes do more harm than deliberate meanness. Go over to my room, now, and stay there until either your Auntie Madge or I come for you."

Surprisingly, the boys made no move to obey. Instead, Junior said quaveringly:

"Please, mayn't we wait until we see Faith again, and see she's all right?"

To candy plums, prick each plum with a darning needle in several places. Allow one-half pound of sugar to each pound of plums. Melt the sugar in a little water; skim it; add the plums, and boil for half an hour. Take out the plums, and boil the sugar for 20 minutes longer, or until it drops in threads from a spoon. Pour this syrup over the plums, and put them in a cool oven to dry, turning them over every few minutes. When candied, put them into boxes.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Misleading Bid

Bids to inhibit the lead of a dangerous suit, while now generally quickly recognized by Bridge players of all degrees of skill, still serve their uses even when the competition is keenest, as Mr. William K. Barrett, of Georgia, proved in the recent Vanderbilt Cup match in New York, playing against no less worthy antagonists than Messrs. Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Harold S. Vanderbilt. As a direct result of his lead-inhibiting bid he misled his opponents regarding the makeup of his hand sufficiently to make a contract of four hearts doubled and redoubled, while Mr. P. Hal Sims, a teammate of Messrs. von Zedtwitz and Vanderbilt, went down one on the same cards. The hand and bidding were:

North, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	2 ♣	2 ♡	3 ♣
3 ◇	Pass	4 ♡	Double
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

The student will note North's second bid—that of three diamonds on a suit containing only two cards. Obviously the bid was safe enough if, as Mr. Barrett later stated, he had already decided to play the hand at hearts and wished to conceal the spade suit. Regardless of what support his partner might have for diamonds, it was always easy for North to keep control of the bidding by returning to hearts. The ruse worked in this case with splendid success.

East had a difficult choice of a lead, but finally determined upon opening away from his minor ten-ace in clubs in view of the fact that West had supported him once in that suit. This trick was won with the Ace in Dummy and a club returned and ruffed. Mr. Barrett next laid down the heart Ace, dropping at the same time the King and Knave. This removed all trumps from the adverse hands. The next play was the lead of the six of diamonds toward the Queen in Dummy. East played the eight, the Queen was played from Dummy, and West won with the King. He now led a club which the declarer ruffed and led a small trump, overtaking in Dummy. The three of diamonds was next led, and West played the four. Mr. Barrett played his last diamond and East, of course, won the trick. However, the situation was now such that the contract must be fulfilled. A return of either a club or diamond by East permitted a discard in the Dummy and a ruff in the closed hand, thus limiting the losers to one trick. Obviously, the lead of a spade would bring about the same result.

Unquestionably North's diamond bid was hard to read, but even so it would appear that the correct defense might have been found, which required that when West was in with the King of diamonds he lead a spade to weakness in the Dummy. A second opportunity to accomplish the same purpose arose when the trey of diamonds was led from Dummy. On this occasion West, if he had realized the nature of the diamond bid, might have played the Ten, and at this point also a spade return would have defeated the contract.

Mr. Sims, playing North at the other table, reached the contract of four hearts. His opponents did not double, but since their defense was not complicated by any lead-inhibiting diamond bid, they did succeed in defeating the contract.

This single board made a difference of 1,080 points and was one of the three decisive hands which brought defeat to the defending champions in America's classic Contract event.

Today's Question

South is playing the hand at notrump. West's Opening lead is a small club. What card should South play from the Dummy?

Answer: The King. There is no certainty of winning a trick in the suit in this case, but the King offers slightly more than an even chance of making.

Household Hints

Remember clothes need only about five minutes of actual boiling to give them a good color. Too long boiling will tend to yellow the cloth. Add the juice of a lemon to the boiler of clothes if you want real whiteness.

The bottom crusts of fruit pies will not become sodden if, after having lined your dish with paste, the latter is brushed over with a beaten egg and allowed to stand for a few minutes before putting in the fruit.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Alighting From Street Car

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct way to alight from a street car when you are with an escort?

PUZZLED.

The man goes first from the car, and then is in position, after he has alighted from the car, to help the girl to step down to the pavement. In helping her to alight, he holds out his hand to help her, or if it is more convenient, he holds his hand under her elbow.

Not a Social Error

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A question has arisen as to whether or not the hostess at a bridge game committed a breach of etiquette when a person, uninvited by the hostess, but brought in by the latter's sister, was told cordially to go into another room and take off her things and that the game would be finished shortly. This person immediately took offense and left the house murmuring something about impoliteness, due to the fact that the game was not stopped when she entered. Did the hostess commit a breach of etiquette? R.

Indeed the hostess didn't commit a social error. She did exactly the right and sensible thing. Naturally "the game must go on" . . . there was no point of stopping it, since the guest was a casual one uninvited by the hostess, and since the game was to last only a short while anyway. It is ridiculous and immature for a person not to adapt herself to such a definite situation; and for her to expect the game to stop, to expect that everyone should be inconvenienced for her sweet sake, is absurd, ungracious and unmannerly. We don't expect this sort of exhibition-of-temper from a grown-up.

FOOD BASKETS

—Just "Loads" of Christmas Cheer

. . . for someone! Food baskets literally loaded with fancy things . . . or just practical, plain things (if you feel that way about it) make as fine or finer Christmas gifts than an elaborate gadget to wear, or use! There are dainties for the Snooty Sniffens next door (pate de foi gras, anchovies, candied ginger, whathaveyou) . . . and equally sensibly good ones of canned corn, peaches, a dozen rolls and the "turk" for Mrs. George Washington Brown who does your ironing! It just remains for you to decide which goes to which . . . and leave the rest to Santa, and the stores.

In the pages of this newspaper there are numerous food stores and specialty shops which make a feature of their Christmas baskets. You have a wide selection to choose from . . . just go ahead and choose!

Shop Early and Make a Merry Christmas for Others

PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

FIGHT HOLIDAY THIEVES

Police and Magistrates began a war today against shoplifters and professional thieves operating among Christmas shoppers.

At the request of Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd, Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court held four men arrested on charges of shoplifting for trial in the Criminal Court where they may receive sentences of 90 days in the Workhouse without option of fine as professional thieves. The law is based on the old English law.

At the same time Inspector Boyd ordered detectives to pick up any suspicious characters and announced that all those with criminal records would be held for court on informations signed by him.

Henry Weaver, 39, of Homestead, was charged with stealing women's underwear; Felix Tkachick, 32, of 2208 Forbes street, an overcoat, hat and tie; William King, 34, Clarksburg, W. Va., and George Murphy, 24, of Washington, Pa., six women's purses, all from downtown stores.

Police Car Stolen Left Out of Gas

DALY CITY, Cal., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The automobile was big, red and astonishingly marked "Daly City Police Department," but it was parked only 15 minutes before the police station when suddenly it was A. W. O. L. Several hours later Chief of Police Jack Doyle found it abandoned, gasless, several miles away. The only clues were a hairpin and a celluloid collar.

STRIKE STILL ON AT POSTOFFICE

A month ago crafts affiliated with the Building Trades Council struck in sympathy with the iron workers and elevator constructors who were protesting the installation of mail conveying machinery by millwrights.

A decision of the National Labor Board at Washington recently stated that the trades should go back to work pending a settlement of the dispute. It did not say which trade should install the conveyors.

Learns Neck Wasn't Broken After All

GREENUP, Ky., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Clyde Crawford, 26, was knocked off a barge into the river, and a physician who examined him declared he had suffered a broken neck. For two months Crawford wore a plaster cast, and for several months more a neck splint.

On the day a court hearing was to have been held on his $50,000 damage suit against a contracting company his physician announced Crawford didn't have a broken neck, after all. Crawford has thrown the splint away.

Alfred University President Dead

ALFRED, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, 52, president of Alfred University and one of the two United States representatives of the International Service Committee of Rotary International, died yesterday of heart disease.

Dr. Titsworth had served as president of Alfred University less than two months, having been inaugurated last October 20.

C. G. SAGE, who owns and edits the Lordsburg Liberal, quotes this wise remark:

"There are too many of two kinds of people—congenital pessimists and inherent optimists."

The congenital pessimist is a national pest, whereas the inherent optimist is at least a force for good. He nopes and hope is a constructive power.

Anybody with a little money and much energy to invest, might get rich if he took Mr. Sage's advice and investigated the New Mexico potash fields, and other New Mexico possibilities.

One hundred twenty carloads of potash are leaving the Carlsbad area now with only one company working. Out of one New Mexico product you can get 52 different chemicals. That ought to interest the duPonts, who have brains, money and want more of the latter.

IS THIS country "crowded," as alleged, by geese that would keep out the kind of European immigration that made the country?

New Mexico covers more than one hundred and twenty-two thousand square miles. Its population amounts to about three persons per square mile, two hundred acres for each inhabitant, and six acres of this rich soil with irrigation would more than support a family and take care of a cow.

Texas, intensively cultivated, could feed the entire population of the earth.

ON THE railroad platform at Del Rio, energetic big Texas boys were loudly busy selling newspapers from San Antonio, El Paso, and also the widespread Denver Post.

One boy of fifteen ran up and down wildly between talking to customers. Said he:

"Training for football."

"I've got to have it pulled out tomorrow."

The friend replied:

"Hot cha."

That answer would puzzle an Englishman.

A VERY LITTLE boy, thin, not energetic, leaning wearily against a lamp-post, holding a basket with packages of candy, said sadly.

"No, ain't sold nothing today."

Nothing of the "go-getter" there, he may turn out to be only a dreamer, an Edgar Allen Poe or an Emerson.

It was pleasant to see his discouraged look change, when somebody gave him twenty-five cents for a five-cent package of chocolate and told him to keep it.

If his mother put a clean white napkin instead of brown paper under the candy, and another clean napkin over it, her son would be a more successful salesman.

DORRANCE D. RODERICK, owner of the El Paso Times, is waiting at the station to show you El Paso by night. A fine city, El Paso, plenty of lights, streets festooned electrically for Christmas, fine tall buildings, beautiful residences, on the heights that surround the city, with Juarez, prosperous Mexican city of nearly 50,000 population, just across the river.

Publishers will be interested to hear that the El Paso Times, which prints this column, is up to its waist "in the black," and going deeper into the "profit side."

EL PASO Saturday was excited about a football game between the San Angelo and Bowie high schools.

It was a pleasure to see the energy and courage with which boys of the Bowie school, nearly all Mexicans, played the American game.

They paraded, then had cheer leaders, everything in American style, and showed reckless courage, in their playing.

YOU READ perhaps about the killing of David Gregory in the belfry of a colored church, after he had murdered a white woman in a little saw-mill town near Beaumont, Tex.

The last chapter of Gregory's story was brief.

The sheriff shot him, knocking him back into the church belfry, and Gregory died in the sheriff's automobile on a roundabout trip to jail, planned to escape lynchers.

A mob of about three hundred citizens took his body from the jail, dragged it behind an automobile through the Negro quarter for two hours. Then the body was burned close to the house of another Negro, on a fire made of that other Negro's fence.

HIS HOUSE and fence were selected "because he was inclined to be uppity."

The sheriff advised him and two other colored men to stay out of town for awhile.

The North, formerly inclined to lecture the South on lynching, will lecture less loudly, now that the victims of northern lynching parties are stripped naked, hanged to trees, bodies scorched with paper torches.

Check These With Your Opinions

By AIRCASTER

Highlights and shadows of the past week were in sharper contrast than usual, and inspire, or, if you prefer, provoke this tabulation, which the customers are invited to check with their own emotions.

Naturals

1—Fred Waring's soothing syrup.
2—Jack Benny's banter.
3—Phil Baker's banality.
4—Ripley's remarkable rambling, which may run regularly with Rolfe.
5—Horlick's Gypsies gaities.
7—Umberto Egizi's Dinner Appetizers.

No Dice

1, The ponderous pounding of Stokowski's nightly serenades; 2, The badly balanced bill backed by the Casa Loma Band in premiere; 3, The break in quality by Burns and Allen; 4, The consistently poor reception of the Byrd broadcast; 5, Del Campo's disappointments; 6, Spence Dean as a plausible poosyfoot.

* * *

Notes to You

Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson will shortly fade from the NBC waves.

Stoopnagle and Budd will do weird fairy tales when they debut again via WJAS Dec. 15. The March of Time was piped by short wave to England Saturday night, thus becoming, so 'tis said, the first commercial to be rebroadcast over the King's kilocycles. (Same show that you heard Friday night).

Heifiddle

Jascha Heifetz will fiddle on the premiere of the big auto show which opens its huge symphony series with Bruno Walter conducting via KDKA Dec. 17.

Barry Faris and Matty White will be heard at WJZ December 16, at 9:30, giving their opinions on what constituted the ten best news stories of 1933.

Fred Waring is asking for David Ross as his announcer for his new commercial to begin in February.

Detour

Reggie Childs is talking business with three expectant sponsors . . .

Bing Crosby's decision to stay west for more movies is keeping Lennie Hayton there also.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Paul Gannon sings "Loch Lomond," a Scotch folk song just introduced by Lady Jane Scott, as the feature of his 6:45 Eventide Songs.

PREDICT CUBAN TRANQUILITY

HAVANA, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Final agreement within a few days on a plan to restore political tranquality to Cuba was predicted today by one of those who attended a meeting at which President Grau San Martin conferred until early morning with opposition leaders.

At the meeting, held at the home of President Grau in suburban Vedado, was Carlos Mendietta, the powerful Nationalist party leader who has been mentioned frequently for the presidency in the event Grau should resign.

While the meeting was in progress, heavy firing broke out in midtown Havana when snipers opened fire on soldiers from a speeding automobile.

Boys' Relief Bureau To Get New Home

The boys' bureau of the Association for the Improvement of the Poor will be housed in a few days in its new building at 1315 Liverpool street, it was announced today. The bureau, which cares for runaway boys, is now in the association's branch building, Washington street and Webster avenue.

Sees Racial Fights As Political Trick

Dr. Nathan Miller, professor of economics at Carnegie Institute of Technology, speaking last night at a Socialist public forum in the Labor Center, Ninth street, said theories of racial differences such as the Hitler regime is fostering in Germany are the commonest devices by which ambitious politicians seek to take the minds of the masses from economic troubles.

DeMolays to Hold Homecoming Ball

The annual homecoming ball of Allegheny Chapter, Order of DeMolay, will be held in Malta Temple, North avenue, North Side, Tomorrow. The ball is one of the chapter's main social events.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Christmas is only two weeks away.

There is one little girl who has a host of friends. She is Catherine Variety Sheridan, the little lady I mentioned here the other day. Since then I had her on the radio. She spoke and the doll lady gave her Honeysuckle.

If she were old enough to realize, I'm sure in her talk she would have included a word of thanks to everyone who has written asking to adopt her. So without mentioning any names I am going to acknowledge those letters for her here, and then turn them over to the Variety Club.

On the day little Catherine spoke another little girl was a thrilled listener. She is Gloria Ballinger, 5 years old, who was waiting to hear Honeysuckle say "mamma." (P. S.—Honeysuckle did.)

Sybil Young, Pittsburgh radio star, writes from Montreal, where she is filling an engagement. Prior to her departure from New York she entertained Helen Greenwood and Norma Altwater, two other Pittsburgh radio artists getting places on Broadway.

Mrs. Gladys Freeman—There are 50 state senators and 208 members of the lower house. The Constitution provides for 50 senatorial districts. The number of representatives in the lower house depends on the population.

They are apportioned among the counties on a ratio obtained by dividing the population of the state, as ascertained by the latest government census, by 200.

Ralph Levkanich, Curtisville—Applications for jobs in state liquor stores were required to be in the hands of the Department of Public Instruction not later than December 8. The examinations are to be held this week.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W.: That Frances Williams report about regretting her recent sudden wedding to Miguel De Sousa was the result of a fierce fight between the two at a party in Hollywood Saturday night. The gendarmes were called, but they turned the groom loose, and the Hollywood papers muffed the story . . . Frances will have the shackles melted as soon as possible. It was "one of those mistakes," both believing the other had too much money . . . You didn't know it—but at the opening of "All Good Americans" you were surrounded by the bodyguard—of Tommy Manville, Jr. He goes everywhere that Tommy goes. Whether it is true or not, it's a good suggestion, at any rate, but do you know if there is anything to the buzz that F. D. R. is now wearing a steel vest?

If you can locate Maxie Rosenbloom, the fighter, Delmonico's night club wants him to be opposition to Max Bater at the Casino de Paree . . . Bob Hope is heading a benefit for the family of Richy Craig, Jr., who died too young. It'll be at the New Amsterdam, Dec. 17 . . . The first pedigreed dog auction show ever held in this country will be held at the Beekman Galleries next wk. The exhibit starts Sunday . . . Long Beach, N. Y., and Atlantic City are burning because you said Miami Beach is the only incorporated city without a cemetery . . . Funny story about Milton Berle. He phoned a girl to break a date, and was saying: "I'm home and I can't talk loud or long, I'm afraid I'll wake my mother and sister." . . . At this point the phone operator interrupted and said: "Five cents, please, for another five minutes," so now the girl is going to kill him.

Alice Alexander, who is funnier than Frisco (her partner), suggests that Ogden Nash call his next book 'Nash Nash or Vice Versa" . . . Stamford, Conn., is fussy about those movie ads which reveal girls undressed. Someone there last wk altered Crawford's photos by painting long gowns on her semi-naked figure . . . They call Grace Poggi, of Caliente, Joseph Schenck's new "find," but she really is the heart . . . Roger Davis, who is Fanny Brice's private comedian, has been forgiven and they now talk . . . That page of photos in Conde Nast's V. F. mag is delightful. Woollcott is seen as a baby with angel wings, Garbo modeling millinery in Sweden, and so ugly! Lubitsch as a ham is a yell, and the one of Dietrich as she looked years ago will amaze you. Funny that the caption didn't add that in the group of Gus Edwards proteges were Jessel and Lila Lee. Lila is the tiniest tot on the piano.

The musicians' union is plotting to limit the wages of all musicians to $100 per week, so that there will be fewer of them unemployed. This means the elimination of doubling on the radio, etc. . . . Incidentally, George Fairman, who wrote many song hits, has started a suit against the Society of Authors and Composers for 25 Gs in the Supreme Court . . . He has also sent a complaint to Mr. Roosevelt and the Department of Justice, he says . . . The suit was started Nov. 8—sounds like a big story, shall I tell the desk? . . . Blanche Satchel, the former Ziegfeld girl, who married Max Bamberger, the Wall Streeter, bought back her long contract from the Martin Starr office—her groom deciding that she quit the profession entirely . . . Since Evelyn Wertheim went abroad, Victor Emmanuel is giving away . . . "Aunt Jemima" shelved 18 pounds riding to Hollywood. She still weighs 257, however . . .

Ruth Hilliard and James Ritz have the tremors for each other, again . . . Burnett Hershey, the movie writer, has what is probably the most complete collection of speakeasy cards, keys, etc., which he is going to present to the Smithsonian museum . . . Funny about lovely Polly Walters of "She Loves Me Not." Warner Brothers let her go because "she couldn't act" (aren't they the ones, though?) and now they are offering her five times her original salary if she will come back . . . Her refusals are driving them crazy . . . Mona Maris, who was "shot" for four weeks in "Viva Villa" in Mexico, returned to Hollywood and was tested for the same role . . . They all must be balmy out there . . . Lee Tracy's new picture "Lovelorn" was previewed in H'wood he got the heaviest applause of the season . . . Did you hear about the New Yorker who got a chance to invade Hollywood and a contract? The first scenario he offered was one of the classics from DeMaupassant. He'll be home next week!

When Dolores Ziegfeld, a kin of the Ziegfelds, married Jimmy Noel, formerly one of the Whiteman Rhythm Boys, she forfeited $25,000 which was to come to her when she married, if her groom were not associated in any way with the theater. Love is too expensive . . . Aurania Rouveral, author of "Growing Pains," will take the role of the mother in it when Leona Hogarth resigns soon. It will be the first time, I think, that a mother has appeared in a play opposite her own daughter, who is the lead . . . One of the West Coast columnists was barred from the Cocoanut Grove . . . Lionel Barrymore will appear on the Vallee hour shortly . . . Huge mail for Clara Kimball Young coming in from all over the country—what a loyal public she still has!

The Dizzy Club certainly must be . . . They sent invites out to their crowd to come and drink on the house the night before Repeal was legal—and sent the invites out so you'd get them a day late . . . The girls in the new Casino de Paree show will be the highest paid in town—60 to 75 smackers weekly . . . Eddie Mayne phoned: Said nobody ever sees a dream walking—only the silly-looking girls walk! . . . Kenyon Nicholson, author of "Sailor, Beware!" the hit, resumes teaching at Columbia in the Fall . . . Bettie MacDonald, who did time with the "Follies," says she'll become Mrs. Stephen Fanti in March. He owns the Marta in the Village . . . You're invited to the affair for Capt. Rosenfeld, Sunday. He is the popular head of the toughest police station in the country—the W. 47th Street House . . . Oh, yes—the nudist bar you mentioned at the Paree is almost done. Among others in the altogether are A. Woolcott, H. Broun, E. O'Neill, J. J. Shubert, and for a laugh Gandhi is fully dressed! . . . The ladies pictured in the nude include: Beatrice Lillie and Kate Smith! . . . Nothing else, except a girl I know was being adored by a chap, who goo-gooed: "What beautiful eyes you have," to which she Mae-Wested: "The better to SHE you with!"

Contest Girls Hide From Studio

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.—Disappointed when she failed to make good as a "search for beauty" winner, a young Kansas City girl, Geneva Hall, plays hide-and-seek with the Paramount studio which wants to tell her that her father is dead.

For days now a telegram bearing the tragic news has been waiting for Geneva at the studio. But she has moved without leaving a forwarding address, and officials have been unable to find her.

Moreover, they can find only a few of the other 24 girls and boys who finished their contracts and who were supposed to be sent home at the studio's expense. Through pique, the kids refuse to admit they are licked and conceal their whereabouts while they seek other jobs.

Although it has no responsibility other than to pay their fares home if they leave within two weeks, Paramount is concerned—so concerned that it has ordered an assistant director to do nothing but search for the missing kids.

He has discovered that Loretta Walker, of Hillsborough, Ireland, plans to tour the country in a sharpshooter's act, allowing cigarets to be shot out of her mouth. Also that one of the girls, who is under age, is working in the chorus of a night-club.

Paramount wants to stop all this, to send the disappointed zone winners back home.

Bob Burkhart, Warner Brothers publicity man, has all the luck. The other night he was losing in a crap game and had to write two $20 checks. Both were won by a certain actor who isn't so popular.

Five minutes later a scenario-writer challenged the actor to a dice duel. As Bob looked sadly on, both of his checks changed hands again.

A little tight, the scenario-writer suddenly tore the checks in small pieces and hurled them in the actor's face.

"There, you rat!" he cried. "That's what I think of your checks!"

Many of the stars are disposing of the pistols they carried so many months in favor of the vest-pocket tear-gas gun which looks like a fountain pen, and which incapacitates for 15 minutes without doing serious injury. "Whitney" Hendry, MGM chief of police, introduced them on that lot, and they already are becoming popular. You have to have a license to carry a tear gas gun just as you do for a pistol.

Acording to her manager, James Timony, Mae West is buying a Beverly Hills acre to build a house on . . . Maybe Bill Powell is headman, but Margaret Lindsay has been seeing a good deal of Ralph Capron, former all-America quarterback at Minnesota . . . Bill Haines is doing over the library in Joan Crawford's house. It will be in knotted pine . . . Joan also will build a tennis court, and probably a swimming pool, on a lot she has purchased next to her property . . . The Dick Barthelmesses will gad away to Europe as soon as Dick finishes his current picture . . . Barbara Stanwyck went back to work after two days rest. She still suffers greatly from that injury . . . Hollywood's most tactful fellow is Gene Raymond. Several days ago, this column was misinformed by the Fox studio and carried a story that Gene could pilot an airplane but couldn't drive an automobile. The truth of that matter is he has been driving for years. But, on the day the story appeared, he up and figured in an auto crash.

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld, known to the stage and screen as Billie Burke, is presenting the new Ziegfeld "Follies," first edition of the nationally famous revue to be produced since the death of its founder, in the Nixon tonight. It is not having its premiere here, as many previous Ziegfeld shows did, including the last "Follies" and "Hot Cha," but it does come previous to its New York bow. It opened in Boston, where it was listed as a success, and has since played in Philadelphia and Washington. It has a large "name" cast, including Fannie Brice, who had a former "Follies" as the vehicle in which to introduce her famous song, "My Man;" Willie and Eugene Howard, comedians; Everett Marshall, operatic baritone; Patricia Bowman, dancer, and many others, all backed up by the chorus for which Ziegfeld productions have become noted.

There will be no attraction in the Nixon next week, but the house will reopen Christmas night with "Richelieu," to be presented by Walter Hampden and his company. Other plays to be given during the week will be "Macbeth, "Hamlet" and "The Servant in the House," the latter a modern allegorical play in which Mr. Hampden toured years ago.

* * *

Since signing her RKO contract some weeks ago, Lenore Ulric has spent considerable time reading books and plays for her screen vehicles. Her first will be an original story now titled "I Love an Actress," written by Gregory Ratoff. Other stories which the star favors are an original, especially written for her talents by Vicki Baum and a play by Edward Knobloch, author of "Tiger, Tiger," "Marie Odile" and "Milestones."

* * *

It is rumored that "Playboy" McCready will be an "artist" in next week's show in the Variety. Stipend, 100 bucks per week, a sum many, many times less than he has spent in a single night, if reports be true.

Walter Huston will play the lead in "Dodsworth," Sinclair Lewis' novel which Max Gordon will produce for the Broadway stage after January 1. . . . Bert Lahr has completed his second featurette, "Henry the Ape," December 4. Bert, of course, plays the famous Henry, who counted his wives by the half dozen. The comedian's initial short film, "Hizzoner," will be released this month. . . . Among players cast to appear with Colleen Moore and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "Success Story" are Zasu Pitts and Nydia Westman. . . . The casting of principals for Fox's edition of George White's "Scandals" includes Jack Haley, Lillian Harvey, Rudy Vallee, Cliff Edwards, the Loomis Sisters, Alice Faye, Dixie Dunbar and Marie Ormiston. George White also will appear. . . . Dorothy Dell, "Miss Universe of 1930;" Jack LaRue and Noel Francis have been assigned to featurned roles with Sylvia Sidney and Frederic March in "Good Dame," which is Miss Dell's first screen assignment.

Repertory

Walter Hampden as the cardinal in "Richelieu," part of the repertory to be presented by Mr. Hampden in the Nixon the week of December 25.

Amusing Film In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Since the pert soubret type is not at all conspicuous in the output of Hollywood, the evidence brought forth in "My Lips Betray," that its star, Lilian Harvey, fulfills all demands in that respect that may exist, is the most important news concerning the picture, now on view in the Fulton.

"My Lips Betray" is an amusing, though perfectly obvious, story of a romance between a beer garden entertainer and a king, pretty and talented Miss Harvey being the B.G.E. while John Boles is the king. El Brendel is the chauffeur of royal person. He happens to be in the beer garden when the little singer is fired, and he takes her to her home in the king's car. The result is that gossip among the neighbors, which eventually spreads all over the city, proclaims her to be the king's favorite. The further result is that she cashes in on the rumor, both romantically and materially, for the man who fired her is very glad to have her back again.

Miss Harvey, who is making her first appearance in an American made film since she was brought from the other side after her success in "Congress Dances," proves that she is quite a one-girl vaudeville show, a pleasing singer and expert dancer with infectuous vivacity. She clowns too much, but perhaps most persons will find it amusing.

John Boles has the role of the king, who composes songs in preference to balancing the budget. El Brendel is good for some laughs, and so is Maude Eburne, Miss Harvey's landlady, who makes herself her capable manager when the big break comes to Cinderella.

Miss Davies Cast Is Strong

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.—A remarkable cast of famous entertainers appears in Marion Davies' new Cosmopolitan - Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Going Hollywood," which has just been completed.

At the top, of course, stands Miss Davies, who has scored successive triumphs in "Blondie of the Follies," "Peg O' My Heart" and more than a score of other picture romances.

In "Going Hollywood," Miss Davies plays the role of a lovelorn girl who falls in love with a radio crooner's voice, pursues him across the country to Hollywood, where, quite accidentally, she achieves fame as a film star.

Bing Crosby, radio's topmost crooner of love ballads, supports Miss Davies as the crooner. Crosby, known the world over by radio fans and one of the most popular of all ether entertainers, sings two numbers in "Going Hollywood," with Miss Davies, "Our Big Love Scene" and "We'll Make Hay While the Sun Shines," and two by himself, "After Sundown" and "Temptation."

Fifi D'Orsay, vivacious French comedienne, is the third tangent of the love triangle. Miss D'Orsay is the leading exponent of fiery, temperamental French characters. In addition to a long list of screen successes she has added her brand of spicy humor to many notable stage productions.

Stuart Erwin, young in years, but a veteran featured player in pictures, plays the role of the sympathetic, gullible film producer.

Patsy Kelly, who plays Miss Davies' friend and extra-girl benefactor in "Going Hollywood," has appeared in feature stage parts in "Three Cheers," in Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" and "Vanities," with Al Jolson in "Wonderbar" and in "Flying Colors." A recent arrival in Hollywood, "Going Hollywood" is Miss Kelly's first feature-length screen assignment.

Bobby Watson, also a veteran of the Broadway stage, appears in one of his first screen roles as Bing Crosby's manager.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"Dear Hellinger," writes "Night Hawk," "I'm surprised at you. In a recent column, you wrote of an incident that occurred while en route to your office the previous day. You said that 'it slightly bewildered you.'

"You said that your taxi driver, as he passed another driver on the way, 'cursed him' and then told you that the other driver was 'ridin' the hat'—or, in other words, that he was riding empty with the meter registering. In the precise vernacular jargon of the hackmen, it is called 'ridin' the ghost.'

"Now then, had you omitted paragraphs four and five in your story, explaining the definition of 'ridin' the hat,' the reader would have accepted it as mildly funny. Even with paragraphs four and five included, the reader would still accept it as mildly funny, with a strong sympathetic appeal.

"But when you added that last sentence of the final paragraph—('I admit it doesn't mean much—but look at the space it fills!')—the reader is left with the honest belief that you are exploiting a pitiful circumstance just for the sake of copy.

"'Ridin' the ghost,' Mark, means more really than many, many columns you or any other columnist ever wrote. It means a suffering man, in desperation, parting with a few of the pennies he has earned on a nerve-wracking job in order to 'shape up' with the average so that he may hold his job.

"It means that, after he has been on the streets 12 to 14 hours—and his bookings are below average—he realizes that he is liable to be out of work the next day unless he meets the required average himself.

"It means, too, that this sad means of keeping his job is his only alternative. So he pays up—with the fervent hope that the morrow will bring better luck and a little added sunshine for the wife and kids.

"And this you say 'doesn't mean much?' For shame, sir! I only trust you are willing to admit your mistake."

I am, Mr. 'Night Hawk.' I can assure you that I did not mean to offend, and that I realize only too well how deplorable are the hacking conditions today, not only in New York but all over the nation.

I apologize—and for that reason, I publish your letter in full. Besides, look at the space it fills! . . .

"I HAD just finished crumb cake and coffee," writes Richard McCallister, of Baltimore, "in one of those dark little restaurant bakeries. I leaned back, opened my paper and lighted a cigaret.

"A heavy, bulging waiter bore down on me.

"'No smokin',' he snapped.

"I happened to notice a large glass ash tray beside the sugar bowl.

"'What's that for?' I asked, pointing to it.

"'Can't you guess?' he snarled. 'It's for puttin' them out in!'"

"A FRIEND of mine," writes Edward M. Leonard, of Whitestone Landing, "left for Florida some three weeks ago. His home is right next door to mine, and he asked me to keep an eye on his house while he was gone. I promised that I would.

"The other night, coming home rather late, I saw a flashlight playing around one of the rooms on the second floor of my friend's home. Going up close, I noticed a box standing beside a lower window that was open.

"I ducked into my own house and got my father's gun. I came out, went next door, crawled through the window and waited for the burglar to appear. When he did, I smacked him on the head with the gun, knocked him unconscious, returned to my home and phoned for the police.

"Now for the tragic part. When the police arrived, I found out that my burglar was a police officer who saw the window open while making his rounds. I was immediately arrested for entering a house unlawfully, carrying a gun without a permit and attacking an officer.

"When you're leaving the city, let me know so that I can watch your house."...

"S'HELP me, Mark, it's true," writes Hugh A. McNeill, Jr., of Cleveland.

"Betty was one of those kids who was born under unlucky stars. She didn't have a thing as a kid except parents who were typically New England. She was pretty, but it was wrong to be pretty. She didn't have fellows 'cause that was the surest road to 'way down under.

"You know what kind of luck a girl like that has in picking a man. She fell in love with a drunk, and married him to reform him. And she did, too—which makes it rather unusual. But it's the price she paid in doing her job that really makes the story.

"She tried any number of ways to make him stop drinking. She had a baby, but he celebrated the birth. She stayed away from him, but he drowned his sorrow. She wouldn't speak to him for weeks at a time—and then she hit the perfect scheme.

"She took him aside one night and informed him that she was going wherever he went. She did, too—and she matched drinks with him. He took her home after the first bat, and did plenty of cussing. He swore he wouldn't touch another drop, and he didn't—for almost two weeks. Then he came home drunk. And an hour later, she was drunk, too.

"The sight of her sobered him completely. And you can believe it or not, Mark, but he's never taken a drink since. He doesn't, however, live with his wife any more.

"He divorced her six months ago—for drunkenness!". . .

SPURS NEW U. S. BUILDING PROBE

A request that investigation of cracks appearing on the walls of the new postoffice be begun at once has been wired to the United States Treasury by Congressman Henry Ellenbogen.

In a telegram to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury L. W. Robert, Ellenbogen states that Robert previously advised him investigation would be started in the late summer or fall. Ellenbogen also says he asked inquiry be made into proportions of gravel and sand used in the cement.

He suggests responsibility be fixed and steps taken for correction of the faults as soon as possible.

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

There's much rejoicing here at home and in the Eastern schools at the approach of the holidays. And families are making all sorts of preparations for the arrival of their children from school.

Yesterday I mentioned a group of Dobbs Ferry girls who'll join the holiday festivities. Added to the list are Elinore and Phyllis Hoelzel, daughters of the John P. Hoelzels, Dobbs Ferry girls. Elinore is a prospective debutante of the fall of 1934.

Around the twenty-first of the month the Farmington girls will come trooping home. They include Betty Cappeau, the John W. Cappeaus' daughter; Laura Liggett, daughter of the Sidney S. Liggetts; Ruth Brooks, younger daughter of the Twing Brookses.

Home for Holidays

Also home from Farmington will be Mimi Richards, daughter of the Ralph S. Richardses; Jean Rose, youngest daughter of the Don Roses, and Lillian Painter, daughter of Mrs. Eleanore S. Painter.

Returning the same time as the Farmington girls, December 21, will be a group from Washington, students at Miss Madeira's School. Among them are Mary Stoner, daughter of the Marcus W. Stoners; Nancy Claus, daughter of the Robert L. Clauses; Katharine Meanor, Sally Odell, Helen Link and Kathrine Tallman.

To Attend Deb Parties

Margaret Leiper, the Callender Irvine Leipers' daughter, who'll be home for the holidays from Vassar, will attend the holiday deb parties. She'll not be presented here, however, during the Yuletide.

She was presented to Philadelphia society this past summer at her grandmother's home after the wedding of her sister. Her sister, Mrs. David Millar, Jr., with Mr. Millar, will be here for the holidays, too.

Junior League Art Show

Patrons of the arts and interests committee, of the Junior League, to have its first art exhibit today—a pre-view of drawings of old masters, shown in the clubrooms, Clark Building—are Mrs. Roy A. Hunt, Mrs. Maitland Alexander, Mrs. George L. Craig, Mrs. W. C. Robinson, the Howard Heinzes, Mrs. John Worthington, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. T. R. Evans, Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Sr., Mrs. John B. Semple, Mrs William Frew, Mrs. George H. Flinn, Jr., Mrs. B. F. Jones, Jr., and Mrs. Frank Adair Leovy.

Tomorrow will be the Junior League's day at the exhibit, and beginning Wednesday and continuing until January 6, this exhibit, including drawings from famous private collections, will be open to the public.

Ushering at the Maxada School play "Christmas in the Shoe," to be given in St. Francis Hospital auditorium Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for the benefit of the children's ward of the hospital, will be Dorothy Shanahan, Louise Lowry, Frances Clark, Sally Clark, Nancy McHugh and Ada Urquahart.

Mrs. Rea Elected

The election of Mrs. James C. Rea and of Mrs. Marcus Boyd to the board of trustees of the Thurston School has just been announced by Miss Marjorie F. Pratt, the headmistress.

Miss Ida M. Allerton is president; Miss Mabel Lindsay Gillespie, vice president; Mrs. Robert M. Repp, Jr., secretary; Miss Mary McCune, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles R. Miller, Jr., assistant treasurer.

Mt. Lebanon Club Entertained by Home Unit

Each department of the Mt. Lebanon Women's Club prepares at least one program a year for presentation at a general club meeting.

Today the American home department offers its contribution to the current season's calendar, presenting George H. Dennison, assistant manager of the Better Business Bureau. He is discussing fraudulent business methods and the bureau's efforts to combat them. Christmas carols are being sung by the club choral.

Mrs. George S. Monks has arranged the program, and members are requested to bring their annual donations of cod liver oil for distribution at the club's social center.

Two departments of the club have programs listed for this week. Reviewers will have a joint meeting of the two groups on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. J. Klein, when Mrs. H. F. Ochsenhirt will review "Anthony Adverse" and the senior literary department meets on Friday for discussion of Russia. Mrs. D. H. Pinkney and Mrs. G. A. Belding will have papers, and Mrs. T. F. Wilson will be the hostess.

New York Elite To Mark Church Anniversary

NEW YORK.—Scions of old families will gather at the Waldorf Astoria Saturday afternoon for a luncheon celebrating the 125th anniversary of Grace Episcopal Church, Broadway and Tenth street, long a center for high fashion's devout. The Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, rector, will be host to Bishop William T. Manning and many representative folk.

A benefit performance of "Rigoletta," with Lily Pons, will attract society to the "Met" December 28. The proceeds will aid Sir Wilfred Grenfell's medical work in Labrador.

Invitations are out for a noteworthy wedding. At St. Mark's, little country church at Islip, Long Island, Miss Margaret Lanier Lawrence will become the bride of Drayton Cochran, December 23. Miss Lawrence is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lanier Lawrence, of New York. Mr. Cochran is a son of the Princess Chlodwig Hohenlohe-Schillingfurst, and the late Gifford A. Cochran.

Dr. Goldenson To Address Pitt Club

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

What is expected to be one of its largest meetings of the year will be held Wednesday in the College Club by the Women's Association of the University of Pittsburgh. For this one meeting the Reader's Group will join with the general association and the program will be both literary and musical.

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, rabbi at Rodef Shalom Temple, is the speaker and will discuss the ethical and spiritual aspects of Robert Browning's poetry. Also on the program will be Miss Georgia Orwig, who will give a piano recital, including compositions from the classical, romantic and modern schools.

Through the Spyglass

Viewing the New

Here we go 'round the Christmas tree! Hang on, little ones . . . we'll get there yet with our beribboned bundles safe under each arm and holly in our hair! Today's items have been plucked, as it were, from the bosom of potential Santa Clauses . . . and will help to bring a comparative calm to many palpitating gift lists! Call Grant 6500 for the names of the shops . . . or send a self-addressed envelope.

If we met a poinsettia walking down the street in Pango-Pango we'd know it was holiday time and promptly start looking for the Christmas tree. (All this just by way of proving how festive poinsettias are.)

And we DO know it's holiday time . . . and we HAVE met poinsettias lately. New arrivals in all the point-y sharpness of red and green gaiety . . . and for as little as 75c (which IS little for a poinsettia.)

Off with a bang . . . and what a bang at that! Whether for Sonny Boy or Big Bad Bill the gift of a .22 rifle will be the beginning of many joyous (though noisy) times!

We don't pretend to be up on our "shootin' irons" . . . but we've been assured that these 22's at the price of $5.95 are bargains of the never-again variety. So you parents who have heard the demand for a rifle should do a little pricking up of the ears over this.

Like miniature fish bowls standing on their heads . . . that's the way these intriguing new perfume bottles are! Little hollow glass balls . . . standing upside down on a tiny black square, and every "ball" filled with marvelous perfume (Gardenia and Mimosa included in the 6 odeurs.)

How to get them open? . . . that's our secret you'll find out when you see them. And the nice part is that when they ARE open, only one drop comes out at a time (no spilling!) $1.00.

PLOTS FOR SMART AND ORCHIDACEOUS LADIES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

ORCHIDS ARE becoming very much a part of the smart woman's bag of tricks. Presumably one may thank Walter Winchell and the heir of the Manville millions who affectionately calls them "Manville's Mark," and the orchid growers who have brought down their price into something like a budgeteer's dream.

But there are many tips on wearing orchids, or otherwise enjoying them, which can be passed on to the laywoman just getting her share of them at last.

Nothing is more mistaken and pathetic than the misplaced orchid, the one that is tucked too high beneath the chin on shoulder or bosom to stand out like a weedy garden till it is smashed to pulp, unless it is the poor posey that gets a diaphragm spot and is squeezed into spinach during the first dance.

FOR AN orchid is really not as fragile as it looks; treated with some proper concern it will keep gay and fresh for hours, and relapse into the home vase, good for a day of interior decorating after the ball.

Orchids hate heat. They love to lurk in the ice chest during their sleeping hours, and they prefer to have a bit of their stems nipped off when they come out of their naps in the morning.

Orchids hate to be mauled by insensitive hands, though they do not bruise as sadly as a gardenia for even with one petal all jammed to the deuce, an orchid still looks pretty swell, though lop-sided.

So it is wise to carry one's orchids on one's muff, rather than tucked onto a lapel with good effect.

The very pale orchids untouched with purple, but with a hint of yellow in their throats, go beautifully with tailleurs of the more formal variety, made of broadcloth or some of the fine novelty woolens.

beside the chip on one's shoulder. Or to place it midway on the bodice so that neither the chin nor the table edge can lean on it unbeknownst, and ruin it.

The lines of a gown will suggest the best spot. The curve of the neck and shoulder at a point too far back for the chin to reach around from the front, and too far forward for the coiffure to droop on it from the back is a great place to add orchids when a high-necked gown is being worn. With frocks that have a drop shoulder line, the edge of the model over the arm is a good place to choose.

LATELY A great many smart women have discovered that orchids look magnificent in a quiet way on their tailored clothes, even their tweeds, which is something new under the sun. Those many slipper effects can be used this way, or a tiny spray of yellow butterfly orchids clipped off the yard long streamer which is their natural form of growth can be

Any knowing woman will instantly see two significant facts in the sketch to the right. First, it shows Vionnet's great success with the off-the-shoulder neckline. Second, it shows that flowers can be worn with it. For so chaste is this design that it calls for something to set it off brilliantly, and yet a necklace gets out of step with it. The gown is ice green moire; the orchids, green lady slippers.

SAFETY DIRECTOR JOB STILL OPEN, M'NAIR SAYS

POLITICS

Pinchot May Demand Confirmation of P. S. C. Appointees

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Dec. 11.—Unless his demand is anticipated tonight, Gov. Pinchot tomorrow is expected to address the Senate with an insistence that his five appointees to the Public Service Commission shall be confirmed.

Mr. Shields

In this special session, as in the regular session of 1933, the Senate Committee on Executive Nominations has indicated no intention of approving the Governor's selections. In 1933 there was a disposition on the part of some Senators to confirm Dr. Clyde L. King as chairman after his controversy with the Governor.

The reason back of this was chiefly a desire to annoy Mr. Pinchot and prevent him doing what he did after the Senate adjourned, refrain from renominating Dr. King.

However, Dr. King and some of his friends urged Senators against confirmation unless the whole list was to be approved. They advised that to single out Dr. King would put him in a bad light, and tend to substantiate the Governor's charges that the commission chairman had "outlived his usefulness" to the public, making consumers suspicious that he had become useful to the utilities.

During this session there has been considerable legging about in the interest primarily of two commissioners, Chairman C. J. Goodnough and Commissioner P. S. Stahlnecker, former secretary to the Governor. There have been some supporters for George W. Woodruff, Herman Goldberg and Fred P. Gruenberg, the three other commission members named by the Governor.

Goodnough Backed By Grundy Forces

But the chief drive has been for the first two named. Goodnough has the backing of the forces of former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, and Stahlnecker, in addition to his friends in the Pinchot circle, has some assistance from organization groups which could never get along with Mr. Pinchot.

Generally speaking, utility interests are reported satisfied with the personnel of the commission. They are represented as not believing they get any the best of it in desicions, but they would like to have the Public Service Commission settled. They feel that should these commissioners be rejected then the Governor as a retaliatory measure might name five men who would rip the utility structure to pieces.

However, there are a few utility men of the opinion that this commission might become a bit more radical if assured of tenure of office.

Chairman Goodnough was for years a member of the House, and in 1926 managed the Pinchot campaign for the Senate. He was Speaker in 1923 and 1931.

In the 1930 campaign there was some doubt as to whether he would side with the Governor or Francis Shunk Brown in the Republican primary, but when Grundy came out for Pinchot, the position of Mr. Goodnough was determined.

When Dr. King was ousted as chairman he was supplanted by Mr. Goodnough, presumably at the instance of the Grundy forces, though previously the new chairman had given no evidence that he was in sympathy with the Pinchot attitude on utilities.

In 1926, when the Governor called the first and only special session of his first term—he has called three in this term and maybe another to come—Mr. Goodnough was chairman of the Committee on Manufacturers.

The session was called almost solely to pass some utility legislation embraced in what the Governor called a giant power program.

There were several bills to make it effective. They went to Mr. Goodnough's committee. And they stayed there.

If the Senate refuses to confirm the Pinchot appointees or rejects them, then the utility question will become an issue again next year if Mr. Pinchot runs for the Senate.

Push Insurance Quiz, Van Dyke Urges

Democratic State Chairman Warren Van Dyke in his weekly statement last night urged the Legislature to continue an investigation of the State Insurance Department, as demanded in a resolution by Representative Cohen, of York County.

Things are not so good in the department, Mr. Van Dyke says. The head of the department, Charles F. Armstrong, of Armstrong County, has been ill for months, and virtually disassociated from his office.

Last week Mr. Van Dyke asked the Governor to broaden the call to permit impeachment of Justices John W. Kephart and W. I. Schaffer, of the Supreme Court, and Judge Thomas J. Baldridge, of the Superior Court, because of the appearance of their names on a Morgan preferred list. The Governor promptly rejoined that impeachment could be started at any time.

This week Mr. Van Dyke said nothing new on that subject, though it is understood that tonight at their weekly dinner Democrats will consider the subject. Their resultant action is viewed as a test of whether they mean business or were just seeking publicity.

3 DEAD, 2 HURT IN WEEK-END CRASHES

2 Drivers Held in Connection With Accidents

Three persons were killed by automobiles in Pittsburgh area yesterday and Saturday night. One motorist was held as an alleged hit-and-run driver.

Herbert Ferden, 26, of 1515 Wesley avenue, McKeesport, was killed yesterday morning near Fifteen Street Bridge while en route home from a party. Police, describing it as a hit-run case, later arrested Milton L. Huemme, 26, of Greenock, Pa. Huemme was held for the Coroner at a hearing before Magistrate J. James Lundie.

Louis L. Laskey, 28, of Middle street, Allison Park, was killed yesterday when his automobile struck a pole in Freeport road.

C. O. Forlinderry, of Jackson, Miss., was held at Greensburg in connection with the death of William Swayk, 20, of Elder street, East Pittsburgh, according to detectives. Swayk was killed in an accident on Lincoln highway Saturday night.

Ephriam Truxall, 58, of 5428 Howe street, was injured by an automobile as he alighted from a street car at Fifth avenue and Bellefonte street last night.

Tony Iovito, 12, of 4421 Millgate street, was hurt in an automobile collision at Frankstown avenue and La Schall street yesterday.

The Mattis family was driving out the lane from their farm near Linden Hall as the train roared up. The lane crosses the Lewisburg branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

UPHOLD TRUST TAX DEDUCTION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court ruled today that trustees of estates, in computing income for federal tax purposes, are permitted to deduct money paid the widow of the creator of the trust in lieu of power and other statutory rights, but that the payments are taxable to the widow.

The question arose in four test cases involving trust estates created by William L. Dubois and William B. Butterworth, of Pennsylvania, and J. H. Woodward, of Alabama.

In each instance the testator's widow elected to take an interest in the trust created by the will in lieu of her dower and statutory interests in the estate left by her late husband.

The widows refused to pay federal income taxes on the money they received from the trust estates, and the commissioner of internal revenue held the trustees of the estates must include the disbursements to the widows as taxable income in their federal tax returns.

The lower courts decided against the government.

Mary Pickford's Own Story of Eventful Life

Fame and Vain Quest For Happiness Recounted

The triumphs and tragedies of Mary Pickford's career are told poignantly in her "life story," by Marjorie Driscoll. The first of its daily installments follows:

CHAPTER I.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 11.

"For several years, my married life has become increasingly unhappy. Being convinced that under existing circumstances the future offers no solution, it is with deepest regret that I have filed suit for divorce."

Sorrow and heartbreak behind those simple words in which Mary Pickford at last made her own dignified announcement that the breach between herself and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, was past mending.

And so there is an end to all the rumors and whispers that the screen's most famous couple—not so many years ago hailed as the screen's happiest couple — would eventually be reconciled and start life together again.

It was Mary Pickford's curtain speech to the most tragic role she has ever played; a role in which she smiled to hide her heartbreak, in which she summoned to her aid all the pride and courage that had carried her through years of striving, hard years and difficult times.

Mary Pickford in the role of a neglected wife; a wife left alone at home, in the home that had been built out of love and comradeship, and that slowly grew into a desolation when Douglas Fairbanks chose to go gadding over the world—alone.

For three years, Mary Pickford has turned a brave face to the world, meeting rumors, whispers, gossip, with her head high. Those close to her guessed what was happening, and they would have sympathized, but Mary did not want sympathy. She was fighting her battle alone and she would not cry for help.

DREAM CASTLE FALLS

Against that courageous pride, rumors could make no headway, until, last summer, the matter-of-fact phrases of a newspaper advertisement crumbled Mary Pickford's last defenses.

"For sale . . ."

For sale, on the open market, the home that love had built—Pickfair, the castle of dreams.

And, until she read that newspaper advertisement, Mary Pickford did not know that Fairbanks had taken the final step.

He had gone away again, across the sea to Europe, without telling her that Pickfair was to be advertised for sale.

It was characteristic of Mary Pickford that she did not flinch when friends, in amazement, pointed out to her that commonplace advertisement.

MEETS ISSUE SQUARELY

Happiness was crumbling and crashing, and in its stead the bitter-sweet mixture of love and memory arose for "America's Sweetheart." Drearily, inevitably, she knew the meaning of that little block of type.

Perhaps Mary Pickford, sitting there in big, lonely Pickfair, surrounded by so many things that reminded her of the past, wondered if anything were worth while—if it paid to be brave and fight, to smile at poverty and hard work, to struggle and win.

If it paid to love, when love could hurt so.

And more than likely, in a little while her head was held high again and her eyes were steady as they looked into the future.

If it had to be, she would meet it squarely.

Her friends know that that is Mary Pickford's way.

ENVIED BY MILLIONS

They have read of her triumphs —of the crowds surging for a glimpse of her—of her wealth, her clothes, her beautiful home, her travels.

They have lingered over the story of her romance with Douglas Fairbanks; a romance that lasted for 13 years before headlines in the Examiner one morning last

Mayor Upholds Sunday Shows in Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Motion picture theaters were open for two shows yesterday with the approval of Mayor Eddie McCloskey, whose only stipulation is that 25 per cent of every Sunday's receipts must go to the Salvation Army.

For "reformers" and supporters of the Blue Laws, Mayor McCloskey says he has this answer:

"If they tell me the Blue Laws of 1794 are still in effect, I'll give them a copy of the United States Constitution of 1776 to read."

To support his official approval of Sunday movies, Mayor McCloskey points out that the Legislature and the voters sanctioned liberalization of Sunday laws to permit sports, attended principally by men and youth, but has forgotten the entertainment of "mothers, wives and sisters."

MARY GOES ON 'TO NEW THINGS'

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Mary Pickford, America's sweetheart, is on a New York-bound train today, "going on to new things."

There will be no turning for the actress who startled movieland recently by filing her long-threatened divorce action against Douglas Fairbanks, the nomad of the screen. Before she left here today, Miss Pickford said:

"I'd rather not discuss the divorce. That's all in back of me. I'm going on to new things."

A shadow crossed her face at the next question, but she answered it, saying:

"There is no truth in the report that I filed for divorce at Mr. Fairbanks' request."

Asked about the changed mode of living which the disruption of her home will demand, Miss Pickford replied:

"Oh, I want to get away from Hollywood for a while. I love New York. I must have a change and I'm going to enjoy being in New York again."

2 BILLION SEALS TO BE SOLD

Nearly 2,000,000,000 Christmas Seals will be bought by Americans this winter in the United States, according to John F. Casey, chairman of the Christmas Seal sale in Allegheny County, where approximately 2,000,000 will be disposed of in the fight on tuberculosis.

The sale is sponsored by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, of which Casey is president, and in large part finances educational, preventive and treatment work carried on by the league through the year.

In 1910 only 30,000,000 seals were sold in the United States.

Driver Exonerated In Death of Woman

Edward Ehrhardt, 22, of 33 Kenwood avenue, North Side, was acquitted of involuntary manslaughter in Criminal Court today in connection with the death of Mrs. Eleanor A. Thompson, 56, of 629 South Negley avenue. The defendant was directed to pay the costs. The woman was struck by Ehrhardt's automobile September 2.

Airplane Service Survey Being Made

Surveys are being made by Richard Coulter, III, and John H. Coulter, of Greensburg, preparatory to the establishment of a Pittsburgh-Huntington, W. Va., air passenger service with ships stopping at Yorkville, O., and Parkersburg, W. Va. The route may be established in March.

Braddock Hunter Dies in Auto Crash

En route to Ligonier on a hunting trip, Adolph Ertman, 53, of Braddock, was fatally injured and his companion, William Trinder, 43, also of Braddock, was injured seriously as their auto was forced off the highway by a truck. Ertman died a short time later. Trinder suffered a fractured arm.

Risking Both Their Lives, Gailliard Leaps From Train With Gail

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

"You made me do it," she said breathlessly. "My orders are to kill you or drive you across the border. I'm trying to do my duty and save you, too; and you try to make a traitor of me. Now will you give me your parole?"

He made her no reply. She could feel the swelling muscles in his clenched right hand where the steel band held it against her own. She could feel his whole supple, powerful body throbbing with rage and terrible despair.

"I do love you, but you forced me to choose," she whispered fiercely, "and I care more for the United States than I do for you!"

In the frightening darkness the locomotive whistled again. A lantern glimmered as a rush of air and cinders swept through the car from an opening door, and the conductor passed along the aisle, his lantern shining on rows of empty seats.

He moved on slowly into the car ahead. The train whistle sounded again and again; brakes began to check the speed of the cars; a signal lamp flashed by; another light glided past more slowly; others more slowly still.

Suddenly, young Gailliard jerked her handcuffed left wrist behind her back, pinned it there, clasping her waist with his manacled right arm. She snatched at the pistol in her dress pocket, but he passed his free left hand under her knees and sprang to his feet, cradling her while she struggled venomously to get at her pistol.

"Don't jump!" she panted. "You'll kill us both! Have you gone crazy?" striking at his face with terrified fists. "Oh, darling, don't kill me."

"Will you let me go?"

With all her strength she struck him in the face, dazing him. Then, half-blinded, he jumped out into darkness where stars glimmered on shrouded water.

He also had watched the stars too long to fear the night.

Knocked Senseless

But it seemed that the classic road to the stars did not pass through starry waters. There was no splash when they landed; merely a violent shock. For that agile young man, gripping his writhing victim, had landed on a barrack of marsh hay; and the girl, falling on top of him, knocked the breath out of his body.

When at last he was able to breathe again he gasped out an inquiry regarding her bodily welfare, but got no reply from her. For, when those two fighting youngsters landed, their heads had rapped together like a pair of coconuts, dazing him and knocking the five wits clean out of her; and now she lay senseless and inert across him, her slender left arm still manacled to his right arm, and doubled under her body.

He contrived to flounder upright, buried to the knees in the moldy marsh hay. Then he seated himself, drew her left arm from under her and let her sink back against his shoulder. As soon as he had satisfied himself that the fall had not broken her back or her wrist or dislocated her shoulder, he groped

1,000 TO WORK SEALING MINES

The Federal State Employment Bureau today was to begin preliminary work towards the eventual employment of more than 1,000 jobless on the largest CWA project yet approved for Allegheny County, that of sealing abandoned coal mines.

At the bureau's headquarters, 108 Smithfield street, it was said that unemployed miners and others will be selected from lists within a few days.

The program of sealing the mines will be spread over an area including the entire Ohio and Monongahela river basins. The result of the work will be a better water supply for the district, officials said. For many years the water supply has been contaminated by refuse from the mines.

Already a number of men have been hired for the work, among them foremen who will direct their activities.

Despondent Man Commits Suicide

Despondent because of ill health and finances, Joseph Maszle, 46, hanged himself in his bedroom of his home in Bellwood road, Mifflin Township, according to a report to the county morgue. He leaves his wife and six children.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Dec. 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Many a thing in our Sunday papers that showed a great picking up of things, and it was not ballyhoo, and not all government paid works either. This thing of "We can't go ahead till we know exactly what our dollar is worth" is hooey. Your bankers and your financiers marry with no gold clause.

Will Rogers

The preacher just guarantees you she is a wife. How long you can keep her, what she is worth to you, is all up to you. Roosevelt, like the preacher, says "Here is a dollar. It can always be used for a dollar." Yours, WILL.

DOESN'T AGREE THAT TABOR'S RIGHT MAN

Mayor-Elect Called 'Moses' at Church Meeting

The Public Safety Director's post is open to anybody capable of handling the position, Mayor-elect William N. McNair revealed in an address in the East End Christian Church, South Highland avenue and Alder street, last night. He said:

"If you can name anybody in this audience capable of the job, I will go home and feel content he is the one we want. Name the man and that's the appointment."

TABOR MENTIONED

Edward O. Tabor was mentioned by someone in the audience, to which McNair replied:

"Do you agree with that appointment? Well, I don't. But listen, that's no reflection on Tabor."

Sam Watters, chairman of the East End Christian Church board, introducing McNair, said:

"He is the one who is destined to be the Moses to lead us into a new promised land—the New Deal."

The Mayor-elect spoke on the very rare qualities of Nehemiah who cured a depression. He said depression in Pittsburgh would be over in three days provided a teacher, salesman and orator of the Nehemiah type were discovered here.

While talking on laws of the economic trend, McNair said:

"In our elections two and two aren't always four. To some of our candidates the result is five and sometimes more.

"My question is not a question of the laws of government or economics. It is the question of the people to understand the laws of God. This earth is the Lord's gift to us—not to Schenley."

NOT MAYOR YET

Someone wrote a question and sent it up to him asking:

"Do you intend to improve street car service and reduce fares — something you stressed before election?"

McNair answered:

"In the first place, I'm not Mayor yet. Who is there to say what I'm thinking?"

McNair completed his round of five addresses last night at St. Nicholas' Catholic Church, in North Side. During the morning he addressed his Bible class, then spoke at Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, and completed the afternoon with a talk before the Rodef Shalom Alumni Association in the Temple Alumni Hall.

ESSAY WINNERS TO GET PRIZES

Prize-awarding exercises for the Better Traffic Committee's seventh annual traffic essay contest will be held Friday night in Syria Mosque. Five college scholarships, 203 cash prizes totaling $1,000 to winners in the three age divisions of the contest, and a $5 prize to each of the 216 participating schools will be presented.

The contest, held in October, was participated in by approximately 90,000 public and parish school pupils above the third grade, Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education section, said. Subjects used were developments of the general theme that traffic laws are patterned after the rule of life of "survival of the fittest."

Growers of Grape Happy as Hornet In Nudist Camp

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Effect of repeal on national health is amazing. It requires four policemen to take one man home now.

We're getting stronger and noisier. Instead of climbing a lamppost to light a cigar a citizen now grabs it by the handlebars and bends it in two.

New York citizens are drinking while seated. But we must strap them in their chairs to keep 'em there.

An Oregon man started drinking for taxes and soon exceeded his quota. So he started out to help Standard Oil, U. S. Steel and the Pennsylvania Railroad. He got them all out of the red.

Repeal is going so fast in Chicago that the boys came out of the other end of the Constiptlon. They went right through all the amendments and did a fan dance with the Declaration of Independence.

The California wine growers are as happy as hornets in a nudist colony. So we must accept all reports as good news until we get corroboration from a sober, reliable source.

NEW JUVENILE HOME HELD NECESSARY

Immediate construction of a new Juvenile Court detention home by means of a loan and gift from the federal government was strongly urged today by the western branch of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs of the Public Charities Association.

Curtis A. Williams, secretary of the organization, in a letter to the County Commissioners, said the present quarters and material facilities of the juvenile home are inadequate, and that they can obtain all the funds necessary for the project from the Public Works Commission.

AID TO UNEMPLOYED

Thirty per cent of the total amount would come as an outright donation, he explained, while the remainder could be borrowed at a low rate of interest and on long-term repayment plans. He said:

"To begin the job now would, in addition to meeting a crying need in the local program of child welfare at a great saving, furnish much work to help relieve conditions of unemployment in the community.

"To postpone the matter until times are better would not only mean the loss of the 30 per cent donation but a much higher cost due to the inevitable rise in the prices of labor and materials."

A similar request was made of the commissioners by the Legislative Council of Western Pennsylvania, composed of 20 women's groups in Allegheny County, who say the present condition of the court home are "totally inadequate." Mrs. Harvey Fouse, president of the council, said:

"The efficiency of the newly-created Juvenile Court, to be set up the first of the year, will be impaired fully 60 per cent because of the handicap caused by the physical conditions in the home. The community will also pay later in adult crime for its failure to provide adequate facilities for the juvenile delinquents."

Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, in a letter to the Committee on Penal Affairs, said that the Public Works funds are rapidly being allotted and it is necessary that any application for home funds be submitted at once.

HELD UNSUITABLE

As far back as 1927 the National Probation Association commented on the inadequacy of the juvenile home and in 1928 a committee of the League of Women Voters found the home "unsuitable in every way."

A. L. Wills, superintendent of the home, located at 3336 Fifth avenue, stated:

"The whole plant is dingy and unattractive, poorly equipped and unscientifically ventilated. It would mean a large outlay of money to repaint the old plant and put it into even the semblance of repair. The present management feels that such expenditure would be a waste of public funds."

The present detention home, Wills added, has a normal capacity of from 60 to 65 children, yet it frequently is called upon to house many more than this number and at times over 90.

OFFICER KILLS CAPTOR ON CAB

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Held prisoner on the running board of a careening taxicab by a burglar suspect who stood behind, poking a pistol against him, a Columbus patrolman yesterday risked his life to thrust his own gun behind himself and fatally wounded his captor.

The mortally-wounded suspect fired one shot in return, and the patrolman, Eitel Hoffman, fell to the street with a bullet in his thigh.

Hoffman and a fellow patrolman, Fred Moore, in a police automobile, came upon the suspect when he entered an automobile bearing Indiana license plates, reported used in a robbery at London, O.

Locking the doors after he entered, he refused to admit the officers. Hoffman then fired a shot through a window, and the suspect jumped out on the other side, fleeing on foot.

Commandeering the taxicab, Hoffman overtook the suspect, but was captured. At pistol point, the suspect forced Hoffman to stand in front of him on the taxicab running board, and ordered the driver to "drive on and drive fast."

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 11.—Delegates from throughout the state converged on Johnstown today as final preparations for opening of the Pennsylvania State Grange convention tomorrow neared completion.

The three-day assembly is expected to attract upwards of 800 members and will be held in the local high school auditorium.

Speakers will include L. J. Taber, Columbus, O., National Grange master; State Secretary of Agriculture John McSparren, and two past masters of the Pennsylvania Grange. J. A. Boak, New Castle, present master, is to preside.

The opening day program calls for the annual address, committee appointments and evening entertainment.

Request for Funds Causes Man's Arrest

A request for funds from the parents of a 15-year-old Baltimore girl he is alleged to have taken from her home caused the arrest here yesterday of Edward Kinder, 23, a carnival follower, of Harrisburg, according to a police report.

Kinder and the girl were taken into custody following the arrival of her parents, who said they had been asked for $9 medical expense for their daughter, police reported.

FRANK FUNERAL AT JEWISH HOME

Funeral services for Jacob H. Frank, 67, one of the founders of Frank and Seder, who died at his home, 4219 Saline street, Saturday, will be held at the Jewish Home for the Aged, at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow. Interment will be in the Tree of Life Cemetery, Sharpsburg.

For many years Mr. Frank had been active in the affairs of the home, where his body will lie in state from 10 a. m. tomorrow until the hour of the funeral.

Because of the death of Mr. Frank, a luncheon to have been given at the home next Thursday has been postponed indefinitely, it was announced today at the home.

Mr. Frank was born in Russia and came to the United States when a young man. He received his early business training in Brooklyn, where he conducted a clothing business before coming to Pittsburgh.

His first business venture here was a partnership with Isaac Seder, when they opened a women's ready-to-wear store in the uptown section of Fifth avenue. In 1908 they moved their store to Fifth avenue and Smithfield street, the site of their present business. Ten years later they expanded into other buildings at the corner. The building now occupied was erected after a disastrous fire swept the corner more than 15 years ago.

Mr. Frank had for many years been active in philanthropic work, and besides being concerned with the Jewish Home for the Aged, was a director of the Montefiore Hospital, and a former president of the Tree of Life Synagogue.

Besides his widow he leaves two sons, Mortimer P. and Cecil Frank; three daughters, Mrs. Saul Finkelhor, Mrs. Harold Herwitt and Mrs. Bert Klivans, and a sister, Mrs. Abram Broida.

DOLL LADY

Is in Pittsburgh Again! This Year She Brings Gorgeous

"HONEY-SUCKLE"

"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall, just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.

"Honeysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE! And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard. She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace, with bonnet and shoes to match.

Oh, we forget to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes; you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."

"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for Christmas. Shall I save a "Honeysuckle" for you?"

DOLL LADY HEADQUARTERS
622 GRANT ST.

Open From 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Until Christmas. Come in and Meet "Honeysuckle."

Easy to Get!

Every little girl in Pittsburgh and vicinity can easily secure one of these wonderful dolls for Christmas. All they have to do is to take the subscription blanks out among their neighbors, relatives and friends and get them signed. There is no money to pay and no money to collect. Just get the blanks properly filled in, send them to The Doll Lady Department, Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh, Pa., and you'll have "Honeysuckle" for your Christmas playmate.

Make This Toy in an Evening

Here is a toy that no toy menagerie is complete without—an elephant. Just as popular as a cuddle toy as it is in reality in the zoo. Santa should certainly include this in his pack. If he is very rushed now as Christmas is so near, he will be relieved to know that any of his helpers can make this cuddly elephant in one evening. And when it is done it measures about 12 inches in length.

Pattern 610 comes to you with a pattern for the elephant, complete directions and yardages for making.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

FARLEY VISITS PAUL-BONCOUR

By WILLIAM PARKER.
International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—In an interview with Postmaster General James A. Farley, Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour said today he "believes it is true" that President Roosevelt's program is destined for the common good of the entire world.

The meeting was "unofficial" to the extent Farley is on vacation and studiously avoiding the role of presidential emissary. But it was carried out with considerable formality and involved an exchange of greetings between the chief executives of the United States and France.

In the course of his European jaunt, Farley has called upon such diverse figures as Premier Mussolini, Pope Pius XI., and his former close political acquaintance, James J. Walker, ex-Mayor of New York.

10 P. C. TAX CUT DEMANDED OF COUNCIL

Taxpayers and real estate organizations today demanded that City Council reduce the tax levy for 1934.

In a letter signed by I. Leonard Aronson, president, the Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League asked a reduction of from 10 to 15 per cent.

John Dimling, league vice president, appeared before Council declaring he would sell his realty holdings for one-half their assessed value.

E. H. Gilg, of the Community Research Bureau, Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, requested Council to "cut the taxes to conform to the people's ability to pay." He commended the attitude of Chief City Assessor Thomas C. McMahon in slashing $100,000,000 from assessments.

ASSESSMENT SLASH

McMahon informed Council the reduction consisted of a cut of $40,000,000 on land values and $60,000,000 on buildings. He said:

"If we had reduced in all instances where an appeal was taken the total cut in assessments would have been $350,000,000."

Aronson, making an appeal to Council to lower the millage, was taken to task by several members of Council for a bill which his organization has sponsored at Harrisburg to remove penalties and interest from delinquent taxes.

Such a bill would encourage non-payment of taxes and make the city's problem more difficult, councilmen declared.

Council faced the task of cutting more than $1,200,000 out of the budget to even hold the tax at last year's rate. Last week Council reduced Mayor John S. Herron's budget $176,000 to $21,269,000.

However, the time was passed largely in dealing with items of supplies and materials which previously had been pruned closely by the Mayor. The larger cuts are more likely in the payroll items which form the larger part of the budget.

BIG CUT NEEDED

Before it can think about tax reduction, Council has to cut an additional $100,000 to get down to last year's adjusted appropriation, and then lop off $1,100,000 to make up for the reduction of $100,000,000 in realty assessments.

This is without paying any attention to the city deficit which now is estimated at between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 and has reached a point where it is too unwieldy to be carried over without embarrassment, at the end of the year.

Council has shown a disposition this year to act on a number of items in the budget which in previous years have been the subject of much conversation, but little action.

There is the matter of managing the City-County Building through a contract drawn up on a bidding basis with some firm. For years the Building Owners and Managers have insisted the cost of running the City-County Building is three times too much.

Such an arrangement would have dire results for the payroll, but Council this year is giving it serious consideration.

MARY PICKFORD'S LIFE STORY

Plays Most Tragic Part in Role of Neglected Wife

month set all the world talking.

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks had separated, and there might be a divorce. There would be no reconciliation.

Millions of movie fans have known and loved Mary Pickford as the eternal spirit of youth, smiling from the silver screen. They knew vaguely, perhaps, that she had worked hard to gain that pinnacle of fame; they guessed that she could scarcely have lived two-score years without knowing some measure of sorrow.

NOT ALL SUNSHINE

But they forgot all that when they saw her on the screen and heard her voice speaking in the miracle of the talkies.

It has not been sunshine all the way for "America's Sweetheart." She has known great happiness and great sorrow. She has known what it is to live in luxury, and what it is to haunt theatrical offices, looking for a job and worrying desperately because a sudden rainstorm spoiled her only hat.

She has heard the shouts of thousands, struggling good-naturedly for a glimpse of her, calling their welcome and their love, and she has been desperately lonely because one man would rather spend his time hurrying about Europe from ducal house party to princely dinners than to stay at home with her.

Twice she thought she had found happiness in marriage, and twice she saw her hopes crumble.

Five years ago she sat beside the death bed of her mother, whose life had been devoted to her daughter's career.

SMILES HIDE TEARS

Only last January she rode, smiling graciously, at the head of the Tournament of Roses parade in Pasadena—and her trouper's smile hid the tragic knowledge that her brother, Jack Pickford, was dying in far-away Paris; perhaps at that very minute drawing his last breath.

The story of Mary Pickford is one of the great stories of the stage and screen. Bits of it have been told, here and there. Shunning the glare of publicity, shrinking from noisy acclaim, Mary Pickford has never blazoned her story to the world.

Success, wealth and fame, almost beyond dreams, crowned the years of hard, sincere work which Mary Pickford gave to her chosen profession. Present-day film aspirants, who fret because they cannot have a new car or a new fur coat, might learn wisdom from Mary, who kept her smiling courage through days when a very pressing worry was whether or not she could manage to earn enough for mere food.

And yet all this success and this wealth have left Mary Pickford sweet and unspoiled.

THINKS OF OTHERS

Always, she has thought of others. In her early years, and until death entered the family circle, it was her mother, her brother and her sister. Then it was others whom she loved, and whom, in spite of cruel disillusionments, she sought to protect.

When the crash of the Pickford-Fairbanks romance set the world's tongues wagging, Mary Pickford loyally tried to put the best face on things.

It was not until matters reached such a pass that she could not hide them any longer—when the newspaper advertisement appeared—that she admitted the break. Even then she later tried pathetically to pretend that it was a mistake.

And, two years ago, she made one of her rare public statements to the effect that Fairbanks wanted her to give up her career and travel with him, but she could never give up pictures.

FRIENDS KNEW SECRET

Friends, close to her, read that statement with a catch in their throats. They knew that Mary Pickford had not gone abroad with her husband on his frequent trips, simply because she had not been asked, and they recognized her explanation as an effort to hide the real situation from the world.

On one of Fairbanks' recent trips to Europe, he hurried away from Hollywood when Mary had only a week's work left to be done on "Secrets."

She had hoped to go with him, but he wouldn't wait, even a week. He HAD to go to Europe.

Later, after she had gone to Italy and had met him there, rumors came drifting back that the dashing Fairbanks had sought to "make up" for his haste, but that even under Venetian skies he was longing to return to his friends in London.

DOUG FEARED DIVORCE

Even more recently, Fairbanks gained front-page publicity by a spectacular airplane dash from Los Angeles to Kansas City, where he joined Mary on her way to New York.

But not on the front pages was the rest of the story—that Mary had learned from other sources that her husband was planning another trip abroad, that he had spend days at his ranch without communicating with her, and that when he discovered that she had started for New York he became seriously alarmed and went racing after her, to see what it was all about.

Friends close to the Fairbanks family said that he feared she would seek a divorce, then and there.

And within the last few weeks came the final confirmation that Douglas Fairbanks, to whom Hollywood and America gave his chance to become famous and wealthy, is planning to remain in England, there to produce films for the American market in which he expects to use English artists who have made their film names in Hollywood.

BREAK MADE PUBLIC

The announcement from London carried out the prediction, freely made when Fairbanks' trips abroad became more and more frequent, and when the news of his break with Mary Pickford became known, that he would choose to remain in Europe, leaving Mary to pick up the wreckage of her happiness—alone.

When the Hearst newspapers carried the first definite news that the rift between Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks was serious, the first question was:

"What does Doug say about it?"

He was in Europe, a frequent guest at parties where titles were generally worn.

The cables and wireless carried the news across the Atlantic; the news that Mary had reluctantly admitted that "a separation between Douglas and myself is contemplated."

HE IGNORES MARY

Over in Europe, Fairbanks could not have escaped hearing that word.

And what did he say?

He said nothing at all.

He dodged interviewers, refused to make any statement.

He did not even communicate with his wife.

That was one of the hardest blows that Mary Pickford had to bear, but she bore it, as she had all the rest, with her head up.

Only the day after the news became known Mary appeared at the national air races in Los Angeles as official hostess of the day.

But she went through it, because she had promised.

Mary Pickford keeps her promises.

All her life she has been doing that.

When she was a little girl, she promised herself that some day she would be a great actress; that some day she would be so successful that her mother would no longer need to work hard as an actress, and harder still with her needle, to meet the needs of a young family.

COURAGEOUS AS CHILD

And so the story of Mark Pickford—who was Gladys Smith in those days—starts on a note of courage.

It goes back to a day in Toronto, Canada, when a 4-year-old girl was taken past a closed door and somehow, even then, dimly felt that she must help her mother, who wept so much because father was strangely silent and still behind that closed door.

Heart Aches While Millions Envy Her Success

It tells of a baby even younger — a mite of 3 — gravely going through mimic scenes with the parlor chairs for hero and villain and herself for the heroine.

It brings back from the past a girl of 15 braving the unknown ground of a movie studio, frightened half to death, but going steadily through her camera tests; learning how to play a love scene by embracing a post; winning a leading role on her third day in the movies.

STARDOM HER GOAL

It takes her — Gladys Mary Smith transformed into Mary Pickford—steadily upward toward film stardom, with laughs and tears, by the way, but always with her goal ahead and her eyes fixed on it.

It touches her first romance with the handsome young actor who was so wonderful in the eyes of a 17-year-old girl, and shows that romance wrecked in spite of all that patience and forgiveness could do.

'MOBBED' IN EUROPE

It takes her to Europe, where crowds flocked around her, surging over police lines until Douglas Fairbanks had to snatch her up bodily and lift her on his shoulders to keep her tiny body from being trampled under foot in the very excitement of the crowd.

It tells of the end of that first girlish romance and the beginning of another that everybody believed would last as long as Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks lived.

It tells of a marriage that was blissfully happy for years, that knew scarcely a day of parting, until the glamor of foreign lands and foreign titles drew Douglas Fairbanks into a glittering new life that could not attract the woman who loved him.

LAUGHTER AND SORROW

It tells, in Mary Pickford's own words, how, gradually and insidiously, the new influence crept between them, until the day came when, with her head still high, but her smile dimmed by tears, she had to admit that it was no use trying any longer.

The Sun-Telegraph will tell that story, filled with laughter and sorrow, poverty and success, struggle and triumph.

So, tomorrow—introducing Gladys Mary Smith, aged 3, rather inarticulately but solemnly playing theater with a red-upholstered chair in the role of the villain.

Mayor John S. Herron and Councilman-elect Walter R. Demmler will be speakers at a banquet tonight in the Brighton Road Presbyterian Church, which will close a two-day mid-winter men's rally.

COUNTY BUDGET REQUESTS UP $220,000

Requested appropriations to the county budget total $20,678,499. This is more than $220,000 over the present year, figures made public today revealed.

Whether the present 8¼ mills county tax can be reduced must, of course, await budget paring—which the Commissioners will undertake in sessions opening Thursday—and an estimate of the county income.

Almost half of the sum asked—$9,012,286—will be needed for redemption and interest on bonds including those authorized by a former administration for a 40-million-dollar improvement program.

Salaries total $4,139,259.

Of expenses of 49 departments, decreases are asked in 23, increases in the remainder. The largest decrease, $164,187, comes from the maintenance of South Park. The largest increase of $41,593 is shown for the Board for Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

The Elections Bureau dropped its estimate $80,000—of that $13,699 representing a decrease in wages. For the present year this bureau had requested an increase of $60,000 in connection with the machines.

Although the county's valuations increased slightly, need for most stringent economy was seen. The tax collections have fallen to an estimated 68 per cent since the Commissioners based their present budget on a 73 per cent income. A million-dollar loan has been arranged to cover the deficit.

SEEK TO OUST M'COOEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The New York Times says supporters of Postmaster General James A. Farley and Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn will seek to oust John H. McCooey as Democratic leader of Brooklyn soon after January 1.

This will be the first step in a movement to break up the interborough alliances of Tammany Hall, the Times says, with leadership changes expected to follow in Queens and Richmond.

The Farley-Flynn faction of the Democratic party, the newspaper adds, hopes to have friendly county organizations in at least four of the five boroughs before next fall, when a state ticket will be nominated.

Sisterhood Plans Hanukkah Dinner

The Beth Aaron Sisterhood of Chofetz Chaim will give a Chanukah dinner next Sunday night at the synagogue, 5807 Beacon street. The following Wednesday night the Bible classes of the congregation will give a play and program to celebrate the Hanukkah festival. Miss Esther H. Ashinsky is in charge.

States May Govern Trains, Court Holds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The right of states to govern operation and length of freight trains in interstate commerce was upheld today by the Supreme Court.

The action sustains the Arkansas full train crew challenge by the Missouri Pacific Railroad in that the state was invading the field reserved to the federal government.

Plan Benefit Dance To Aid Hill Needy

A benefit dance for funds to carry on relief work will be held by the Lechem Aniyum Society in Webster Hall January 10. It will be open to the public.

For 17 years the Lechem Aniyum Society (Bread for the Poor) has made a practice of distributing baskets of food and clothing to unfortunates of the Hill district, distribution being made each Thursday. The society meets in Beth Jacob Hall, Epiphany and Townsend streets.

New Note in Neckline Interest

Pattern 1722

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

There are so many ways of making the neckline of your new afternoon frock becoming—but we think this one the darling of them all! Here a deep V vestee with a high cowl neckline lends a striking note of contrast against the dark, rich monotone of the frock. Three artificial flowers worn under the chin add an irresistible touch of chic. The new drop shoulder line is deftly asserted, and tucked sleeves achieve moderate fullness; hips are infinitely slimmed with smart skirt panels. You'll love it of satin, velvet, faille or mossy crepe, using bengaline, lame or satin for contrast.

Pattern 1722 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3⅛ yards 39-inch fabric and ⅞ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Columbia Lacks Reserves • Thornhill Never Ruffled
First Team Entire Power | Heavy Build-Up Urged
Heston Line Fades Out | Retzlaff Passes Quickly

LIONS DON'T HAVE NEEDED REPLACEMENTS

One weighty reason, aside from records and schedules, why Columbia is not so well qualified for the Rose Bowl football assignment as some of the teams passed up, is apparent from the angle of reserve strength. Any other Eastern eleven would have been up against the same handicap the Lions are facing in the possibility that unfavorable weather will prevent regular outdoor practice this month. Lack of practice hurts timing, and without proper timing no team can win. But any one of the other candidates would have been better fortified in the reserve department, at least.

Cliff Montgomery

Practically the whole strength of Columbia is in the first team. When Capt. Cliff Montgomery, Barabas, Matal and the other regulars have played themselves out, there isn't much left. The squad is small, hardly big enough to provide two teams for scrimmage, and the supply of good substitute material is limited. For an Eastern team to stand the pace in the Southern California climate on New Year's Day, the main requirement is plenty of replacements. Eastern gridders wilt quickly in the enervating climate of Pasadena, and to assure strong going over the full route there must be a large number of good reserves to jump in and relieve tiring mates. Columbia doesn't have them. For major competition, its first team is just about its limit. The very thing that is needed most on the Coast, replacement power, is the main thing the Lions lack.

REIGN OF HESTONS AT MICHIGAN ENDS

Though the football season of 1933 brought to Michigan its fourth straight Western Conference championship, it was not without regret that Wolverine followers viewed the ending of the campaign. For that final game against Northwestern ended the reign of the House of Heston.

Four Hestons have graced Michigan gridirons in the last 33 years, starting with the immortal Willie, all-time all-America back, in 1901. In 11 of those 33 seasons Michigan had a Heston, and in nine of the 11 campaigns a Heston helped the Wolverines to win the Big Ten title. There was no player of that name in school for 22 years after the graduation of the original Willie, but there has been one ever since, with the exception of 1928.

In 1926, Leroy Heston, a nephew of Willie, was on the Michigan team, and he played also in 1927. Then came the open year, but in 1929 William Martin Heston, Jr., oldest son of Willie, was on the squad, and he tried again in 1930. John Penrod Heston, the younger son of Willie, made his debut in 1931, and was a regular for three years. He was the best of the three young Hestons who played at Michigan in the last eight years, and the Wolverines won the Big Ten crown in each of his three seasons. There will not be another Heston at Ann Arbor unless a grandson of Willie the First comes along in a couple of decades.

NO FOOTBALL GAME EVER EXCITES TINY

It's a safe guess that before, during and after the Rose Bowl football classic on New Year's Day, about the coolest and most collected person on the premises will be one whom you might expect to show the greatest strain. He is Tiny Thornhill, Stanford coach. The former star tackle at Pitt never permits himself to become excited while watching his team in action, regardless of whether it is winning or losing. Paul Lowry describes him as a big hulk of a man in a brown suit, sitting on the Stanford bench and taking everything in unruffled fashion as a matter of course.

Tiny Thornhill

Tiny doesn't do a dervish when his team makes a touchdown. He doesn't exhibit any sophomoric enthusiasm when Bill Corbus kicks a goal from field. He doesn't register disappointment when the other side scores. The Cardinal coach rises when an injured player is brought to the bench. One of his boys is hurt—and that counts. Satisfied that the injury isn't serious, he sits down again. He is the most unconcerned man in the stadium. He just sits there in the middle of that bench, peering out from under an old slouch hat, making mental notes, no doubt, but as calm as the proverbial mill stream. The game over, win or lose, Thornhill rises slowly, stretches himself and ambles off the field. It's just a ball game to him. Men die from excitement or agitation. And those things are not for Tiny.

BROWN URGES BUILDING UP OF HEAVIES

Bill Brown, New York boxing commissioner, believes that one way to revive waning interest in the fight game in the Metropolis is to build up the heavyweight division. He thinks the average fan is more interested in the big fellows than in the smaller performers. For that reason he urges that promoters make a concerted effort to popularize the younger members of the heavyweight class by staging as many shows as possible in which the big boys may gain experience.

Brown has seen some promising young timber in looking over the Eastern heavyweight field. One of them is Charley Massera, the Monongahela product, Abe Feldman and Yustin Sirutis also are named, and there are several others who, in Brown's opinion, should be given an opportunity to develop.

ONE-TIME RIPPER NOW FORGOTTEN FIGHTER

At that, young heavyweights who develop flashily do not always become fixtures in the ranks of the stars . . . Ed Hughes recalls Charley Retzlaff, for example. Two years ago, Charley looked like a coming world champion. Now he's practically a forgotten fighter. Raw-boned and weather beaten, Retzlaff was a ferocious battler and a wicked puncher. They called him The Ripper. He looked most impressive in a preliminary to the Schmeling-Stribling fight in Cleveland, when he flattened a more experienced man named Gallagher. Once Gallagher was knocked down so hard with a left hook that he actually bounced.

Charley Retzlaff

Retzlaff's downfall started when he met Joe Sekyra. He wasn't knocked out, and he really gave a good account of himself, but he never had known there was such a left hand as Sekyra possessed and he was so badly cut and marked up that he went into a chronic state of pugilistic dejection and was ruined as a first-class fighting man. The Ripper didn't do any more ripping. He lost his fire, became meek and punch shy. Finally he was knocked out by Izzy Gastanaga and King Levinsky, and now he's just another might-have-been, giving and taking small-time lickings in the sticks.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 11.—Little Red Sullivan had a big time yesterday afternoon as the Duquesne University All-Stars and senior gridders from St. Louis, Washington and Purdue universities battled in the annual Boys' Club charity football game before some 3,000 fans. Sullivan grabbed a forward pass from Ganzy Benedict, former Duquesne halfback ace, and raced over the goal line to bring the Pittsburghers a 7-to-0 triumph.

For three-quarters of the contest the Pittsburghers had failed to get much of anywhere, while the Mound Citians, bolstered by insertion of the powerful Purdue trio, Paul Pardonner, Butch Keegan and Ungers, had on several occasions threatened the goal line. The Dukes, using first an array mainly of this season's seniors and later a combine composed entirely of alumni with exception of Left End Ed Powell, had held in the pinches, but, minus men of the caliber of Strutt, Rado Fillingham, Cutrona and other junior and sophomore talent, the Bluffites were not clicking with customary precision on the attack.

SCORE COMES LATE

Then came the fourth quarter. Bootin' Buff Donnelli, hero of many a dazzling Duquesne success in campaigns up to 1929, had punted a long high one to Pardonner, who had returned the pigskin 17 yards to the St. Louis 47 mark. Fats Rapp, home left halfback, spun through the line for five to the Duke 48, where Kass Kovalcheck and Benny Barrett bumped him. Here Keegan faded back and heaved a lengthy pass.

Hurtling in fast, Donnelli intercepted the pass on dead run on his own 34-yard line and progressed 10 yards ere Ungers nailed him. Benedict turned right flank for three. Ganzy's next effort was a pass that Pardon covered and nearly snared. Again Benedict passed. This time Sullivan was free. He made the catch and crossed the goal line standing up. Don. ell. place-kicked the extra point.

Coach Elmer Layden, of the Dukes, returned to his squad Saturday evening after signing a contract as Notre Dame grid mentor and athletic director at Indianapolis earlier in the day.

Layden will speak at Roger Bacon High School in Cincinnati tonight. He is carded for Turtle Creek tomorrow. Bradford on Wednesday and the alumni banquet at Webster Hall on Thursday. The Red and Blue warriors have been granted respite from practice till Thursday, when a fortnight of intensive drills for their University of Miami joust will get underway. The Dukes leave for the South on December 28 and will make the trip entirely by rail, rather than partly by boat as previously planned

ROPER, FAMOUS COACH, TAKEN BY DEATH

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11. — (AP.)—William W. (Bill) Roper, who won national fame as football coach of Princeton University and left the gridiron for a stormy place in Philadelphia politics, is dead. He died yesterday at the age of 53.

Bill Roper

The illness which brought his death began two months ago after he developed a streptococci infection. It cut short the triumph of a man who fought hard and long for prohibition repeal and legalization of Sunday sports in Pennsylvania, both of which arrived while he lay ill.

Interests of Roper's early life were centered entirely on football and he was named head coach at Princeton, his alma mater, while a law student at the University of Virginia.

STARTED IN 1906

He directed the teams of Princeton between 1906 and 1911, except for the 1909 season. Then he was coach at the University of Missouri, which won the Missouri Valley Championship that year.

In 1910 and 1911 he was back at Princeton with a team that defeated Harvard, Dartmouth and Yale. After the World War, Roper returned to football coaching at the university and through his skill in developing teams, often from unpromising material, placed the name of Princeton high in football records.

During 11 seasons up until his retirement in 1930, Roper's teams had 52 victories and 18 defeats and were tied 11 games. He led his "boys" to three "Big Three" championships.

He emphasized the need for spirit and fight in his teams, calling upon Princeton men to fight hard and play fair. He loved to win and had no time for the players who would not give all they had for success.

FOUGHT PROHIBITION

Roper and Tad Jones, Yale coach, were believed to be the first to enter a non-scouting agreement in 1927, and within two years Princeton had similar agreements with all its opponents except Cornell and Navy. He was a member of the football rules committee for years and the author of two books on football.

Always a teetotaler in the matter of liquor, Roper became active early in 1930 for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Snyder act, the Pennsylvania enforcement law. He also was one of the organizers of the movement started about that time to bring about repeal of the Pennsylvania blue laws of 1794, which prohibited Sunday amusements. He lived to see the blue laws amended to permit Sunday baseball and football in Pennsylvania municipalities, where voters gave their approval in local referenda.

Born in Philadelphia in 1880, Roper is survived by his widow and two children. His son, William W., Jr., was a member of this year's Princeton football squad and, like his father, played end.

Funeral services tentatively have been set for Tuesday.

PANTHER ACE HOT CHOICE OF CRITICS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Picked after a close, all-season survey by 210 of the country's outstanding coaches, sports writers, football officials and officials, the Hearst consensus All-America football team presented today ranks in the opinion of its selectors and gridiron experts as the cream of the football crop of 1933.

From end to end it shows a forward wall fit to clash with any that could be set up against it.

At left end, Skladany, of Pitt, is held the choice of virtually all those voting on the makeup of the team. The Panther star was chosen for national ranking by nearly everyone who saw him in action this year. Powerful, smart and shifty, he is eminently fitted for one of the wing posts. The other goes to Ted Petoskey, of Michigan, a wingman who has proved himself on what many observers regard the strongest team in the country.

CORBUS AT GUARD

At the tackles, are Crawford, of Duke, and Ceppi, of Princeton. The latter's fine work throughout the season, but particularly in the Yale game, where he shone on the attack and proved himself invaluable on defense, gave him the call.

Corbus, Stanford's great guard, whose name has dotted most of the selections of the mythical national elevens, is picked as one of the best the West Coast has provided in several seasons, and holding down the same spot on the other side of the line is Rosenberg, of Southern California, and a "natural" for the job.

At center, Bernard, of Michigan, is picked as a fit successor to a long succession of Wolverine stars, who have held the keystone job and proved themselves in it.

Selection of backs for a national team always is a ticklish job, but the consensus All-America quartet stands out equal to any combination, if not a bit superior, from the standpoint of brainy, deceptive play.

WARBURTON QUARTERBACK

Cotton Warburton, heady field general and scintillating broken field runner of Howard Jones' Southern California aggregation, gets the call for quarterback. His selection was virtually unanimous although Cliff Montgomery, Columbia's dashing leader, who will marshall the Lions against Stanford in the Rose Bowl clash, was a close second in the choice of the eastern selectors.

At left halfback is the clashing, pounding Pug Lund, of Minnesota, coupled with Feathers, Tennessee's plunging ace, who has stood out in the southern sector for the past three years.

Sauer, of Nebraska, a powerful, heady, brilliant back, gets the call for fullback. Bulwark of the Big Six champions this year, Sauer was almost impossible to stop and a defensive back unmatched by anyone in the country in the opinion of many.

Layden Signs Notre Dame Contract

COACH ELMER LAYDEN — THE REV. JOHN F. O'HARA

Duquesne University Coach Elmer Layden signing contract which makes him football coach and athletic director at his alma mater, Notre Dame University. Father O'Hara is the acting president of Notre Dame and the signing took place in the home of his mother in Indianapolis, Saturday. The contract is for a two-year period. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

BACH LIKELY TO GET GRID JOB ON BLUFF

LAYDEN'S AIDE FAVORED AS SUCCESSOR

By JESS CARVER

It can be kicked around that the next football coach at Duquesne University will be Joe Bach, if Joe so wills.

Immediately following the announcement that Elmer Layden had signed at Notre Dame, rumors flew thick and fast, especially thick, relative to Elmer's successor on the Bluff. Every football coach in the country who's contract was known to be up was mentioned for the position; every coach out of a job or about to be out of same, has had his name mentioned and said situation will continue until the position is filled.

But Bach is the man, and as Long John Silver was wont to remark, you may lay to that.

In the first place, Bach's value to the Duquesne football team as line coach and conditioner long has been held in high regard by those in charge of affairs on the Bluff.

TO KEEP SYSTEM

In the second place, the Dukes naturally must keep the Notre Dame system in force and must have a coach definitely familiar with the plan of battle installed by Layden, for with a flock of junior and sophomore players coming up, it would be folly to effect a change of style.

Third, the Dukes could look much farther and do very, very much worse than to sign Bach. There isn't a better conditioner of football players in the country than the former Irish tackle. There are few, if any, better line tutors. Bach's personality differs somewhat from that of Layden, but Joe has the old stuff and the boys like him, which makes him aces up.

And what is more, from an authentic source, your correspondent has learned that Joe is "in" if he so wills. If he decides to go along to South Bend with Layden he can do that, too, for Layden realizes Bach's value and likely will offer Joe the post of assistant at Notre Dame.

It's strictly up to Mr. Bach.

REAGAN MENTIONED

Yesterday there came a report that Bob (Pat) Reagan, who served as line coach under Layden on the Bluff for two campaigns prior to the advent of Bach, might be in line for the job. This report was born when Regan was seen here in the city Saturday. The same rumor would have been put out if Gandhi had been glimpsed. Regan may get the job, but only if Bach turns i' down. Reagan at present is assisting Harry Stuhldreher at Villanova. In any event, there will be no announcement from the Bluff until the football banquet Thursday, if then.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: THE COCOANUT CRACKER—Tom Topham was a famous English strong man who kept the Red Lion Inn in London and died in 1749 at the age of 39. Topham was celebrated for his herculean feats. He could roll up a seven-pound pewter dish like a sheet of paper. He could bend iron bars by striking them against his bare forearm. Once he threw a horse over a low wall. In an exhibition in Ireland he cracked a large cocoanut by squeezing it between thumb and forefinger. A COLD WAGER—Lord Paulston's bizarre wager was the result of an argument over the value of the theory of Pastor Kneipp, the advocate of walking barefoot over the dewy grass in the morning. On a cold November night, in 1897, Lord Paulston ensconced himself between the gargoyles of the Tower of Notre Dame and spent the night completely disrobed in the open, in an icy wind and with the thermometer 27 below zero. He was found half dead in the morning and spent a few months in the hospital, where doctors despaired of his life. Both his legs had to be immediately amputated, but he recovered and won $5,000.

The Morgan Soccer Club, of the Keystone League, qualified to meet the Rochester Celtics, of Rochester, N. Y., in the final qualifying round of the National Challenge Cup competition at Greenlee Field next Sunday defeating Cecil 2 to 1, in an overtime game at Morgan yesterday afternoon.

Five thousand fans braved the chilly breezes to watch one of the finest soccer games of the season. The teams battled exactly two hours before a decision was reached.

Morgan scored in the first half after 18 minutes of play, Dante Villani converting a penalty kick with a great shot that never gave Wacher a chance to save. With that one goal lead, Morgan tried hard to protect its advantage, which looked good for a long time.

The tying marker came in the final minutes of the regulation period. Cecil forced a corner kick which was well placed for Cherokee to head into the far corner of the net.

At the end of 90 minutes of play, Referee Dave Martin ordered an extra 30 minutes to decide a winner. Felix Mitchell, the hero of the Heidelberg game a week ago, again came through. He took a good pass from the left wing, flashed the ball past Wacher into the net and Morgan once again advanced in the national cup play.

Avella defeated the Webers in a National Amateur Cup game and Heidelberg routed Houston, 6-1, and Gallatin and Moon Run played a scoreless tie in West Penn Cup battles. Games also were played in the Mon-Yough, Panhandle, Allegheny Valley and Keystone leagues. The lineups of the cup games:

All-America Contest Under Way; Send in Your Entry Now

They're off—and how!—in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's All-America team contest with 10 beautiful All-America football blankets as prizes.

Although many fans sent in their selections before the contest got under way officially with the publication of the final weekly ratings of the All-America Board of Football, in Saturday's issue, this will not prevent those early entries from being considered. The main point to remember is that the deadline for the receipt of entries is midnight next Wednesday. No selections will be taken into account after the zero hour.

For the convenience of contestants, a coupon entry blank is being printed daily for the duration of the contest. It is not necessary to use this coupon, but it will be found the simpler way. A note giving reasons for the choices must be attached, for in the event of ties the committee, consisting of Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph; Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech coach, and Christy Walsh, who makes the weekly ratings, will eliminate the contenders on a basis of their reasons as they compare with the reasons of the All-America Board, which will be published with their selections in next Sunday's issue.

Only players who were named in the weekly rating lists during the season are being considered for the team. Here is the complete list; do not name any other players:

VETERAN COPS MIAMI OPEN

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A brilliant sub-par round of 70 yesterday pulled Willie MacFarlane, the lanky Scot, out of a three-way tie, and gave him a 288 to win the $10,000 Miami-Biltmore 72-hole open golf tournament here and first money of $2,500.

Six up at the fifty-fourth hole at 218 with Johnny Revolta, of Menominee, Mich, and Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis, the 42-year-old Tuckahoe, N. Y., pro, buckled down to shade par by one stroke on the final 18, and finished four strokes ahead of the field.

Revolta, who won the Miami open last year came in with a 292 to cop second prize of $1,250, and give him runnerup honors for the second consecutive year in the Biltmore tournament.

Third money of $1,000 and fourth of $750 was split at $875 each for Paul Runyan, of White Plains, New York, Agua Caliente champion, and Tommy Armour, the Black Scot from Chicago.

Vincent Eldred, of the Highland Country Club, of Pittsburgh, wound up with a score of 306.

COACH REFUSES W. VA. OFFER

WAUKESHA, Wis., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Glenn Thistlethwaite, head football coach and athletic director at Carroll College, said yesterday he preferred his position at Carroll to the duties of football coach at West Virginia University because there wasn't enough financial inducement to make the change.

The Carroll coach, a veteran of 25 years of gridiron tutoring, offered that statement in explanation of his dropping negotiations with officials of the Morgantown (W. Va.) school.

M'Cabe Gets Post At Holy Cross

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Thomas J. McCabe, Boston sports writer and one of the best known football officials in the game, has answered the call of his alma mater by accepting the invitation of President Francis J. Dolan, S. J., to become athletic director at Holy Cross.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The Chicago Bears will defend their National Professional Football League championship against Harry Newman and the New York Giants next Sunday at Wrigley Field, in the circuit's first playoff game.

Both teams clinched the leadership in their respective divisions, last week, but by defeating the Green Bay Packers, 7 to 6, yesterday, the Bears finished with the higher percentage, to assure Chicago of the championship battle.

While the Bears were squeezing out a one-point victory over the Packers, the Giants ended their season with a 20-to-14 victory over Philadelphia, with Newman showing the way.

The trusty toe of Jack Manders gave the Bears the big point against Green Bay. After Keith Molesworth tossed a pass to Eugene Ronzani for a touchdown in the second period, Manders went in to kick for the seventh point. The Packers scored on a brilliant 85-yard run by Bob Monnett in the final frame, but Link Lyman saved the day by blocking Grove's try for the tying point.

Rooney also offered the Portsmouth officials $3,500 for the contract of Glen Presnell, former Nebraska halfback star.

SPORT VIGNETTES

That's quite a fight Matchmaker Lew Raymond has tossed together for his first fistic offering since his return to the North Side Arena, next Friday night . . . Young Terry vs. Jimmy Smith . . . The former recently won a decision over Ted Yarosz at Newark, N. J., after Yarosz had beaten Al Rossi, stopped Freddie Polo and repeated a Pittsburgh victory over Vince Dundee, the present middleweight champion, there. . . . Smith holds a victory over Lou Brouillard, former champion, scored in Philadelphia, just a year ago, and contests Yarosz' claim to the state middleweight title . . . Yarosz probably will have to fight the winner.

Terry is no newcomer in the life of Raymond, who as a matchmaker in New Jersey several years ago gave the lad some of his first important fights and his first important money . . . Terry's real name is Sammy Pane . . . He is of Italian birth, the sole support of his mother, his father having died when he was a little bit of a fellow . . . He was born in Shenadoah, Pa., 22 years ago, and took his name from Terrible Terry McGovern, who captivated him when he read of the former featherweight champion's exploits.

In addition to his bout with Yarosz, Terry has beaten Jackie Fields, Ben Jeby and Jack Rosenberg, knocked out Chick Devlin and fought a draw with Vince Dundee . . . Although printed reports of the fight with Yarosz disputed the decision, Terry claims this was one of the easiest bouts of his career and says he will welcome an opportunity to fight Teddy again, anywhere . . . Making hay while the sun shines, the boxer is attending Rider College in Trenton, taking a business course.

As for Smith, he is an iceman on the side, working for his manager, Dick Bircher . . . In addition to Brouillard, he numbers Cowboy Jack Willis, Sylvan Bass, Chick Devlin and Billy Ketchel among his victims, holding a knockout victory over Devlin . . . Like Terry, his opponent here, he is a club fighter type, a busy workman inside the ropes . . . Daymon Runyon, after seeing him in action, labeled him a small edition of Harry Greb . . . If that is an accurate estimate of the fellow, he ought to be quite good enough for Pittsburgh fans, with whom the memory of Greb remains ever green . . . Jess McMahon, veteran matchmaker, rates Jimmy third among the middleweights of the world.

Dr. M. R. (Mutts) Goldman is back on the job as a boxing commission physician . . . Welcome back, Doc . . . Babe Didriksen is touring the land with her own basketball team and may show in Pittsburgh . . . Johnny Freund can book this and other teams for the local clubs . . . MAJOR LEAGUE CONFAB SET

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The business end of major league baseball began warming up today for the annual meetings and trading sessions which officially open tomorrow morning.

During the sessions which will last for the rest of the week, the magnates will consider such problems as radio broadcasting of games and a standard ball for all leagues in organized baseball. These items will be considered in formal meeting, but player deals will be tackled and wherever and whenever interested parties can get together.

If all the player deals brewing on the various hot stoves are accomplished, some kind of a record is likely to be set.

SCOTT RECEIVES MIAMI BID

By JULIUS LEVIN

Scott High School, of North Braddock, may follow the Duquesne University's lead and play a football game in Florida to wind up the season.

The North Braddock school has received a bid to meet Miami High School in Miami on Christmas Day and the Scott authorities are reported to be favorably inclined toward the contest.

Last night, the school athletic officials said they would accept the invitation, provided the guarantee was sufficient. A Scott official has been dispatched to continue negotiations with Miami.

New Castle High School, winner of the class AA championship of the W. P. I. A. L., also has received an invitation to make the trip to Miami.

An effort to extend the class AA division of the W. P. I. A. L. is under way, having been started Saturday at a meeting at Webster Hall at which Elmer Carroll, of Wilkinsburg, appointed a committee to bring Monongahela Valley schools into the division.

Shady Side Floor Card Is Announced

December 12—Avalon, home; December 15—Aspinwall, away; December 29, Alumni, home; January 9—Arnold School, home; January 16—Arnold School, away; January 18—Carrick, home; January 23—Oliver, home; January 30—Oakmont, home; February 2—Perry, home; February 7—Shaler, home; February 10—Western Reserve Academy, Hudson, O.; February 13—Edgewood, home; February 17—Nichols School, home; February 20—Brentwood, home; February 27—Aspinwall, home; March 3, University School, Cleveland.

Schmeling Denies Rift; Baer Has New 'Heart'

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A report from Budapest that his wife was seeking a divorce there today met with a smiling denial from Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight boxing champion. He said:

"I love my wife more every day. I don't see what interest anyone could have in spreading such a story—they must be crazy. The story has been going the rounds for some time and there is absolutely no truth in it."

Mrs. Schmeling is the former Anny Ondra, German film actress. They were married here last July, a month after Max was knocked out by Max Baer in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Max Baer was back on Broadway today, worried more about his vaudeville and night club engagements than about his next fight.

Ancil Hoffman, his manager, made it plain, however, that any fighting Max may do will be under Jack Dempsey's auspices. He said:

"Baer will not fight Primo Carnera unless Dempsey is the promoter. That is definite."

One of Baer's first acts upon arriving here was to visit his new "heart," Edna Dunham, a blonde divorcee, whom he says he will marry.

THREE ELEVENS WIN TITLES

Three local independent football championships were clinched yesterday afternoon as local sandlot elevens staged what probably was their last full Sunday program of the season.

The Scott Morgans scored a touchdown in the second period, when Sheltonbrand went over after taking a pass from Hussey, to defeat the Peabody Alumni eleven, 6 to 0, and sew up the East Liberty and Homewood district title.

The Filo A. C. annexed the Metropolitan League banner, defeating the Bakers of Coverdale, and Brookline won the West Liberty district lightweight crown, downing West Liberty, 20 to 0.

Capuano ran 80 yards for one touchdown after intercepting a pass; White went through the line for the second and Blockinger, racing 30 yards off tackle, scored the third.

The Broadway Mounts tallied in the first and second periods to beat the Ambassadors, 13 to 0, at Greenlee Field. Meals scored both touchdowns after Mohr had put the ball in scoring position with long runs.

The Rox Rangers defeated the Etna Syc mores, 13 to 0, in another feature battle. McKeesport Crimsons were held to a 6-6 tie by the Clairton Eagles; Coraopolis turned back Midland, 13 to 0; Bloomfield Civics and Allison Park tied, 0-0; Monessen Merchants downed the Unions, 13 to 6; Trafford Indians beat the Pitcairn Mohawks, 6-0, and the McKeesport Olympics topped the Tarentum Firemen, 12 to 0.

MOOSE TEMPLE ARENA DARK

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Metropolitan A. A. U. championships, Madison Square Garden, New York.

Bob Moody vs. Jack O'Dowd, 6 rounds, Syracuse, N. Y.

Jimmy Perrin vs. Jackie Simpson, 10 rounds, New Orleans.

There will be no boxing show in the Moose Temple tonight, Reds Barry, Washington heavyweight, having withdrawn on Saturday from the main bout against Tony Galento, of Newark, N. J., who holds a two-round knockout victory over him.

This means that Pittsburgh will have only one boxing show this week, the reopening program at the Arena on the North Side, Friday night, in the main bout of which Jimmy Smith, of Philadelphia, meets Young Terry, of Trenton, N. J., who holds a victory over Ted Yarosz, who probably will fight the winner.

Two six-round bouts, featuring Anson Green and Marty Gornick against opponents to be named, and three four-rounders complete the card.

The next local wrestling show will be held in Motor Square Garden Wednesday night of next week.

Consensus Team Named by Davis

The following consensus All-America football team has been selected by Parke H. Davis, famous football authority, in conjunction with more than 100 college and university coaches and newspapermen:

Ends—Skladany, Pittsburgh, and Geisler, Centenary.
Tackles—Ceppi, Princeton, and Schwammel, Oregon State.
Guards—Corbus, Stanford, and Rosenberg, Southern California.
Center—Bernard, Michigan.
Quarterback—Montgomery, Columbia.
Halfbacks—Buckler, Army, and Purvis, Purdue.
Fullback—Feathers, Tennessee.

Jock Sutherland, Pitt coach, was among the selectors. Players named will receive gold footballs from the Gulf Refining Company.

K. A. C. HANDBALL PLAY OPENS

Eight leading luminaries of the district squared off this afternoon in the inaugural round of the Keystone Athletic Club invitation singles handball tournament on the Keystone courts. Another octet of aspirants await the morrow ere engaging in initial bracket play. The competition, sanctioned by the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., will continue throughout the week with finale slated for 2:15 p. m. on Saturday.

Ben Pope, handball and squash pro at the K. A. C., defeated Johnny Skillman, of the Apawamis Club, Rye, N. Y., national professional champion, in a 23-match series which was completed yesterday, the local star winning 13 to 10. Pope scored 309 points against 277 for Skillman.

In a Class A League match yesterday, the Y. M. H. A. defeated the Keystone Club, 4-to-1.

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

Progress Is Made Despite Uncertainty

By B. C. FORBES.

ON THE WHOLE, progress.

CONSUMERS continue to buy in reasonable volume.

In the highest circles apprehension has somewhat abated.

EXECUTIVES of many corporations interviewed last week were able to report encouraging orders and distinct gains in net earnings.

Mr. Forbes

Improved dividends are announced in increasing volume by well known companies.

SHARES closed the week with moderate advances. Ordinary bonds also exhibited strength

Commodities moved irregularly, but there were more advances than declines.

FLUCTUATIONS in United States government bonds again attracted attention and excited some uneasiness in conservative quarters.

However, much was made of the fact that $2,714,000,000 was offered the Treasury Department when it called for only $950,000,000. This, viewed by itself, is distinctly cheerful. But, the present rate of 2¼ per cent for a one-year obligation contrasts with a quarter of 1 per cent paid for a nine months loan in September.

Meanwhile, interest rates in Wall street have become distinctly firmer. This tendency became rather pronounced towards the end of last week.

Such a development has characterized the tail-end of most depressions. It encourages students of financial conditions to conclude that we are now definitely headed towards better times.

WITHOUT any declaration or even intimation from President Roosevelt, the deduction is now being drawn that a currency stabilization plan may be officially announced this month. Such a conclusion has been reached abroad as well as in many cirles at home.

The expectation—the speculation—is that the President, after reaching an agreement with Britain and France, will reduce the gold content of the dollar to somewhat below its current quoted value of 63 cents. Conservatives favor a cut of not more than one-third, but it is generally believed that the President has in mind a lower level, even 50 cents.

Every gathering of businessmen, whether manufacturers or life insurance presidents, emphasizes the urgency of removing the existing currency uncertainty. They declare that until such action is taken the country cannot hope to function normally. Certain it is that large investors, institutional and individual vow that they will hug the shore until they know definitely that flagrant inflation will not be unleashed.

AT LAST wholesale governmental expenditures are under way. The helpful effect is beginning to be felt.

It is significant that the shares of companies benefitted by expanding construction have been rising to new peak quotations for the year.

Also, whereas very grave alarm prevailed a year ago over what might happen during the winter because of appalling unemployment, no such spectre talks the land this December. It is assumed that Washington will successfully cope with all emergencies not adequately met by local communities.

This is a very important gain since it is now widely agreed that the material foundations for general recovery have been laid and that what is most needed is creation of confidence.

THE INDUSTRIAL world is better pleased over the way NRA has been acting lately. It is now believed that trade associations capable of functioning efficiently will be allowed a generous measure of self government, and that Washington will not insist upon employing a vast army of sleuths to ferret out infractions. Also, restrictions of unfair price cutting are actually beginning to yield benefits in some industries.

CURIOUSLY the convening of Congress is awaited surprisingly calmly. It is not generally expected that law makers will defy the President, or that upsetting measures will be actually enacted.

Indeed, the financial world is hopeful that the securities act will be modified to permit of capital raising by responsible organizations.

SO, THE YEAR is drawing to a close fairly satisfactorily.

Farm Purchasing Power To Aid Industry

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

FARM PURCHASING power will have a vital influence on the trend of industrial activity in 1934. We dwellers in a large manufacturing area have a tendency to forget that the nation cannot enjoy any lasting or widespread prosperity unless the farm portion of the population has a reasonable amount of purchasing power.

Farm purchasing power is not simply a matter of dollars and cents. It is what the proceeds of his crops will buy. Farm purchasing power is affected as much by changes in the prices of the things a farmer must buy as it is by the prices of the crops he sells.

The prices of farm-produced commodities have risen during the past year but they have not risen enough to compensate for the advancing prices of the articles needed by farmers. The administration efforts to increase farm income through the processing taxes and payments to farmers for reducing acreage of over-abundant crops represent attempts to correct the situation.

Farmers Start To Receive Aid

THIS AUTUMN the farmers have started to receive the first assistance in the form of direct payments from government agencies. Help of this sort may be expected to contribute further to farm income during the new year. Commodity prices were rising rapidly during most of last summer, but this increasing tendency was checked in October so that a genuine increase in actual farm purchasing power appears to be taking place.

In commenting on this situation Alexander Hamilton Institute declares that if the expected increase in farm income next year materializes, manufacturing activity should reverse its present downward trend and show some expansion in 1934. The institute says:

"The slump in manufacturing which begun in August was due to the fact that the value of factory output reached too high a level to be maintained by farm income. Not only was there an increase in the quantity of goods manufactured, but there was an advance in the price level. Since July, prices have shown a further rise. This has resulted in a greater slump in manufacturing activity than would have otherwise been the case.

"Despite the drop in October, the value of factory output was still above the level of farm income. This suggests further curtailment. At the present time, however, the prospect is that farm income in 1934 will be higher than in 1933. If this proves to be the case, the value of factory output may soon reverse its trend. The extent of the gain in manufacturing activity will depend upon the movement of prices. A rise in the prices of manufactured goods will retard expansion of output while lower prices will accentuate expansion."

Income May Show Gain

ACCORDING TO the latest estimate of the institute, farm income this year will be 20 per cent higher than in 1932. This means that the 1933 index of farm income, on the basis of 1923-1925 as 100, will be 53.9. The 1933 index of the value of factory output should be approximately equal to the index of farm income. The index of the value of factory output for the first 10 months of this year was 54.6. This means that the index during November and December should average 50.2 in order to make the annual index equal the 1933 index of farm income. The index of the value of factory output in October was 58.8. Since the value of factory output has apparently been curtailed since October, it is probable that the downward adjustment which has been in evidence since July has been nearly completed and that manufacturing is now close to a point where it will begin to expand provided that the expected increase in farm income next year materializes.

GOLD PEGGED AGAIN AT $34.01

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The administration today renamed a price of $34.01 an ounce for RFC purchases of newly mined gold, a figure that has prevailed since December 1.

This price was $1.21 an ounce in excess of the world gold price set at London for bar gold which advanced 6 pence to 127 shillings an ounce, equivalent to $32.80 an ounce.

PROBE LEAK

Meanwhile, Treasury officials maintained official silence concerning the reported gold leak which enabled London to obtain the domestic price in advance of the official announcement made daily at the Treasury at 9.45 a. m., E. S. T. It was understood, however, and not denied at the Treasury, that an investigation was being conducted to determine the accuracy and foundation of the report.

Reports that stabilization of the dollar was again imminent were not verified by Treasury spokesmen.

Meanwhile, it developed that RFC so far, has purchased 420,000 ounces of domestic gold. Jesse H. Jones, chairman, said today the total cost was $14,000,000. As usual, he refused to state the amount of gold purchased in the foreign markets.

SPEED BANK PLANS

The chairman turned from gold to the corporation's preferred stock buying program, and said that up to today the corporation board has approved purchases of preferred stock and capital notes in 1,512 banks totaling $440,000,000.

The corporation, he said, is working day and night to get as many state banks into the plan as possible and is recommending that all who apply join the federal deposit insurance corporation.

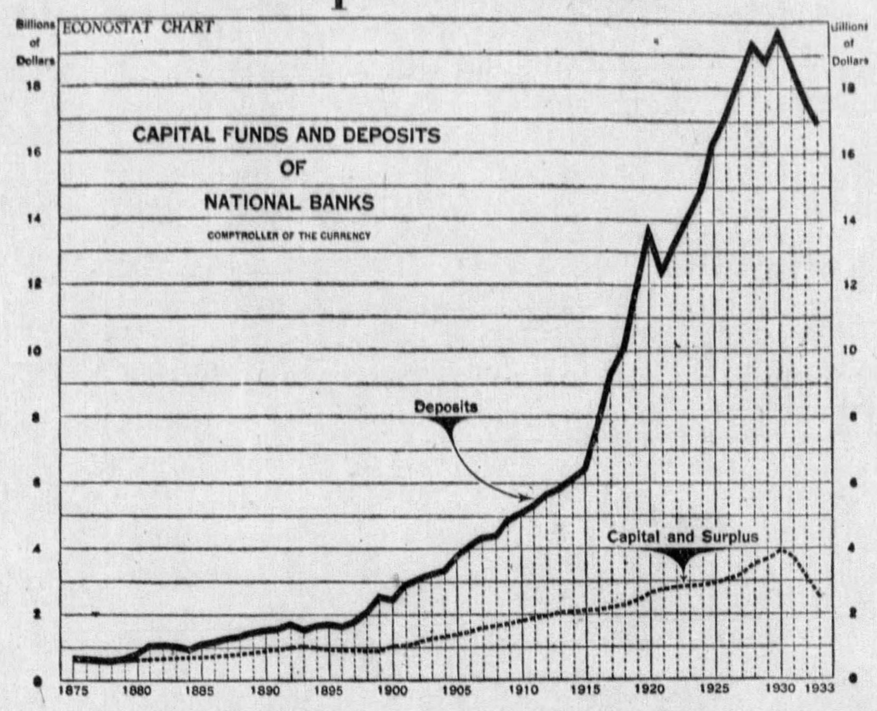
Ratio of Bank Capital and Surplus To Deposits Declines



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, The Econostat

This chart illustrates a change in American banking, whose importance has been little appreciated either by bankers, depositors or the government. It may be noted that the relation between capital and surplus on the one hand and deposits on the other has been changing radically during the past 50 years. Where the capital funds of a bank at one time were fully equal to deposits they are now only a fraction of those deposits.

According to the last report of the Comptroller of the Currency, our national banks had one dollar of capital funds for every $7.50 of deposits. The capital funds of a bank constitute a source of strength not only to the bank, but to the depositor.

The bank in a sense is a borrower from depositors. It seeks their funds and then invests them either in securities or in loans in turn secured by real estate and other collateral or just the straight promise of the borrower to repay. If anything happens to the loans which a bank makes, and we know very well from the experience of the last 10 years that a great deal may happen, the losses are charged first to earnings which the bank has realized in the current period.

If such earnings are insufficient to absorb the losses they must then be charged to the subscribed or accumulated capital funds of the bank. Those capital funds, therefore, are a safety factor. The greater they are in relation to deposits the safer the deposits. Losses must first absorb all the capital funds of a bank before they can be charged to deposits.

It is, therefore, to the interest of the depositor to see that his bank provides the highest possible margin of capital safety which is consistent with reasonable earnings for the bank.

As a result of the heavy losses which have been incurred during the last few years the capital funds of our banks have taken serious punishment. It is partly for this reason that the R. F. C. is urging banks to sell preferred stock to the R. F. C. The proceeds will be used to buttress the capital of the bank and make it safer for depositors.

BRISK RALLIES BOOST STOCK MARKET

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Last week the stock market averages gained from two to three points, the progress being made on Wednesday and Saturday, when brisk but moderate rallies occurred.

The Saturday push, by the way, is the first one to come at the week-end since September 23. This may be all right, but it may also be a "come-on" move to enable bigger operators to sell to advantage on Monday strength. Against this suspicion, however, is the fact that the market was very broad for a Saturday, and the volume of trading was large.

SUSPICIOUS SIDE

On the side of suspicion is the fact that "asked" prices at the close were not so much above the final quotations, which suggests that some holders for the rises may be satisfied for the present.

But the fact remains that the market snapped out of the shakiness of the preceding few days, and on good volume the great majority of issues traded in closed up.

On the bull side, one can say that such old line leaders as American Can, U. S. Steel and duPont have for some time indicated accumulation.

The "rails" have come through to a new high for the move.

On the bear side, one can say that the technical position has been weakened, and brokers' loans, though low, have begun to increase.

PRICES MOSTLY HIGH

Prices are mostly very high in comparison with earnings or dividends.

November business returns have proved to be very disappointing (for example, factory employment and department store sales). It seems difficult to visualize any large general advance at this time.

So, on the whole, I feel like holding the better oils, building material and gold mining shares, and adding to my holdings on reactions. But stick to sound stocks, and avoid cheap "cats and dogs."

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

STOCKS HURDLE PROFIT-TAKING, JOG UPHILL

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Stocks started the week with a brisk sprint today, ran into some profit-taking hurdles and then settled down to a steady jog in the direction of higher price levels.

Although the inflationary forces received no stimulus from the domestic gold price, which was again unchanged, traders were encouraged by indications of improving business and industry at a time when there should be a seasonal let-down. The British pound lost about 7 cents to the dollar in the afternoon and other foreign exchanges were rather heavy. Wheat and cotton were moderately higher. Silver sagged and bonds were a trifle irregular.

Equities moved vigorously in the early hours and the ticker tape dropped behind for awhile. There were some reactions later, but resistance was shown to realizing. The rails held the leadership.

While Wall street was still as much in the dark as ever as to the administration's ultimate intentions on monetary matters, there continued to be considerable talk of dollar stabilization. Much interest was expressed in a report from Washington, subsequently denied by the State Department, that informal proposals had recently been made to the British that a survey be conducted of the currency situation with the purpose of putting the pound-dollar rate on a more even keel.

Banking circles, usually in close touch with the capital, claimed to have no knowledge of American efforts toward exchange "pegging," but it was felt that, soon or late, the matter must receive the attention of both Washington and London if the apparent trade revival in Great Britain and the United States is to be encouraged.

Varying views have been expressed in the financial district as to the effect on the securities markets of stabilization if and when it arrives. In some quarters it was believed that assurance of a relatively steady exchange level for dollars, pounds and francs would tend to accelerate prices of both equities and commodities. Others, however, were of the opinion that stabilization at this time might tend to retard recovery; that, although it might aid both the British and the French, the dollar might be placed at a disadvantage because of European political uncertainties.

Proponents of a settled dollar pointed to the firmness of both stocks and staples during most of the days on which the domestic gold rate has remained static. These argue that the stabilization implications of the unchanged gold price, and the comparatively mild fluctuations of the dollar in terms of leading European monies, have been accompanied by highly improved sentiment in the majority of the markets.

WHEAT CLOSES WITH NO GAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Wheat climbed today to 5¼ cents above last week's low, but as a result of profit-taking sales today's new gains were not well maintained.

The latest bullish factor was a sudden cold wave which amounted to 40 degrees fall of the mercury at some Kansas points. Corn was reported out of line for overseas shipments, owing to erratic fluctuations of sterling exchange.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish; corn unchanged to ⅜ lower; oats ¼-¾ up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Warner Brothers Board Re-elected

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Stockholders of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., today re-elected all directors whose terms expire this year, acting after a vigorous defense of the board by John B. Laffey.

Laffey, a Wilmington resident, was elected to the board last year as, he said, "to find out if there were any grounds for charges of mismanagement and irregularities." He told the stockholders he found none. The charges had been made at last year's annual meeting.

LEGAL LIQUOR STIMULATES TRADE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—With the panic-making efforts of the "sound money" propagandists frustrated, business and the markets looked up somewhat last week.

Mr. Rukeyser

The legalization of the liquor trade was a stimulant, and in general retail trade showed additional vitality. The rising tide of public works contracts has brought additional volume to the heavy industries, including steel. November building awards were the highest since October, 1931, with public works and utility awards setting a new monthly peak record. Seasonal factors, however, were holding down basic industries, and the tendency of farm prices to widen the gap with general prices was scarcely encouragaing.

Investment sentiment was bolstered by the vast oversubscription of the one-year treasury offering, which was taken as an indication that the treasury is to be soundly managed under the new auspices, and by dividend resumptions or increases by 33 corporations. This expression of confidence by corporate directors stood in contrast with the propaganda by bitter enders in the monetary debate.

GOLD POLICY PURPOSE

Incidentally, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, in his able address in New York, which was happily free from the passion which characterized some of his earlier pronouncements, gave a clue to the real purpose of the government's present gold policy. In the first place, it is intended to prevent the British or the French from seizing the ball and determining where it shall rest. But secondly, it is testing out the theory, not only of devaluationists but of the strict quantity theorists, as to the power of money to work magic in our economic order. Gen. Johnson said:

"The depreciationists say that prices vary with the price of gold. They can't prove it. They believe it. Well, the President is giving that theory as careful and complete a test as was ever conceived. But the test he has invented keeps everything in his own control. It preserves the credit of the United States. By buying gold he increases the gold reserve in our vaults and—if gold coverage is an index of the soundness of a currency—he increases that coverage and fortifies that soundness. He makes exports easier and imports harder, so that, if a favorable balance of trade be a criterion of federal credit, he enhances it."

RESTORING BALANCE

From Gen. Johnson's exposition it appears that President Roosevelt is approaching the money question, not as a partisan, but in the spirit of applied science. That the President has not accepted hook, line and sinker the Warren doctrine that varying the gold content automatically adjusts the price level is suggested by his own statement on October 22. In opposing revaluation immediately, the President stated one of his objectives to be "gradually to restore a balance in the price structure so that farmers may exchange their products for the products of industry on a fairer exchange basis." Obviously, such elimination of price disparities cannot be accomplished merely by gold purchases.

Business soon will be stimulated by a seasonal pickup in automobile production. Dealers' stocks of old cars are unusually low.

The relative improvement in the South is illustrated by marked increases in automobile registration. Efforts will be made by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to rush through the Burley tobacco commodity agreement to bring benefits in the form of higher prices to Kentucky, Tennessee and Southern Indiana, such as were experienced in North and South Carolina and Virginia by the earlier tobacco agreement.

P. R. R. DIVIDEND RAISE SEEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Wall Street believes the Pennsylvania Railroad will increase its dividend within the near future.

The system earned about $1.15 per share for the first 10 months of this year, as against $1.03 a share for all of 1932. The road profits substantially from any favorable action by Norfolk and Western, of which it owns 43 per cent of the latter company's shares which pays $8 annually. Norfolk earned $12.68 a common share in the first 10 months of this year.

Word from Philadelphia recently said that a $2 extra dividend would probably be declared late next January by Norfolk.

Chrysler Shipments Show 121 Pct. Gain

DETROIT, Dec. 11.—Production and shipments of new passenger cars and commercial vehicles by the Chrysler Corporation through the first 11 months of this year total 442,865 units, an increase of 121 per cent over the first 11 months of 1932.

P. R. R. Store-Door Service 'Success'

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11. — Traffic officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad say that preliminary reports for the first week of the company's new system-wide, store-door collection and delivery service, went beyond their expectations.

OPERATOR 13

The second key he tried unlocked the handcuffs, and detaching it and leaving it sticking in the lock, he tossed the handcuffs into the swampy sheet of water at the foot of the stack of marsh hay. Her revolver, box of caps and ammunition he prudently pocketed. She had, in another pocket deep in her voluminous skirts, a thin packet of papers. He took these, also, professionally.

The girl was still unconscious when he lifted her once more and slid from the slippery mound of marsh hay.

When he had climbed up the embankment to the railroad tracks above he caught sight of the lights of the station only a little way down the track; and, what interested him still more, saw the rear lamps burning on a standing train.

This must be their own train, still held at the station. Their own car, too, which was the last one. No other train had passed. He was certain of that.

Now lugging her in his tired arms, he hurried over the cinder-bedded sleepers toward the station.

He could see a man in a cap and railroad uniform loitering on the dimly lighted platform.

A lantern dangled from his hand. There was another man there, too, seated on a bench. Both were gazing northward along the track toward the panting locomotive.

The rear platform of the sleeping car overlapped the station platf m. Gailliard went around to the river side of the car, climbed up with his senseless burden, opened the rear door and stepped into the empty car.

Embarrassing Task

There were their valises, just as they had left them. But the Negro porter had made up both berths of their section, and the baggage stood in the aisle by the curtained lower berth.

John Gailliard laid Operator 13 on the gray blankets of the berth and placed a pillow under her head, which still wore the saucy little hat with its tiny blue blossoms. There was only one thing to do with such a dangerous youngster, unless he left her at once without knowing how seriously she had been hurt. But he couldn't bear to do that.

He hesitated; and his boyish face was very red and his hands unsteady as he drew off her shoes, her garters, her stockings, her hat and her jacket, full of burrs and hay. But he had become, by this time, thoroughly afraid of the resourceful and dangerous young woman; and he determined to undress her, with the prudent view of making any immediate pursuit of himself impossible when she rerevived.

At last, horribly embarrassed, he contrived to accomplish the business in hand, pull sheets and blankets over her, and place her piled clothing in the upper berth out of reach. Then he drew from her pocketbook a tiny crystal flask of hartshorn which he had noticed there, and which now he thrust under her pretty nose.

Flaming Wrath

The girl's reaction was so prompt and so violent that it scared him; for she gave a terrific sneeze and sat bolt upright, regarding him with a wild surmise.

It was, however, nearly a minute before she fully realized where she was and in what outrageous condition. He had been trying, politely, to pull up the blankets around her throat, and was making soothing and timid inquiries, when suddenly the full purport of what had happened overwhelmed the girl; and he saw hell flaming in her eyes.

"I—I had to do it," he faltered.

Impotent fury bowed her head with its touseled curls, and she buried her scarlet face in both hands.

"Here are b-both tickets, darling," he stammered, casting them on the blanket. "I had to do it, Gail. Please don't hate me too bitterly!"

"As long as I live—as long as I live!" she wailed. "I shall remember and despise you!"

"Don't," he protested miserably, picking up his valise: "I had to do it, Gail darling—"

"You have repaid kindness with wickedness!" she stormed. "The world will laugh at me and I shall die of it—murdered by ridicule and by you!"

"Do you suppose I'd ever tell?"

Bitter Words

"Yes, I do! You are treacherous enough. You never cared for me. You are a Rebel Judas!" she sobbed.

"And you are a Yankee Judith—betraying me with a kiss!" he retorted in anger by her abuse.

Outside the dark windows opposite them a lantern began to swing; a distant voice was calling: "All aboard!"

"Goodby," he said timidly. She lifted her tear-wet face from her hands and glared at him.

That he was escaping infuriated her anew, and she crouched in her blankets like something lithe and agile, ambushed and gathering for a spring. Then consciousness of her naked body under the bed clothes overwhelmed her, and again she buried her face in clutching fingers and sobbed and sobbed.

He lingered a moment longer, looking miserably at her; then, carrying his valise, stepped swiftly to the rear platform and dropped off on the river side, where the cut-off track ran along the edge of the water. Fortunately, there was just room enough for the express from the North which rushed thundering by; but the wind of it nearly hurled him out into the Hudson.

Gail Enraged

When it had passed, the north-bound train had already begun to move out. A brakeman was busy on the rear platform; the conductor was there also, fussing with two lanterns.

Standing on the wave-washed shore, he watched the red glow of the lantern receding through the night until it became a tiny distant spark and vanished in misty obscurity. Then, lugging his valse, he turned away southward along the track.

In the fury of her humiliation the girl in the lower berth had given way to a passion of tears. Rage at the escape of her prisoner transcended all grief for the loss of her lover. Her failure, with its threat of future ridicule, should the circumstances ever become public, had left her almost hysterical.

Yet, outside of the sentimental merits and defects of the artist that she was, there really existed no fundamental weakness in the girl's character. The storm convulsing her reached its peak and quickly subsided.

There was something to be done and she was striving to think what it might be and how to do it.

Probably the first thing was to find her clothes. She found them, presently, and dressed, sniveling and sniffing and full of deadly purpose.

OSTROGOTHS BATTLE WITH NARSES

JUSTINIAN THE GREAT AND HIS COURT

After a Drawing by F. Tegelmeyer.

The Western Roman Empire, collapsing rapidly during the fifth century, lost provinces to Goths, Vandals, Huns, etc. Odoacer, son of an officer of Attila, at the head of Roman mercenaries deposed Romulus, last Western emperor, and assumed the title King of Italy, the first Barbarian (476-493). His able reign, marking the beginning of the Middle Ages, was overthrown by Theodoric, establishing the Ostrogoths' rule. After the latter's death (526) the Ostrogoths were driven out by Belisarius and Narses, able generals of the Byzantine Emperor Justinian the Great. Soon after the Lombards (Germanic) ruled over Italy almost up to 9th century.

Col. James Miller was one of the ablest officers of Maj. Gen. Jacob Brown's army. Advancing into Canada during the American-British war he led the gallant charge of his men at Chippewa, Canada (July 5, 1814), contributing greatly to the American victory in that battle. (United States History)

CHARLES' LAW AND ITS VERIFICATION

A gas contracts 1/273 in volume by cooling from 0°C. to -1°C; thus its volume theoretically would be zero at -273°C, called absolute zero temperature, starting point of the absolute temperature scale. But gases liquefy before and do not follow the gas law afterward. Above, right: Thermometers with Fahrenheit, Centigrade (Celsius) and Absolute calibration. Charles' law (1787) states that by changing the absolute temperature (T) to (t) of a given weight of gas, but keeping its pressure (P) constant, the volume (V) of the gas will change to (v); similarly, pressure (P) changes to (p) if volume (V) is kept constant; thus volume respectively pressure vary directly as the absolute temperature: V/v = T/t = P/p. Dasher Churn

Besides being a solution of sugar and minerals, a colloidal suspension of proteins, milk is an emulsion of fat globules in water. Continuous agitation, churning of milk or cream (at 48°—56° C. temp.) coalesce the fat globules, forming granules of butter. The rest is buttermilk, which is drained. Butter granules are rinsed with cold water and worked; Squeezed, kneaded into a mass, the butter. Butter should contain at least 80% butterfat and not more than 16% water (legal requirements), may contain salt and permissible coloring matter.

PROPELLER—DOUBLE-THREADED SCREW

A screw is a bolt around which the thread—one or more inclined planes—is wound spirally. By turning the screw in a stationary medium (e. g., a woodscrew in lumber, a bolt in the nut) the bolt will advance by each revolution with the "pitch" in solid matter, and with somewhat less "the actual pitch" (due to slip) in a gaseous medium, like air. Give Us Old-Fashioned Football

We figure we have won our football argument from Davis Walsh of International News and Frank Menke of Universal News Service.

We are for old-fashioned football. Two 30-minute halves and take no prisoners.

There is too much whistling, time-out and huddling in modern football. Our summary of the 1933 footballer is that he was too anxious to get back into the huddle.

We pointed out the St. Mary's-Fordham game to the two sporting editors. Fordham gained 161 yards. Of this totalage only 81 yards consisted of rushing. The other 80 were handed over in penalties. That made Fordham one yard better than the referee.

When a referee inflicts a penalty he blows his whistle, stands at attention and marches down the field with the ball under his arm. If he had tried that in 1900 he would have been tackled 11 times in 11 yards.

The oldtimers didn't know friend from foe. The three football R's were rassle, riot and revenge. If you never saw the flying wedge then you are not entitled to speak of happy days in Dixie.

The guardsback play was another neat method of refrigeration. Trying to stop it was like fighting a nickelplated leopard. It was like burying a golfer under his own divots.

In case that failed they still had the line hurdle. Three or four husky backs grabbed the runner by the arms and legs. They swung him back and forth, yelled, "Here he goes, ready or not," and actually threw him over the line. He flew through the air like the man on the flying trapeze with the opposition snapping at him like minnows at wet bread. This play always gained 10 yards and lost the same number of players.

Walsh and Menke are strong for the present day football. But give us that 1890 brand with the long hair, the shin guards and the testimonial gouging. When they stopped a runner in those days they smacked him so hard his substitute fainted.

How about Poe, King, Hefflinger and the rest? Did we ever see them? Never ask us a question like that. Walsh and Menke projected the same query and it spoiled our argument. We had to admit we never saw them. But a little hail like that never stops an oldtime football fan.

Certainly, we never saw them. But, gosh, how they could play.

U. S. Survey Shows Failure in Education Due to Obsolete Local Government

WHILE THE SPOILSMEN of politics in the several states are taxing the American people to support more than 3,000 county governments, the very existence of free schools in many communities is at stake.

The desperate plight to which public education has been reduced by an obsolete system of state and local government which has come down to us from the "days of the ox-cart" is vividly depicted in a survey just completed by the Federal Office of Education.

This survey shows, according to Dr. George F. Zook, the United States Commissioner of Education, that "there never was such a demand for educational opportunity as there is today," yet, "because of more children and less money, it has never been so difficult to satisfy that demand."

DUE TO LACK of funds, a total of 2,280,000 American children of school age who should be in school will be denied schooling this year.

In 24 states, 2,000 rural schools have failed to open, 16 institutions of higher education have been discontinued and estimates indicate that 1,500 commercial schools and colleges have closed.

In some communities free public schools have been abandoned and only those children are now getting any schooling whose parents are able to pay the rate demanded.

Because the spoilsmen of politics are squandering the people's money to pay the wages and the waste of hundreds of thousands of unnecessary county and local officials, one of every four cities has shortened its school term, 715 rural schools will be able to run for less than three months, and general reductions in school terms are making worse an already serious situation.

In Michigan 90 per cent of the schools, due to lack of funds, will shorten the school day during the coming school year.

In Nebraska 15 per cent of the schools will cut at least one month from the school term.

In Missouri 100 high schools and 1,500 rural schools face early closing.

In New Mexico most of the public schools will have to shorten their terms.

MOST PEOPLE have a vague idea that teachers' salaries are now too low, but, as Commissioner Zook says, few know how low they are.

Only the spoilsmen of politics, who are chiefly to blame for this scandalous situation, realize how low the teachers' salaries have gone by comparison with other standards.

But one out of every four American school teachers, still employed, is now teaching at a rate of less than $750 per year.

In at least 18 states some teachers are being paid in warrants which are cashable at discounts ranging from 5 per cent up.

One-half of the rural teachers of the country will receive less than $750 this year and more than 40,000 rural teachers will receive less than $450.

Teachers' salaries in Arizona have been reduced from 20 to 40 per cent; in Colorado from 5 to 20 per cent; in Illinois from 10 per cent upward due to increasing losses from discounting warrants.

In Iowa one-half of all the teachers will receive $750 per year or less and the legal minimum for teachers' salaries is now $40 per month.

In Missouri one teacher in four in rural communities taught last year from one to four months without pay, three-fourths of the elementary teachers will receive less this year than the "blanket code" minimum for unskilled factory laborers and 10 per cent of the rural teachers have contracted to teach for less than $320.

IT IS HIGH TIME for the American people to conquer and to civilize "the dark continent" of American government into which more than 3,000 county governments and other local units have degenerated.

And the first step toward this conquest is the abolition of the ramshackle structure of county government under which the spoilsmen of politics are robbing millions of American children of their birthright by starving public education to feed at the public trough a horde of hungry and unnecessary local politicians.

The Greatest Need

A New Juvenile Detention Home Should Head the List of County Building Projects.

The Legislative Council of Western Pennsylvania, composed of 20 women's groups, and the Penal Affairs Committee are asking the County Commissioners to build a new Juvenile Detention Home. They point out that the money can be obtained from the Federal Public Works Administration, 30 per cent as a gift and the remainder as a long term loan.

Even if it is necessary to sacrifice other projects on which they have set their hearts, the Commissioners should heed this call for a new Juvenile Detention Home. It should head the list of building projects. There is nothing that the county needs more.

The present Juvenile Detention Home is a scandal and a disgrace. Excellent as the management is, it is impossible to overcome the difficulties presented by wholly inadequate accommodations.

When as many as 40 delinquent children of widely varying grades of delinquency, some mere tots and others prematurely full-grown, have to be crowded together into two bedrooms no larger than one finds in an ordinary family dwelling, the need for a new building becomes absolutely imperative. Such, it is reported, is the situation at the Juvenile Detention Home.

Decency and cleanliness cannot be inculcated under the existing conditions. The public authorities are setting a shocking example to the wards of the Juvenile Court in herding them together in such quarters.

The new Juvenile Court will be terribly handicapped if a clean, sanitary and commodious detention home is not speedily built.

Death of Jacob H. Frank

Pittsburgh Has Lost Good Citizen in the Passing of the Well-Known Merchant

The death of Jacob H. Frank, one of the founders of Frank & Seder, deprives Pittsburgh of a good citizen and many Pittsburghers of a good friend.

The life of this well-known merchant exemplifies the virtues that make for success and respect. He was a builder who built a great business, starting at the bottom, and overcoming by hard work, intelligence and perseverance obstacles that would have daunted most men. The business that Mr. Frank founded will stand as a monument to his useful life.

But he was more than a successful businessman and shrewd merchant. Mr. Frank was a philanthropist interested in everything that could contribute to the betterment of humanity. He was active in religious and charitable work, and will be revered for these services to Pittsburgh as well as for his achievements in the commercial field.

Flood Control Falters

The Project May Yet Be Saved From Collapse By Vigorous Action By Pittsburgh's Businessmen.

Bad news comes from Washington. The plan to protect Pittsburgh and our three river valleys from flood by building storage reservoirs at the headwaters of the Monongahela and Allegheny has apparently been pigeon-holed by the Public Works Administration.

The engineering and economic merits of the $51,000,000 project were convincingly set forth by the promoters and admitted by the federal authorities. All that was needed, apparently, to insure the inclusion of the project in the public works program was a vigorous demand from Pittsburgh's business interests. But that demand was not forthcoming.

The very interests that would profit most by flood control have remained silent. Probably $20,000,000 of the cost of the reservoirs would be expended for steel, building materials, tools, equipment and supplies produced by local manufacturers; yet they were apathetic.

Here is an improvement for which Pittsburgh has been calling since 1907, when 1,600 acres of the business district were inundated by the swollen rivers; and when the best opportunity to achieve it that we have had in all that time presents itself we fail to rise to the occasion.

It is not too late yet. An energetic effort even now may secure favorable action from the Public Works Administration.

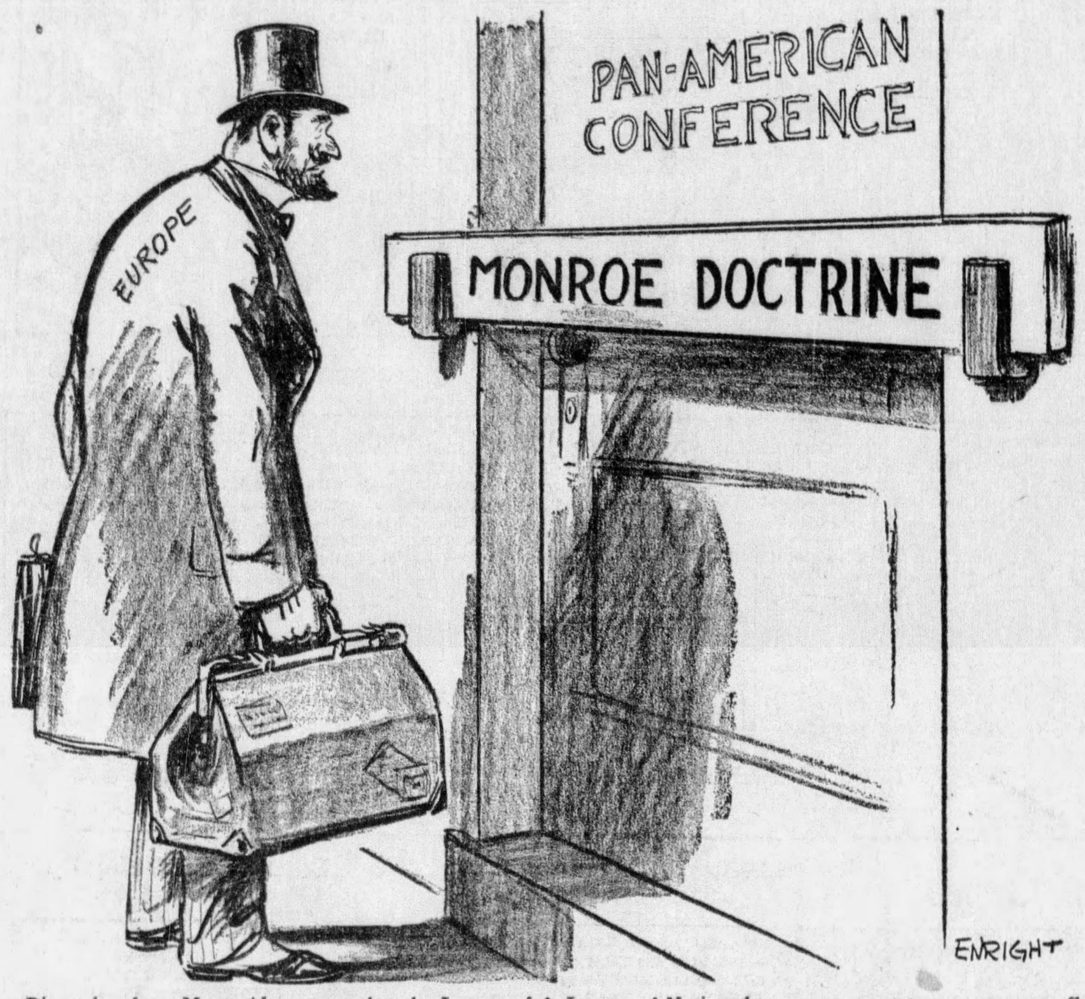
Not Wanted

(Copyright, 1933.)



Dispatches from Montevideo report that the League of Nations, as well as Spain and Portugal, are seeking to "sit in" as "observers" on the Pan-American Conference.

Long ago the two continents of America broke the shackles of Europe—this country liberating itself from England, Brazil becoming independent of Portugal, and the other splendid nations of the New World releasing themselves from Spain.

Ever since Europe has tried to get back, and the Monroe Doctrine more than once has kept Europe out.

France's defeated military adventure in Mexico in 1865, Britain's thwarted interference in Venezuela when Grover Cleveland was our President, convinced Europe that armed conquest was impossible. Thereafter Europe has depended upon trade and diplomacy for domination of the Western World.

This country, aware of Europe's wishes, kept out of the League of Nations because we want to run our own affairs in our own way, not in Europe's way. We want all the other American republics to be equally free—and we want the friendliest of free relations between ourselves and those sister republics.

Obviously, therefore, Europe and the League of Nations do not belong in the Pan-American scheme.

So far as this country is concerned, the words of James Monroe are as true today as they were in 1823, when he said of the Holy Alliance, the League of Nations of its time:

"We owe it . . . to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those Powers to declare that we should consider ANY ATTEMPT on their part to extend their system to ANY PORTION of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

Mussolini's Gift to Rome, Georgia—The Fur Trade Is Again Headed to Prosperity

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GOOD people of Rome, Ga., fear the wrath of Mussolini of Rome, Italy, and the way of it is this. Some years ago Mussolini presented to the city of Rome, Ga., a copy of the famous statue of the Capitoline Wolf supplying lacteal nourishment to the twin boys, Romulus and Remus. With many folk the statue was never popular. Some objected because the sculptor hadn't put the boys in pants, forgetting that pants are a modern invention. Others objected to the wolf, as a particularly big bad wolf.

So it went. And now a miscreant, with little respect for Mussolini or the legend of Rome's founding, has stolen one of the trouserless bronze boys. Nobody knows whether it was Romulus that was taken or Remus. But one of them has gone, and Rome, Ga., is hoping that Mussolini will not find out about it.

Reno Descendant Of a Courtier

THREE THOUSAND fur farmers in the United States and 1,500 in Canada are convinced that prosperity is actually back again. The winter trade will come up to about 72 per cent of what it was in the boom year of 1929. People are buying furs again and paying good prices for them. Mink fur, dark brown, deep, silky and lustrous, rates with silver fox as the most fashionable and popular.

The mink is a long-bodied, short-legged, arch-backed member of the weasel family and likes nothing better than a fight. It takes from 75 to 100 pelts to make a coat, and the pelts now range from $5 to $20 apiece. That's the kind of prosperity that militant Miles Reno, leader of the farm revolt, would like to get for thousands of farmers out West.

A very bluebloodied gentleman is this generalissimo of the embattled farmers. He is a direct descendant of a courtier of Louis XIV who doffed his silks and satins to sail across the sea and map for Louis his vast province of Louisiana. The courtier's name was Philip Renault, and King Louis rewarded him with half a million acres of the very land where Peoria, Ill., stands today.

The family settled in Virginia and scattered over the South and West, and came to be known as Reno, rather than Renault.

Miles himself is tall and lean, with a booming, evangelical voice. He wears a bristling pompadour, likes silk socks, well-tailored blue suits and platinum watch chains. For 10 years he has been the gad fly of Washington officialdom. And now he says there is going to be a grand ruckus if the farmers don't get what they want.

Lincoln's Great Gettysburg Speech

INTERESTING TABLEAU on that old battlefield where the Southern Confederacy reached its high tide and began to recede. Thousands gather to celebrate the seventieth anniversary of a striking event. That event was the rising from his place on a rude speakers' stand of a tall, gaunt man and his delivering a very short oration, to which little attention was paid at the time, but which was to become one of the great classics of the English language.

The battlefield was Gettysburg. The man was Abraham Lincoln. His very short oration was the Gettysburg Address. Grandsons of Lincoln, of Gen. Meade, who commanded the Union Army; of Gen. Lee, who commanded the forces of the Confederacy, and of Gen. U. S. Grant were present at the celebration.

Green Hair Is Latest Fashion

IT TAKES all kinds of news to make a world. From Paris we hear that the platinum blonde is doomed, or rather the hairs of her head. Women are to wear green hair by night and bright red by day. So the hair dressers have decreed. Almond green has been chosen as the most effective for evening, with silver ornaments, and bright red was selected as the most striking for day wear. The female of the species is more barbaric than the male.

News from Paris also that the woman whose very name is a synonym for style is to take unto herself a husband. Gabrielle Chanel, fashion dictator, is to be married to Paul Iribe, a painter and decorator. It was this talented lady who refused to marry the Duke of Westminster, saying that there had been several Duchesses of Westminster but that there was only one Chanel.

Known to her intimates as "Coco," Mademoiselle Chanel, in the years since the war, built up from a small knitted-wear shop one of the foremost dressmaking establishments in the world, employing hundreds of workers. She made an enormous fortune and lives in a great mansion in the Faubourg Saint Honore.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—In the manner of Arnold Bennett's journal: M. and I, arising late, walked to a Tudor City tea room for breakfast. A chintzy place with a charming conspiracy to please. On a roundabout way back to our chambers we saw Fay Templeton, quite largish in ripe years but still extraordinarily beautiful.

There was on the Helen Gould avenue corner a kindly professor from whom I articled a course of French lessons years ago, paying full tuition but going only once. I affected to be absorbed in conversation and tried to analyze the feeling of sneaky guilt. He was not a loser.

Nellie Hussey, who was reared in my rondure of Missouri, came in and is off soon for the Orient where she has lived many years, and she told me much of Buddhism and I noticed that she, like all Americans residing in Peking, conversed in modulated tone. I wondered why.

All day troubled by Messmore Kendall's eerie experience with a dog, inherited years ago with a Great Neck estate. It was a bloodhound, 24 years old, so decrepit it had to be helped to feet. One stormy November night, it leaped up out of a fireside nap unaided, scratched to get out and was never seen again!

Calling Floyd Gibbons on the phone about another matter he told of the horrible wiggly things he saw magnified millions of times in a drop of vinegar. So graphic I will be a long time tasting vinegar, a favorite condiment. There came a note from Charles G. Norris in Singapore that he is rounding into Paris to holiday with Gilbert White, the painter.

At 3:35 I shoved from my typing machine for a turn in the park. I generally suspect that women who sit alone in open squares await masculine advances. Quite unfair. In a spur of curiosity I sat on the far tip of a bench occupied by a comely lady who seemed abandoned to reverie. After a tedium of silence, I observed: "A delightful day!" She was startled, looked about and moved quickly away. I had a surge of horror she might be going for a policeman. I shall address no more strange damsels in public parks.

A venerable ryot, ridding up twigs along the paths, told me a curious thing about squirrels. When one is mangled under a motor and hurriedly removed, all the squirrels in every far reach of the park go into hiding for days, sometimes a week. How the tragic news spreads is a topic for fascinating reflection.

Back at my desk, in sudden seizure, I tapped out my column in 28 minutes, but the top of my head feels quirly. As it does when I read too long in bed. At a tea, Lucy Virginia Long, Jean Norris and Hattie Belle Johnston fell to discussing the most fittingly named dramatist. A playwright makes his name well sounding. But it's a graceful coup to have one like Sir Arthur Wing Pinero.

We dined with the Will Hayses and over the coffee Cobbie and Alberti Campioni, a young hotelier of Rome, told the best dialect stories I have heard. Cobbie's were in Japanese, Chinese and Portuguese cant, his bargaining Chinese wood-chopper being an unbelievable realism. Signor Campioni's contribution was of a French banquet at which a German, Englishman, Swede and Frenchman spoke. We left for a play at 9:05.

At the entr-acte I spoke to Thomas Meighan, far handsomer than in days of cinema stardom. Also talked to Brock Pemberton, who seemed enjoying catching a cold. Exiting, Rube Goldberg, affecting vague recognition, inquired: "Are you in the same line?" So to a restaurant party and sat with Rosamond Pinchot and Mrs. Grace Harriman there, beautiful in a Merry Widow hat and across the table eager Bob Davis, just from Russia, with usual trope and metaphor told impressions, all favorable. But I was more intrigued with Grover Whalen's gray checkered shirt nor would he confide whence it came. Jogged home long after midnight with the Henry Sells in a horse-drawn gig.

You wish members of your family to excel in music but you object to the practicing necessary when you are at home.

You say that your nerves will not stand the wrong notes and irregular sense of rhythm that the pupil or student of music is trying to correct.

The rehearsing of readings to be given annoys you when you want to read.

Fancy dancing jars the house so that you cannot concentrate on what you want to do.

You insist upon perfect quiet when you take a nap.

The whole family stands in awe of you and your whims.

If young people want to practice they should not be thwarted.

Generally it is a struggle to get them to practice.

If there is objection from either parent it is easy for youngsters to present excuses for not doing the work assigned or necessary.

If you are the sort that complains that your children don't do as well as others in public appearance, and at the same time are objecting with one excuse or another to hearing the oral practice they must give, you are wrong.

Your desire for the child's good should be above personal annoyance.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Let's Throw Out the Bottles

Everybody appears to be highly excited over woman's attitude toward the "Liquor Control" question. Whether she wants to keep the saloon in the Home, or to hand it back to "Mike, Joe or Pete" on the corner, seems a vital matter.

"Girls Weep Into Glasses! They Just Adore Bars," ran a headline in a newspaper recently; while on the next sheet another headline read "Women Won't Weep Over Old Bar's Knell." Take your choice!

Once upon a time, no perfect lady would have had any "attitude" whatsoever on this subject. Bars were a man's affair, and no lady's foot had ever touched a brass rail. Woman accepted saloons and bars as she accepted beards, tobacco and swearing—all of which she regarded as man's prerogatives and her own bitter dispensation.

But since the American Home became the Great National Speakeasy, lots of domestic gals have enjoyed polishing up the brass rail, and dolling up the tap-room with lacquered stools and potted geraniums. I know one private bar that looks like a reproduction of Central Park Casino. A woman simply must beautify things—however sinful!

It was the "WET" HOME and the pocket flask, far more than the public speakeasy, which turned mild drinkers into hard drinkers and made mild drinkers of nondrinkers, during those sad 13 years.

Lots of husbands who could pass a saloon, day after day, without even thinking of entering it, can't seem to pass the liquor closet around the house. And just the sight of the cocktail shaker seems to give them a mental suggestion.

Of course, the old-fashioned saloon had its drawbacks. Lots of women lost their beauty sleep in the good old days, tossing anxiously on their pillows or watching the clock and listening for the latchkey, while Friend Husband lingered over the bar "down at Gus' place," singing "Sweet Adeline" and toasting "the sweetish li'l woman in the worl'!"

But, on the other hand, the saloon gave many a wife a pleasant evening off and a welcome relief. For, after all, if a man is GOING to slop over and become maudlin, it is more comfortable to have him arguing politics with somebody a few blocks away, than spilling drinks on the baby-grand and burning cigaret holes in the period furniture.

I don't believe that the average woman cares much, one way or the other, about "Liquor Control," except that she'll be delighted to get all the liquor OUT OF THE HOUSE!
